If the case is settled in time, and such action is necessary, the present session of the State Legislature will be asked to make necessary adjustments. ✤

MAJOR QUESTIONS

One of the main issues which, it is hoped, will be determined by the present action, is the question of whether payment by the city of a share of the cost of a project such as the Tenth-street improvement is legal. Authority for such payment is given in the Act of 1903.

Another issue in the Supreme Court action is the question of whether the new ordinance is in conformity with the Act of 1909 on the subject of the description of the district to be assessed. The question has been raised as to whether the ordinance description by metes and bounds is not too technical to be generally understood, as the Act of 1903 provides for a general description.

The estimated cost of the Tenth-street improvement is between $10,000,000 and $12,000,00. The ordinance provides that the city appropriate $1,500,000.

ORMISTON'S WIFE PICKS ATTORNEYS

Lawyers Here Chosen to Handle Divorce Action Against Radio Engineer

Mrs. Ruth N. Ormiston, wife of Kenneth G. Ormiston, formerly radio man at Angelus Temple against whom Dist.-Atty. Keyes recently dismissed felony charges in connection with the disappearance of Aimee Semple McPherson, will file her contemplated divorce action against her husband through the law firm of Messrs. & Meserve of Los Angeles, according to Honolulu.

Shirley E. Meserve, a member of the law firm, last night admitted Mrs. Ormiston had consulted them, but denied his firm had been retained and consequently declined to ...ssue a statement until after Mrs. Ormiston arrives in Los Angeles.

In her arrival in Honolulu from Sidney, Australia, where she had been living with her father, Fred Peck, wealthy ice-cream manufacturer, Mrs. Ormiston said:

"I have nothing to say. I must see my attorneys before I grant press interviews."

According to the dispatches, Mrs. Ormiston named the firm of Meserve & Meserve as her attorneys. She is aboard the steamship Sierra and is en route to the home of an aunt in Riverside.

CELEBRATED GEOLOGISTS' WORK CITED

Scientist from Harvard Talks on Achievements of Powell and Gilbert

The scientific attainments and the human sides of the celebrated geologists, Powell and Gilbert, both of whom were chief geologists of the United States Geological Survey, was the subject of an address last night before the Brazinar Geological Club at the Mary Louise Cafe by Prof. W. M. Davis of Harvard, dean of the eastern geologists. Frederick P. Vinery, president of the club, presided. Geologists were present from all parts of the United States.

The Cordilleran section of the Geological Society of America and the Paleontological Society of America, Pacific Branch, met during the afternoon at the University of California, Southern Branch.

Prof. Davis, in discussing the scientific attainments of Powell and Gilbert, said: "Both of these men of extraordinary ability in reasoning, from geological facts as they saw them back to their causes, and he explained how their work had cleared up many problems and corrected many misconceptions. Powell, he said, was a great organizer and administrator and Gilbert was the thoughtful, keen observing scientist with a remarkably balanced mind. Prof. Davis, who has written memoirs of both men, worked with them in the field.

Speakers at the afternoon session were Eliot Blackwelder of Stanford University, who discussed in a technical manner the origin of the desert basins of the Southwest United States; William Morris Davis of Cambridge, Mass., who discussed the dissected fault scarp of the Wasatch range in Utah; Bruce L. Clark of Berkeley, who spoke on the tectonics of the coast ranges of California, and Chester W. Washburn of New York City, who spoke on the origin of normal faults.

SENATE ROW ON M'ADOO

Democrats Have Dry Law Clash

Talk to New York Charged as Enforcement Speech Given at Toledo

Millions Regard Dispute With Amusement But Take No Part

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29. (AP)—Echoes of the McAdoo-Meldon fight in the last Democratic national convention were heard today in the Senate when a group of Democrats, starting out on the question of prohibition, got into a heated argument that centered about the New York Governor and his former Secretary of the Treasury.

As the fun was on, Republicans looked on with amusement, taking virtually no part in the exchanges.

The Senate flare-up coincided with the political hero of William G. McAdoo for a week-end visit with a speech in which he discussed prohibition enforcement.

COOLIDGE WARNS AGAINST COMPETITIVE ARMAMENT

Speech to Budget Division Urges Conservation of Prosperity by Frugal Expenditure

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29. (AP)—An assurance of "adquate military preparedness" was coupled tonight by President Coolidge with a warning against militaristic gestures or acts leading to competition in armaments. Speaking before the semi-annual business meeting of the government, the President also reported a prosperous condition of the Treasury, but again withheld promise of early tax reduction pending a study of the producing ability of the new revenue law.

Mr. Coolidge made no direct reference to the struggle in Congress to override his stand against immediate construction of three new cruisers, or to the proposal to increase the budget figure for the Army, but he took the occasion to remind Congress that the question of national defense is always given "the most serious thought in my recommendations to the Congress in the budget message."

ARMAMENT WASTEFUL

"What we need, and all that we need for national protection is adequate preparedness," he said. "I am for adequate military preparedness. As Commander-in-Chief of the Army and of the Navy the Chief Executive of this nation has an emphatic responsibility for this phase of our welfare.

"As a nation we are advocates of peace. Not only should we refrain from any act which might be construed as calling for competition in armament, but rather should we bend our every effort to eliminate forever any such competition. We can not and should not divorce our own interests in this direction from the interests of all the nations. Surely the best interests of all are found in directing to the channels of public welfare moneys which would otherwise be spent without reproductive results."

Pointing out that the government had reduced its public debt below the $19,000,000,000 mark and now is more than $2,000,000,000 ahead of the debt retirement schedule, the President declared the nation was probably in the most fortunate financial condition of all the great nations of the world. But, from a financial standpoint alone, he insisted, the United States should refrain "from any gesture which could possibly be construed as militaristic."

COSTS SLASHED

"There are in this nation people who advocate policies which would place us in a militaristic attitude," he said. "There are others who beguile themselves with a feeling of absolute safety and preach a doctrine of extreme pacifism. Both of these are dangerous to our continued peace and prosperity."

Mr. Coolidge lauded Congress for its unwavering support of the budget principles. He promised a "substantial surplus" for this year and "every hope for a surplus the next year."

"It is too early to forecast whether or not there can be a further permanent reduction in taxes in the near future," he added. "We are waiting a test of the producing ability of the Revenue Act of 1926. But what we can, should, and must do is to keep a firm grasp on our expenditure program."

The Executive called attention to the fact that in the last six years the costs of government have been cut nearly $2,000,000,000 and the total taxes have been sliced by about $1,500,000,000 annually, or a saving of $5,000,000 for each working day. The cost of the government for the next fiscal year he estimated at $3,572,000,000, compared with $3,643,000,000 for this year.

PROSPERITY AIDED

"This readjustment of the finances of the government has been a large contributing factor in the prosperity which the country has enjoyed," he said in conclusion. "Out of our surplus earnings we have paid off nearly a quarter of our national debt and furnished billions of dollars to stabilize and refinance other parts of the world. Measured by its productive capacity and by its distribution in wages and its results in the general raising of the standards of living, it is far in excess of anything ever enjoyed before by any people anywhere at any time.

"If we had the courage to adopt this policy when its beneficial results appeared to be far in the future, now that we are in the midst of their en-

LAW FAILS TO KEEP ITS DEAD DEAD

Illinoisan, Held Deserter and Declared Legally Deceased, Living Here

CHESTER (Ill.) Jan 29. (AP)—Charles Williamson, formerly of Chester, who was drafted in the World War but who failed to appear and subsequently was declared legally dead, has been located in California, it was reported here today.

Williamson was found after he had sent a photograph of himself and his family, consisting of his wife and two boys, to his father at Chester, not knowing that the latter had died during his absence. The photograph was forwarded to his mother.

Williamson was a traveling salesman and his notice to appear for army service was forwarded to him to Topeka, Kan., his headquarters. Upon his failure to appear, the War Department posted him as a deserter. Later his father died and his mother, as administratrix, had him declared legally dead in order to settle the estate and collect an insurance on his life.

The mother, Mrs. Mollie Williamson, lives with her daughter, Mrs. Harry Gorsuch, at 5580 Lansdowne avenue, St. Louis.

REALTY MEN REWARD BENT

Former Chamber Head Honored at Board Banquet; Culver Installed President

About 550 smiling members of the Los Angeles Realty Board—smiling at the success of a year that has added the record number of 423 new members to the organization—celebrated their annual inaugural banquet at the Biltmore last night. The evening was divided between the awarding of honors to various members of the board and a balanced program of musical entertainment.

The outstanding event of the banquet was the award to Arthur S. Bent, 1926 president of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, of the Realty Board service watch, which is awarded yearly to the Los Angeles citizen adjudged by a committee to have served his city the best during the preceding year.

HARRY H. CULVER

The watch was presented to Mr. Bent by George H. Coffin, Jr., retiring president of the Realty Board. The honor is considered a signal one, the winner being selected each year by a committee representing the Realty Board, the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association, the Chamber of Commerce and the Clearing House Association.

OTHER RECIPIENTS

Only six others have, since the inception of the idea of awarding the service watch, received the prize. They are H. M. Haldeman, Harry Chandler, William May Garland, W. A. Clark, I. H. Rice and R. W. Pridham, who was honored with it last year.

On accepting honor, Mr. Bent, obviously overcome with surprise and gratitude, made a brief response, expressing his appreciation and gratefulness to those assembled.

Second in interest, measured by popular applause, was the victory of Oscar Wyatt, who was awarded the Gilbert S. Wright trophy for his five-minute talk on "Los Angeles., His address marked Mr. Wyatt's third attempt to win the prize which becomes the personal property of the victotr and which is given each year by Mr. Wright to the winner of a "five-minute hometown talk" competition.

FIVE ENTERED

Five speakers were entered in the competition last night, which was the third annual contest of its kind and which has been won the preceding two years by William C. Keim and William H. Aiken. The other speakers participating in the contest last night were H. R. Bergh, Bernard Rosenthal, J. A. Westrom and George W. Wilson.

The third award of the evening went to George H. Coffin, Jr., retiring president of the Realty Board, who was presented with a suitably engraved wristwatch by his fellow members of the board as a token of their appreciation of his year's work. The presentation address was made by Second vice-president Mason Case.

The banquet last night, staged primarily to induct Harry H. Culver, founder of Culver City, into office as the 1927 president of the Los Angeles Realty Board, was called to order by retiring President Coffin who ntroduce the guests of the evening: Mayor Cryer, D. F.McGary, president of the Chamber of Commerce; A. F. Osterloh, vice-president of the chamber; Frak Ryan, past president of the Realty Board; Arthur S. Bent, past president of the Chamber of Commerce; Frank H. Brooks, first vice-president of the Realty Board; second Vice-president Case and Treasurer Clem S. Glass.

His introductory remaks were followed by a toast to "California, the Golden State" given by Harry B. Allen of San Francisco, president of the California State Real Estate Association.

The principal speaker of the evening, and a guest of honor at the banquet, was Benjamin F. Bledsoe, former United States district judge, who based his address for the most part on a "Save the Water of California" theme.

Tracing the development of California, Mr. Bledsoe said in part:

WATER IS KING

"In all that we are today here in Southern California, as in all that we will ever develop into, water is and will continue to be king. Primarily most of our territory hereabouts was comparable to a desert. It has been reclaimed through the energy of man, buoyed up and supported by the life-sustaining properties of water.

"I will argue for little if we dot every hillock and decorate every canyon with a homesite if concurrently therewith we fail to provide an adequate source of nature's life-sustaining element.

"Every drop of water permitted to run into the ocean is an economic loss, an inexcusable waste. Millions of dollars have been expended here in water litigation, which if invested in conservation of water and its sources would have made Southern California absolutely immune from any of the ravages of water shortages. That is my judgment and I stand upon it.

"From the Sierras to the sea, our slogan therefore should be: Save the Water. Build dams, create reservoirs, permit the flood and storm waters not actually impounded to filter down into the gravels and feed our underground streams. In the accomplishment of this no expenditure of public

HOUSE PASSES RADIO BILL

Senate Yet to Act on Compromise Measure for Commission to Control Broadcasting

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29. (AP)—The compromise radio control bill worked out by conferees was approved today by the House. The Senate has not yet acted on it.

The compromise bill was accepted without a record vote. It would provide for creation of an independent commission to handle all radio matters, such as issuing broadcasting licenses and the assignment of wave lengths, for one year. After that these powers would be transferred to the Secretary of Commerce with the board acting as a judicial body in the event of disputes.

House action came after Representatives Bloom of New York and Davis of Tennessee, Democrats, declared the compromise would enable radio companies to charge persons for listening in on home sets. They contended that a device recently perfected by the Bureau of Standards would enable companies to so regulate broadcasting that individuals would have to buy new attachments for their sets.

Mr. Bloom also accused radio companies of having deliberately created the chaotic conditions in broadcasting to bring about legislation such as the bill acted on today.

FLOOD AREA TOWN FACES INUNDATION

Raging Waters Threaten Levees of Illinois Village; Distress Increasing

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 29. (AP)—Flood waters of the Ohio and other rivers today were causing distress and in some instances peril along the southern border of Indiana.

With the Ohio at a 44.7-foot stage at Evansville, the near-by community of Shawneetown, Ill., was watched as the turbulent waters threatened to tear away levees protecting the town from inundation. Shawneetown was in the greatest peril since the flood of 1913.

The crest of the flood, however, is thought to have been reached at Evansville as the water had risen little more than an inch during the last twelve hours. River navigation was almost suspended as steamers were unable to make ports down the river because of high waters.

Appeals have been made to the New Albany Red Cross Chapter by flood sufferers in need of fuel, food and medicine.

In many instances nine persons were housed in one room and illness was reported among children due to exposure.

Leavenworth, Ind., in Crawford county, was experiencing the worst flood since 1923. Most of the principal streets are under inches of water.

BRITAIN OUTLINES OFFER FOR CHINESE SETTLEMENT

Consents to Revision of Disturbing Relations if Factions Will Set Up Representative Government

BIRMINGHAM (Eng.) Jan. 29. (AP)—Coming authoritatively from Sir Austen Chamberlain, Secretary for Foreign Affairs, Great Britain's proposals looking for a settlement of the Chinese problem were outlined to the public tonight.

In a long speech devoted entirely to Chinese relations, Sir Austen declared that Great Britain is prepared for a change on all points desired by China—extraterritoriality, the tariff and the quasi independent status of the concessions. On all these points, the present system, he contended, was antiquated, unsuited to modern conditions and no longer afforded protection to British merchants.

The much-discussed proposals which Charge O'Malley had presented to the Cantonese Foreign Minister at Hankow, the Foreign Secretary said, included recognition of modern Chinese law courts without the attendance of British officials as competent courts for cases brought by British complainants. The British government, he added, was ready to apply to British courts in China existing modern Chinese civil and commercial codes and duly enacted subordinate legislation.

WILL GO FURTHER

"We will go further than this," the Secretary continued, "as soon as all the Chinese codes and judicial administration are ready, we are prepared to make British subjects liable to pay the regular Chinese taxation not involving discrimination against British subjects or goods.

"This would include taxation levied under a national tariff when such a law is promulgated, and so far as we alone can effect such an object this removes the last obstacle to full tariff autonomy."

As regards the concessions, we are prepared to enter into local arrangements according to the particular circumstances of each port, either for the administration of the administration with that of adjacent areas under Chinese control, or for some other method of handing over the ...istration ...ing to ...ese ...community some voice in municipal matters.

"You will see that we go much further than halfway. But I am certain that it is the right and wise course to take. I am thinking, not of the inconvenience of the moment, but of our relations with China for the next 100 years.

"These proposals can be put into force by the unilateral action of the British government. For the moment there can be no new treaty, for a treaty can only be signed with a recognized government, and we cannot yet recognize any government as the government of the whole China."

CANTON NOT CHINA

"We cannot recognize Canton as the government of China, only, for this would be to recognize the division of China, which every Chinese, whatever his party, would resent," declared Sir Austen, insisting on the need of maintaining strict impartiality toward the contending Chinese armies. "We cannot recognize the regime of Canton to be the government of the whole of China, for this would not be in accordances with the facts, for Canton controls hardly a third of China. The Chinese themselves must decide the question, and foreign recognition must conform to the realities of the situation."

The Secretary admitted that the anti-British policy of the Cantonese is ar additional difficulty in dealing with them, and discussed at length the reasons why Great Britain was singled out for this attack.

He protested that the so-called opium war, which had opened China to foreign trade, was no more an opium war than the American War of Independence was a tea war. Declaring that alien influences did not hesitate to preach to the Chinese that the British were more responsible than any other people for Chinese woes, Sir Austen said that undoubtedly the anti-British cry is the most

OIL CONCERN GIVEN WRIT

Mexican Court Issues Stay

Temporary Injunction Granted in Vera Cruz Against Land Law

Action Blocks Litigation Until Supreme Bench Announces Ruling

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29. (AP)—Reports from Mexico City that a district judge in Vera Cruz had suspended operation of Mexico's petroleum law against the Transcontinental Oil Company pending determination of the constitutionality of the law, attracted wide attention in official circles today, although Secretary Kellogg was without official advices.

Obviously a suspension of the operation of the petroleum act against American oil companies until the Mexican Supreme Court acted upon constitutionality of the retroactive application of Article XXVII of the Mexican Constitution to these companies would mean defernent of the dispute between Mexico and the United States to await this court action.

Under the reported terms of the injunction or mandamus granted the Transcontinental company the vital question of leaving foreign owners in undisturbed possession of the property until the full scope of Mexican legal procedure had been applied, would be answered affirmatively by action of the Mexican authorities themselves. There would remain, presumably, no question either for arbitration or diplomatic adjustment in that regard until the Supreme Court had acted.

In the absence of complete knowledge as to the exact questions before the court in the transcontinental case and of the form of the order entered, Washington officials refused to comment or to indicate what significance, in their judgment, was to be attached to the proceeding in the Vera Cruz district. It is also not clear that the attitude of the Vera Cruz judge might be reflected by judges in other districts where drilling-permit proceedings might come up or have come up.

INJUNCTION HELD AID TO LABOR

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 29. (AP)—Basing its decision favoring the oil interests of Mexico on the ground that suspension of the new petroleum law would benefit the laboring classes and promote general welfare, the District Court at Villa Cuahtempo, Vera Cruz, has granted a "definite amparo" to the Transcontinental Oil Company.

This is reported in special dispatches from the Vera Cruz district, and is looked upon here as, in effect, a permanent injunction restraining application of the new petroleum law to the Transcontinental company until hte Supreme Court renders a final decision on the constitutionality of the law.

Luis Morones, Minister of Industry, Commerce and Labor, in a statement last night announced that 153 drilling permits had been canceled by an order issued the 10th inst. because the essential requirements of the permits had not been fulfilled.

NEW VOCAL FILM PRODUCED

Music Also Synchronized With "Talking Picture" Perfected by General Electric

SCHENECTADY (N. Y.) Jan. 29. (AP)—Talking motion pictures in which the tones of the performers were synchronized perfectly with the action on the silver screen and which are produced by a new and different process, were demonstrated by officials of the General Electric Company in a theater here today.

The demonstration was in two forms. In one the sound recording apparatus was merged with the motion picture camera and both the audible and the visible were imprinted simultaneously on the film. In the other, the incidental music for one of the latest "first run" films was recorded on an undeveloped print of the feature picture.

PERFECT MUSIC

When reproduced today, the strains of the 100-piece orchestra permeated every inch of the auditorium, with the deep low notes of the tubas, bass viols and bassoons easily identified. Heretofore, the chief difficulty in tone reproduction and amplification has been to make audible the low frequency tones.

The new process, called by its inventors the "photo-phone," is a combination of the motion picture projector an dthe pallophotophone, a device invented by Dr. C. A. Hoxie of the General Electric Company's research staff. The pallophotophone makes a photographic print, by means of a vibrating beam of light on the strip of film. When run through the reproducing machine, the vibrating beam of light retranslates the photographic sound record into audibility. The sound record in the projecting ✤machine is amplified by a loud speaker to any degree desired.

By means of synchronized motors, the incidental music accompanying the "first run" picture in the theater at New York was placed on the picture film in exactly the proper relation. This was shown by two incidents of the action of the picture.

SOUNDS TIMED

In one place, the sound of a blow was timed exactly with the motion of the screen; later the crack of a pistol was simultaneous with the burst of smoke from the muzzle of the weapon.

The inventors, whose combined efforts produced the new talking movie believe that in imposing the music after a film has been made they have aided the small town exhibitor. Whereas the music in thousands of picture theaters is limited to one piano, it will be possible hereafter to show anywhere or everywhere a picture with symphony accompaniment.

The process demonstrated today represents the fruition of more than six years of continuous research and experiment. Charles W. Stone, manager of the central station department of the General Electric Company, has been in charge of the work, in which he has been assisted by Dr. Hoxie, L. T. Robinson, head of the General Engineering Laboratory; Dr. W. R. Whitney, director of the research laboratory and C. W. "Iwe...

Three More American Warships Sent to Honolulu for Duty in China if Necessary

TREATY ACTION HELD UP TO LOCATE NEGOTIATORS

Interest Centers on Shanghai as Factions Prepare for Struggle With Great City as Prize

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29. (AP)—Despite "reasonably hopeful" prospects of treaty negotiations with China seen by Secretary Kellogg, three additional American warships were dispatched to Honolulu today on stand-by orders. They will be available quickly there in the event of serious disorders at Shanghai to supplement the naval forces on the Chinese coast, to rush marines from the Philippines to China or to take aboard Americans should evacuation of the international settlement become necessary. Each ship could land about 150 men from its own crew in an urgent emergency.

The ships are the light cruisers Cincinnati, Marblehead and Richmond, all modern high-speed vessels of the 750-ton class with long cruising radius on oil fuel. The first two are now at Balboa, assigned to the special service squadron commanded by Rear-Admiral Latimer, in personal charge of naval forces in Nicaraguan waters. The Richmond is at Guantanamo, Cuba, and is assigned to the scouting fleet in the Atlantic.

HELD IN READINESS

The cruiser trio will assemble in Honolulu under the flag of Rear-Admiral John R. Y. Blakeley aboard the Cincinnati as flagship. They will await orders for further movements from Washington.

Admiral Blakeley has the advantage of having received his instructions in person at the Navy Department. He left Washington tonight for San Francisco and will sail February 5 from that port for Honolulu to assume command of his emergency squadron, which will be held at the call of Admiral Williams, commanding the Asiatic fleet and in personal charge at Shanghai.

Secretary Kellogg's hopes that there will emerge from the Chinese civil war turmoil an agreement between the factions on ways and means of negotiating new treaties are founded on no definite information that the Cantonese and Peking governments are approaching such an understanding.

PROTEST HEARD

It was reiterated at the State Department today that the Washington government is ready at any moment to enter negotiations with a Chinese treaty commission upon which the Nationalist government at Hankow and the Peking government dominated by Chang Tso-Lin, Manchurian military dictator, can agree, but that no official intimation has been received that these two factions are contemplating such an agreement. On the contrary, each side has protested vigorously against any American treaty dealings with the other side.

Mr. Kellogg feels, however, that he has made so plain in his recent statement both the friendly purposes toward China of the Washington government and its desire to remain strictly neutral as between the Chinese factions that there can be no mistake on either point among Chinese leaders.

There was some suggestion of resentment at the State Department over the action last night of Dr. Alfred Sze, Chinese Minister, in demanding a more explicit and simplified declaration of American purposes, although department officials refused to make any direct comment on the incident.

CHANG DEPLORES LACK OF SYMPATHY

PEKING, Jan. 29. (AP)—Indignation because of the asserted lack of support and sympathy from world powers for the Peking government was expressed yesterday by Marshal Chang Tso-Lin, the war lord of Manchuria, who is directing the affairs of the northern government.

In an interview with foreign newspaper correspondents, Chang said that the Peking government needs funds for its intended military campaign against the Cantonese armies which have advanced to the Yangtse River in their march toward Shanghai and Peking. To repel the southerners, the leading militarists of the north allied their forces with Chang as commander-in-chief.

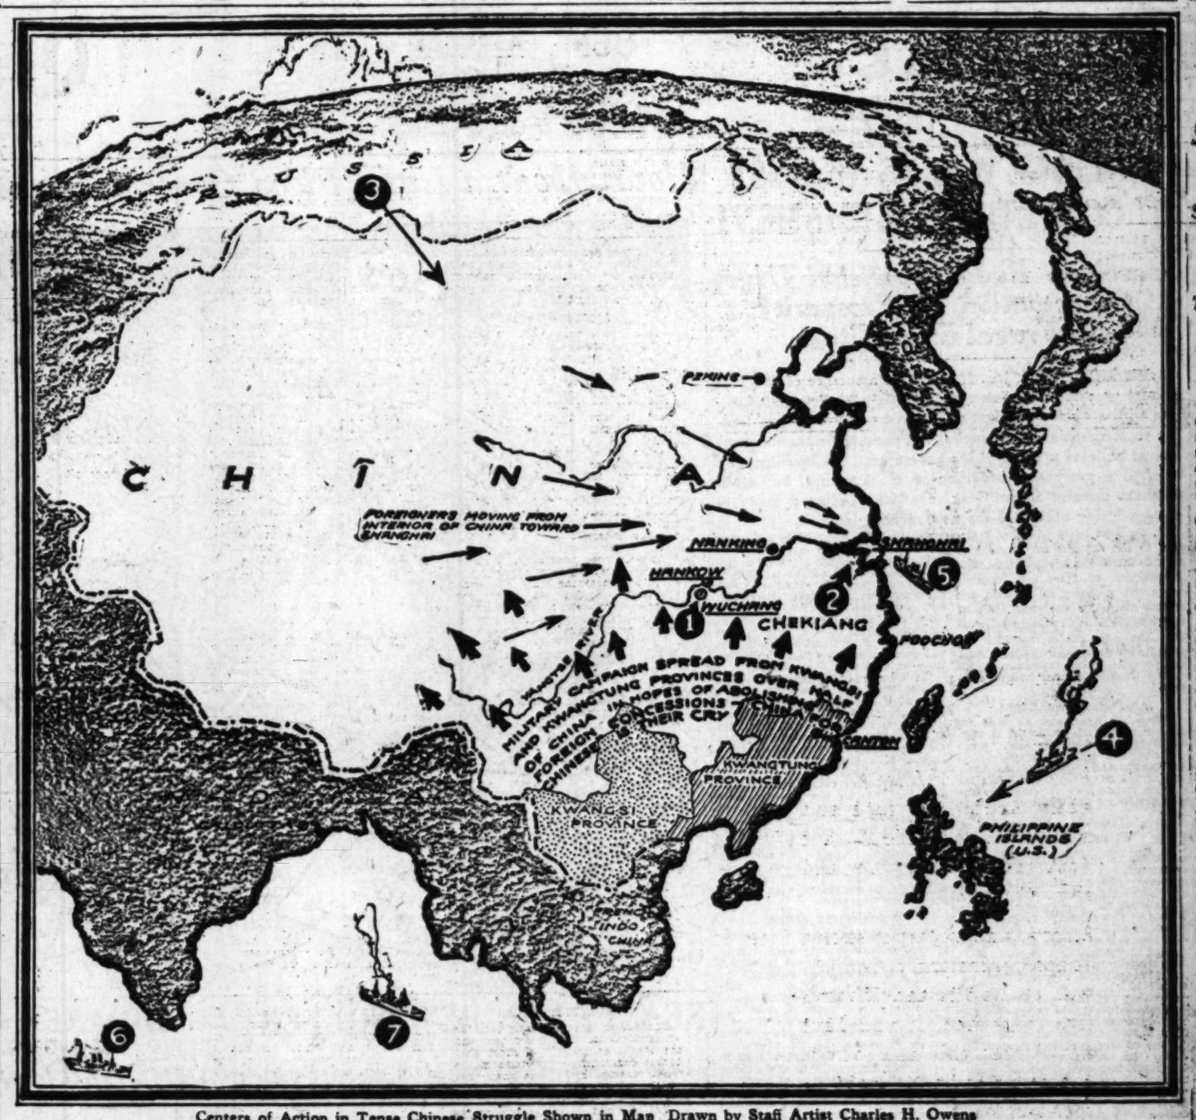
Chang was quoted as saying that his government always has protected foreigners, while its Cantonese opponents who violently had driven foreigners from southern provinces and adopted illegal methods, had been given greater consideration.

FRENCH TO COPY POLICY OF AMERICA

PARIS, Jan. 29. (AP)—French official circles regard the American viewpoint on the Chinese imbroglio, expressed by Secretary of State Kellogg, in his recent declaration, as just about the same as that of the French government.

France's policy is to await solution of the Chinese problem by the Chinese themselves; when they have worked out a stable government, officials say, it will be time to consider their relations with the foreign powers having interests and concessions there.

Pending that moment, it is thought in French circles, any show of force would be likely to unite the Chinese against the foreigners.



Centers of Action in Tense Chinese Struggle Shown in Map Drawn by Staff Artist Charles H. Owens

Principal points where events are taking place in the dual contest between the northern and Southern (Cantonese) factions for mastery of China, and between the Chinese and foreign powers for elimination of foreign domination are indicated above: (1) Wuchang and Hankow, where the Cantonese have established their capital, after driving back the northern forces (2) Chekiang Province, where large Cantonese forces have been concentrated preparatory to the conquest of Shanghai. (3) Russians are reported to be giving aid to the Cantonese armies. (4) Marines at Guam have been ordered to Philippines to be ready for quick dispatch to China. (5) First detachment of British Punjabi troops have arrived at Shanghai. (6) Two brigades of British troops are due in Shanghai late in February. (7) Contingent of Indian troops have sailed for Shanghai and are expected to arrive February 10.

SLAV CABINET CRISIS MAY BE SHORT-LIVED

BELGRADE, Jan. 29. (Exclusive)—The Cabinet crisis brought on by the fall today of the Usunovitch government is expected to be of short duration. King Alexander called in Marco Trifkovitch, president of Parliament, tonight to offer him the Premiership, and it is believed a government soon will be formed. The weak Usunovitch ministry, a makeshift which put to an end the prolonged crisis following the publication of Italy's treaty with Albania, resigned on a technicality after Pavle Raditch, the leader of the Croat agrarian party broke with Prime Minister Usunovitch, withdrawing his party's support.

dangerous factor in the present situation.

LABOR PARTY LEADER WARNS OF DANGERS

LONDON, Jan. 29. (Exclusive)—The British government is playing with fire when it sends defense forces to China, declared Ramsay MacDonald, leader of the Labor party, in a speech at Daventry this afternoon while London crowds were bidding vociferous farewell to the second battalion of Coldstream Guards, a crack British unit, which left London for China this afternoon. The battalion sailed from Southampton later in the Kinfoucastle.

David Lloyd George, speaking at Birmingham, praised Sir Austen Chamberlain's policy of restraint, but expressed fears over the troop movements.

"I wish Sir Austen had behind him a government which merited confidence. If the methods which were adopted to obtain a settlement of the strike are pursued in China we will end in inevitable disaster," said the Liberal leader. Mr. McDonald demanded that the government face the facts.

"Treat China as you treated Japan. Get out of the entanglements which are the result of imposed treaties," he said.

Mr. Lloyd George added:

"I have no apprehensions of military defeat in China, but we may get a diplomatic defeat which will shake our whole position in the East."

He said the only solution for the Chinese problem was the prompt concession of their legitimate demands. He said that the Chinese had confidence in British goods and that Chinamen would rather trade with Great Britain than anybody else.

"Our real trouble there is not between our soldiers and the Cantonese army, but between our traders and the traders of Japan, Germany and the United States," he asserted.

In addition to the Coldstream Guards, more than 2000 men of the Thirteenth Infantry Brigade embarked for China tonight in the steamers Karmala and Herminius.

Kaiser's Spouse Plans Return, Berlin Learns

SENATE CLASH OVER M'ADOO

coming to the support of the Maryland Senator, asserted that New York favored the Eighteenth Amendment, but wanted the Volstead Act amended, this representing the views of the State and its Governor.

"Do I understand the Senator as saying that Al Smith favors the Volstead Act?" inquired Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho.

"Gov. Smith believes in enforcing the Volstead Act as long as it is upon the statute books," retorted Copeland.

After paying tribute to Mr. McAdoo, Senator Caraway summed up the argument of the Smith proponents as meaning "they wanted to modify the Volstead Act so that a person can get drunk without violating the law." He urged the Senate to stop prohibition discussion as it was "encouraging violations of the law and had led many people to jail."

While not participating in today's Senate debate Senator Edwards, Democrat, New Jersey, declared in a statement later that the Democratic prohibition and Mexican debate in the Senate was contributing to the re-election of President Coolidge and was making it hopeless for a Democratic victory in 1928.

"With an ex-Democratic Secretary of the Treasury boldly charging three of the most powerful Democratic and near Democratic States in the Union with being nullificationists and controlled by corrupt machine politicians of the Jefferson school," he said, "and a United States Senator raising his towering voice against the Catholic element in the party of Jackson and Wilson, the Democratic party is waging a hopeless battle for White House supremacy in 1928.

"There is a preponderantly strong element of both antiprohibition and Catholic votes in the Democratic party which cannot and will not follow either Mr. McAdoo or Senator Heflin in their campaigns of nullification and bigotry and if these gentlemen have their party's welfare and terests of the Anti-Saloon League and terests of the anti-saloon league and other intolerant and minority organizations they will recharter their political courses with party harmony and party solidarity as their ports of destiny."

Sheriff Starts Investigation of Rancher Death

LANCASTER, Jan. 29. (Exclusive) The Sheriff's homicide squad was tonight investigating the death of A. C. Cissell, 65 years of age, who burned to death when his ranch house near Roosevelt was destroyed by a mysterious blaze at 10 o'clock this morning. Neighbors who discovered the fire attempted to rescue Cissell, who was a widower and lived alone, but, according to Constable E. E. Cummings, the flames had made such headway that it was impossible to enter the house. A Coroner's inquest will be held Monday.

Scotland Reports Nineteen Fatalities, With One Victim in Ireland

Telephone Lines Disabled by Wind While Heavy Sea Batters Shipping

LONDON, Jan. 29. (AP)—The death toll of the great rain and wind storm which swept Great Britain from the south of England to the northern tip of Scotland yesterday and today, tonight had reached twenty, with fully 300 injured by flying debris.

Nineteen of the deaths were in Scotland alone, while one was in Armagh, Ireland, the latter being killed by a falling roof.

In the course of the day further damage was reported, while dispatches from more remote towns showed the great extent of the storm area.

Early this morning, London was visited by a winter thunderstorm of unprecedented severity, during which hundreds of wireless aerials, trees, fumes and chimney pots were hurled through the air. Several persons were injured by falling shop signs and pieces of masonry.

On the bridge road a cockpit of modishly dressed was dummies, complete with the latest, was hurled about the roadway.

Almost 100 long-distance telephone lines in England and seven of the eighteen Paris lines were disabled. Although a torrential rain fell in London, Scotland and Northern England had a regular blizzard, which added to the difficulties of clearing up the debris scattered during the storm. The Oxford and Cambridge boat crews braved the weather for practice on the Thames, but found the going exceedingly hard.

The worst of the storm had abated today, but it still continued gusty and official weather forecasts held out the discouraging prospect of a further depression from the Atlantic which would bring more storms.

Heavy seas battered shipping all along the British coast line. The sailings of the Cunarder Aurania for New York and the White Star Cunarder for Australia were held up for many hours, as tugs were unable to embark their passengers. But the air services to the continent continued, although the pilots were reported to be storm-tossed.

In Western England numerous rivers are overflowing.

BAD TACTICS OF JOHNSON AND SWING GET BLAME

Snarl Developing Despite Aid of Administration Ascribed to Sponsors' Poor Judgment

BY KYLE D. PALMER
"Times" Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29. (Exclusive)—Colorado River legislation as proposed in the Swing-Johnson bill, according to all indications here today, will not be approved by Congress during the present session.

The river problem, in fact, has become involved in such a snarl of conflicting opinions and interests as to the seriously enactment of necessary legislation appropriating funds for temporary protection of Imperial Valley from flood.

Reasons for the unfortunate collapse of efforts to obtain legislation for control and development of the river are easily found. They become plainly apparent to the most casual investigator and are directly and wholly attributable to the program and plan of campaign of Senator Johnson, Representative Swing and some of those appearing in Washington as lobbyists for the Swing-Johnson bill.

DISASTER INVITED

Fundamentally Messrs. Johnson and Swing have invited disaster for the Southwest's great project through their determination to change what is essentially a flood control and water storage enterprise into a power development scheme involving the principle of government ownership.

The outcry at this time against "giant power lobbies" and the corporations does not carry conviction to those who have witnessed the day-to-day developments in the Senate and the House. Despite the magnitude of the undertaking proposed and of the many years it has been before committees of the two houses, astounding ignorance as to its purposes and lack of interest as to its necessity exists.

Because of the insistence of the immediate sponsors of the Swing-Johnson bill that their measure is basically a flood control proposal the majority of Senators and Representatives have not, until recently, been apprised of the proposals relating to power and the method of its generation and control.

REJECTION FACED

Hence, at a time when important legislation has been analyzed thoroughly in preparation for its final submission the river program faces rejection because its proponents either have not presented adequately their case or deliberately have refused to take into account opposition sufficiently strong to defeat their plans.

Although of immediate and local importance to the States of the Southwest certain fundamental policies proposed in the Swing-Johnson bill are applicable to conditions in the country as a whole and, if enacted, will serve to establish a fixed policy for like undertakings in other localities.

One of these policies which is assuming increasing importance in discussions concerning the bill is that of invasion of State sovereignty proposed in the control and operation by the Federal government of the great electric plant to be constructed at Boulder dam. It is argued that this is a wholly unnecessary extension of Federal jurisdiction over an economic activity that she be left to States and municipalities with their more intimate understanding of local needs and conditions. This tendency of the Federal government towards absorption of State government mental functions is being opposed strenuously by leading public men and some quarters it is believed that this feature of the present swing-Johnson bill alone is an insuperable obstacle to its acceptance by Congress.

These facts require general understanding and approval by majorities both in Senate and House—understanding and approval that do not at this time exist.

It is unfortunate for the needs of the Southwest that the Swing-Johnson bill, in addition to the various other controversial points it has raised, should become a vehicle for contention between those favoring and those opposing any extension of government activity in competition with private enterprises and State control.

TOO LITTLE TIME

The subject goes so deeply into the whole relationship of government and the status of individual effort that debate concerning its relative merits must consume more time than that which remains for the life of the Sixty-ninth Congress.

The idle and presumptuous charge that Senators and Representatives opposing government ownership are dominated by the "power interests"—a charge which has been made somewhat slyly and maliciously against Secretary of Commerce Hoover—has aroused much resentment in Congress, where the irresponsible impugning of men's motives is regarded as the last resort of venal politicians.

The written records in Congress and various departments of government show that the Coolidge administration has done all in its power to aid a project which political chance has placed in the hands of foes of the administration.

Probably the history of this country affords no finer example of a willingness to forget political considerations than that of Secretary Hoover, who has ignored the enmity of Senator Johnson and has contributed more than any other agency to the progress of the entire river problem.

It was Secretary Hoover's leadership which made possible the adoption of the seven-State Colorado River compact; it was his influence which caused six of the seven States to approve the pact without reservations; he was instrumental in persuading five States to ratify a six-State compact in order that California might proceed with needed development held up by Arizona's refusal to ratify the original pact, and it was over his earnest protest and against his urgent advice that the California Legislature, dominated by the McCabe-Johnson element, ratified the six-State pact conditionally.

BACK OF ACTION

It was this conditional ratification, insisted upon despite the warnings of many others besides Secretary Hoover, which being reaffirmed at the special legislative session called by former Gov. Richardson caused Utah to withdraw its approval. And the withdrawal of Utah, predicted by those not blinded by prejudice or political aspirations, now stands as one of the chief obstacles to favorable consideration of the Swing-Johnson bill.

Through the whole course of proceedings and negotiations, those proclaiming themselves the champions of river legislation have done most to defeat their own efforts. Whether their plight is due merely to unwisdom or to selfishness or to a mixture is a matter for conjecture.

Conditions imposed by the California Legislature in the six-State compact ratification were designed to exert political pressure on the States of the upper basin of the Colorado River, and were so obviously coercive in intent as to attract resentment toward California from the States affected.

A feeling exists, and has been expressed to committees of Congress, that California, under the leadership of the Swing-Johnson group has sought to take unfair advantage of other States, and while this charge is not justified, the tactics of the bill's sponsors have supplied reasonable grounds for accepting it as fact.

It is logical that those who again have failed to obtain approval of the river legislation should advance their own reasons for such failure, but any explanation other than a confession of poor judgment and bad generalship will fail to supply an accurate statement of the situation.

It is known here that ex-Senator Frank P. Flint, appointed by Gov. Young as one of California's official representatives to urge this legislation, spent the past two weeks in Washington in an earnest endeavor to smooth the way for the bill's passage by inducing the authors to accept amendments which would remove these objectionable features of national policy. In his endeavors he has been supported by W. B. Mathews, special counsel of the Municipal Bureau of Power and Light of Los Angeles. These gentlemen who are at least as well advised of the situation as any of those supporting the measure both are said to feel that the Leatherwood amendments should be accepted. Their efforts with the bill's sponsors were fruitless, however, and ex-Senator Flint has left Washington apparently disgusted at the refusal on the part of those who should be chiefly concerned to consider compromise.

The House Rules Committee has received the perfected arguments of those supporting and opposing complete airing of the bill on the floor of the House. The committee has proceeded with more deliberation than had been anticipated in its consideration of the merits of the controversy and any further delay in its decision, even if favorable to submission of the matter to the House, will come too late.

Senator Johnson will call up the companion measure in the Senate as soon as opportunity affords. In view of the present attitudes of that body his action will be little more than a face-saving gesture taken to give opportunity for making a speech for home consumption.

YOUNG APPEALS FOR BILL

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 29. (AP)—Gov. Young today sent a telegram to President Coolidge urging him to use his efforts to have the Swing-Johnson Boulder Canyon dam bill passed at this session of Congress.

The Governor's message reads:

"I understand application has been made to the House Rules Committee for a special rule on the Swing-Johnson bill. California is vitally concerned to passage of the bill at this session and we respectfully urge your co-operation in having special rule given by the committee. Failure of the bill now would be regarded a public calamity."

The bill is out of committee at this time and, according to Gov. Young, it is necessary to pass a special rule to bring it before the House during the brief remaining portion of this session.

THREE CHANGES URGED BY GOV. DERN

SALT LAKE CITY, Jan. 29. (AP)—Three changes which he would like to see made in the Swing-Johnson bill before it is passed by Congress, have been suggested by Gov. Dern, Senator Smoot and Congressman Leatherwood, the Governor's office announced late today. The Governor believes the prohibitions which he has suggested are necessary to protect Utah's interest in the Colorado River system.

The changes suggested by the Governor follow:

Make the bill dependent upon the seven States compact instead of upon the six-State compact.

Have the bill contain a declaration that the bed of the river belongs to the State and not to the Federal government.

Provide a program for developing the entire Colorado River system instead of simply this one unit which is for the exclusive use of California.

Gov. Dern also forwarded to Senator Smoot and Congressman Leatherwood a draft of a proposed amendment to the Swing-Johnson bill which would cover the three changes proposed.

In his letter to Senator Smoot, the Governor said it seemed to him that Utah is in a position where it can strongly assert its claims. He declared he is not disposed to be selfish in the matter because he recognizes the importance of commercial cooperation between Utah and California. "There are certain rights to which Utah is entitled," he added.

The Governor expressed the hope that without much delay an adjustment may be reached satisfactory to all of the States interested.

WYOMING CHIEF SAYS ACT MUST GO ON

GOLDEN (Colo.) Jan. 29. (AP)—The Colorado River compact must continue despite the fact that one State has dropped out, Gov. Emerson, newly-elected chief of Wyoming, told 250 engineers who are members of the Colorado Engineering Council at the Colorado School of Mines here this afternoon.

TEXT OF ADDRESS
BY PRESIDENT COOLIDGE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29. (AP)—President Coolidge in his address to the budget meeting of the government tonight spoke as follows:

Members of the government's business organization: In these meetings I find a real encouragement. I approach them with knowledge of what has been done. I leave them with increased hope for the future. We gather here to consider the business operations of the government. It is here we discuss our policies and aims, so that all may contribute understandingly to their fulfillment. We represent the most colossal business organization in the world. Its activities touch almost every known interest. Because of this it is important that we proceed along definite business lines. And this becomes even more important when we pause to consider the one and only object of our operations—the welfare of the American people. The profit of our labors go to the people. This is our constant inspiration for loyal, faithful and devoted service.

EFFORT COUNTS

In speaking of the business operations of the Federal government we are not greatly concerned with the amount of responsibility attaching to an office. Rather are we concerned with the manner in which that responsibility is discharged. It is in the discharge of our duties that we find success or failure. In the vast business of the Federal government we must necessarily measure the product in the aggregate. This aggregate is the sum total of all of our efforts. No matter how high or how low the position held, each of us in the Federal service contributes to the aggregate of the product. We are often charged with inefficiency. But I am fully convinced that the facts demonstrate that, measuring efficiency by the aggregate of the product these last years, there is no business body more efficient than the business organization of the Federal government. You have the opportunity and privilege of serving all of the people. It calls not alone for efficiency, but for high ideals of service—a conception of duty where selfish interests and selfish desires have no place. It calls for loyalty and patriotism.

We are serving a cause which to us should be sacred above all things—the cause of the people of this great nation. Errors of judgment are excusable. There is no excuse for disloyalty. If there be persons in our organization who have not been loyal, who have not lived up to the ideals demanded by the cause we serve, they have not only contributed nothing but they have subtracted something from the efforts of the loyal. They should be displaced.

DEBT AN INSPIRATION

When five and a half years ago we set about to put our finances in order, we were faced with a public debt of $23,977,000,000. It is easy to save when not in debt. It is an entirely different thing to save and economize when in debt. The record of this intervening period has shown that the vast public debt was an inspiration for real accomplishment.

We have seen that debt reduced by more than $4,334,000,000 in the five years which ended June 30, last. In these five years the schedule fixed by law for debt reduction from our ordinary receipts was exceeded by $1,000,000,000. In other words, on June 30, last, we were over $2,000,000,000 ahead of the schedule. This excess debt reduction represents an extraordinary annual saving in interest of nearly $100,000,000. And in the same period of time we have seen three substantial reductions in rates of taxation.

This has been accomplished not at the expense of the character of service rendered by the Federal government, but manifestly and plainly to all for the benefit of that service. The outlook today is that a large sum can be applied this current fiscal year to the further reduction of our debt. If this is realized our debt on June 30, next, will stand well below $19,000,000,000. We will be then ahead of the schedule more than $3,500,000,000.

SANE PREPAREDNESS

The public debt has a direct connection with the question of military preparedness. To the extent that we are able to reduce our public debt and to eliminate the vast charges of interest thereon, to that extent are we adding to our military preparedness; and to the same extent are we lightening the burden of the people of this country. Probably of all the great nations of the world, we are in the most fortunate financial condition. But aside from the many and other more important reasons, we should, from a financial standpoint alone, refrain from any gesture which could possibly be construed as militaristic. There are in this nation people who advocate policies which would place us in a militaristic attitude. There are others who beguile themselves with a feeling of absolute safety and preach a doctrine of extreme pacifism. Both of these are dangerous to our continued peace and prosperity. What we need, and all that we need, for national protection is adequate preparedness. In that is reflected our traditional attitude toward all nations. It contains no gesture of offense and no gesture of weakness.

INTERESTS MUTUAL

I am for adequate military preparedness. It is a question to which I always give the most serious thought in my recommendations to the Congress in the budget message. As commander-in-chief of the Army and of the Navy, the Chief Executive of this nation has an emphatic responsibility for this phase of our welfare. As a nation we are advocates of peace. Not only should we refrain from any act which might be construed as calling for competition in armament, but rather should we bend our every effort to eliminate forever any such competition. We cannot and should not divorce our own interests in this direction from the interests of other nations. Rather should we view the matter from the standpoint of the best interests of all the nations. Surely the best interests of all are found in directing to the channels of public welfare moneys which would otherwise be spent without reproductive results.

There has been great improvement in the business operations of our government. This is due primarily to the establishment by the Congress of a scientific plan for carrying on the nation's business. But the real accomplishment has been in the execution of this plan by the executive branch of the government with the unwavering support of its general principles by the legislative branch. We have learned that impulsive recommendation or impulsive action is out of harmony with good business administration. In these days of effort to make each dollar count we have learned the lesson of mature thought and mature deliberation. We are giving relative weight to each of our requirements and are measuring them in the light of their real importance and necessity. And upon this same principle we are looking forward and building for the future.

ECONOMY BENEFITS

It is rather difficult to visualize the real effect of this successful effort for constructive economy in the business of the government. We see certain tangible results, but there are others equally, if not more, important. We can visualize the vast reduction in our public debt. There is brought home to us the benefits of the three substantial reductions made in rates of taxation. We know the firm grasp which we have taken on our expenditures. But there are other things not so apparent.

Prosperity in this country has been increasing from year to year since the depression of 1920. The calendar year which just closed was one of unprecedented business prosperity in the history of this nation. Your efforts contributed materially to this favorable situation. The reduction in taxes gave the people a greater proportion of their own income for investment in profitable industry. If thereby returned more money to the channels of agriculture, trade and commerce. And aside from all of this is the great influence which the economical operations of the Federal government have had on the people of this country. An extravagant and poorly managed central government necessarily has an adverse influence on its people. And just the reverse influence flows from a well-ordered and well-managed central government.

NEW EFFICIENCY

One of the great lessons we have learned in the transaction of our business is the value of co-ordinated effort. Co-ordination in any business is essential to success. The nation's business is no exception. For many long years the executive departments and establishments operated independently, with little or no concern for the common good of all. This is no longer the case. The old order of things has disappeared. In its place we have a well-co-ordinated executive branch of the government. Departmental lines have given away and departmental prerogatives have willingly surrendered to policies and practices which are adopted for the best interests of all. The facilities at the disposal of the Federal government are extraordinary both in class and character. In our personnel are represented the highest talent of science, profession and trade. We are utilizing our facilities and talent not alone departmentally but interdepartmentally. The extent to which we are doing this is increasing as our vision of its possibilities is enlarged.

Co-ordination has brought a clearer conception of what is required of us—a clearer conception of what our real duty is. For your assistance in co-ordinating the routine business of government we are maintaining certain co-ordinating agencies. These in effect are your agencies, their business is your business, and the work they are doing is your work. I refer to the chief co-ordinator, his assistants, and the several co-ordinating boards. They are rendering valuable service, and I urge you to give them your hearty co-operation.

PLANT IMPROVED

We are gradually but surely covering the ground for standardization of methods and practices to cover operations which are common throughout the service. Standardized Federal forms are replacing the individual departmental forms. We are still in the period of transition, but the foundation has been well laid, and we are building on that.

Keeping pace with the improvement in our business operations is an improvement in our physical plant. This has been made possible by holding down our ordinary current requirements so that we could make profitable investment. The building programs prescribed by the Congress will extend over a period of years. The cost is thereby wisely distributed so that it can be absorbed without embarrassment. The completion of these programs will remove an overhead cost and effect a permanent saving. This is wise spending. It will bring a real profit, which is the essence of constructive economy. In all directions we are taking up the slack. We are striving in this way to provide for enlargements in existing necessary lines of effort and for the assumption of the cost of additional projects essential to the public welfare without materially increasing the sum total of our annual expenditures. We are having a fair measure of success in this. In 1925 we spent $8,529,000,000; in 1926, $3,584,000,000, and it is now estimated that we will spend in 1927 $3,643,000,000, and in 1928, $3,573,000,000.

COURAGE REQUIRED

With a full Treasury and revenues at flood it requires courage to continue along the lines we have been following these last years. I am speaking not alone from an executive standpoint but also from a legislative one. I realize the great pressure for increased appropriations brought upon the Congress and I realize the enviable record which it has made in supporting the principles of its budget law. It is significant that the Congress has not granted the total amount requested in any single budget. It is pleasurable and easy to give. It is difficult to withhold. If the Treasury vaults were thrown open and its accumulated capital drawn upon until not a dollar were left, even then would we not be able to satisfy the demands that probably would be made from various groups and from various localities. And who will say that these demands may not have justification. Projects that eventually will be resolved into completed works, purposes and policies that in time to come must be adopted and financed, if accepted in their entirety today would throw a tax burden upon the people that would cripple business, check prosperity, and convert our annual surplus into an annual deficit. What needs to be done should be done. Great developments are sure to come. They should come, however, as the result of orderly procedure with an eye always to the best interests of the taxpayers. For extravagance and unnecessary provision—a waste of the people's money—there is no justification. I intend always to recommend sufficient appropriations to do what is necessary to be done and what should be done. If I err, in my judgment I prefer to err on the side of saving rather than on the side of spending.

PERSONNEL REDUCED

In business administration the matter of personnel is of first importance. It is a matter in which justice to the employee and justice to the people must be equally conserved. It is the money of the people which pays the salaries of our employees. These salaries constitute the largest single item in our overhead costs. The Federal service should be adequately manned, but not overmanned. It may be impossible to obtain this ex-

BILLION-DOLLAR DEBT CUT PROMISED FOR FISCAL YEAR

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29. (AP)—Public-debt retirement of $1,000,000,000 this fiscal year is in prospect, Director Lord of the Budget Bureau tonight informed the semiannual business meeting of the government.

Gen. Lord reiterated that the apparent surplus for this fiscal year was $383,079,095, while the margin for next year appeared to be $300,703,882. He did not discuss tax reduction.

Relating the results of the budget, the director said that in the six budgets so far submitted to Congress the estimates totaled $22,741,882,205, which was $1,492,458,906 less than was asked by the [illegible] estimates.

was asked by the executive departments.

To that billion and a half overestimate," he said, "are buried proposals that never should have been seriously considered. Generous contributions to that vast total were made by executives newly identified with the government service."

Gen. Lord reported progress in the Two Per Cent Personnel Club, made up of bureau chiefs, who effect a reduction of 2 per cent in the number of their employees during the year.

The budget chief urged governments heads to cut down on their correspondence as a means of saving. There is too much dictation and too much typewriting, he argued.

1921 the number of employees in the Federal executive civil service, excluding the postal service, has been reduced 70,000. This has not impaired efficiency of operation. Rather has it been one of the contributing factors in increasing efficiency. The chief incentive for perfecting new and improved methods of business is reduction in cost. That incentive, which exists everywhere in private business, should certainly exist in the business of the Federal government. We are serving more stockholders than any other business. When reductions of force are justified, they must be made. This does not mean that we have no concern in the welfare of employees separated from the service by reason of reduction in force. I have recently issued an executive order that the names of those so separated having satisfactory efficiency records be placed upon the re-employment registers of the government has given evidence during the last few years of its continuing interest in the welfare of its employees. The recently amended Retirement Act has materially improved the financial outlook for those employees who leave the service because of age. The new travel-allowance law has provided adequate rates of reimbursement for those traveling on the business of the government. The Classification Act of 1923 is continuously operating to improve the salary status of the personnel in the executive departments and independent establishments. We are concerned with the question of adequate and fair salaries for our employees. This is both a natural and a necessary interest.

In the last fiscal year there were 707,000 employees at the seat of government in grades 1 to 4 of the clerical, administrative, and fiscal services, with a salary range from $1140 to $2000. They comprised 46 per cent of the 1,537,000 employees classified under the law as of March 4, 1923, and their average annual salary was $1349. The average for all that year of 8000 employees of banks, financial institutions, and insurance companies in nine of the largest cities east of the Mississippi River, with duties comparing fairly with those of the government employees in the four grades mentioned, was $2320. This shows a difference of $971 per year in favor of these employees in Washington. Since the two services are on a comparable salary basis, this favorable difference applies to the much larger number of employees performing the same kind of duties in the field.

SURPLUS PROMISED

The Federal government exists only for the good of the people. If we can make every dollar count in doing the needful things, we unduly enlarge the amount required from the people. The same is true if we unduly enlarge the functions of the government. In spite of three successive reductions in tax rates, we have taken from the people something more than actually necessary to carry on the business of the government. From this has accrued the yearly surpluses which have been invested in the further reduction of the national debt and the profit arising therefrom through reduction in interest. These profits would not have accrued had the business of government not been well managed.

This year promises a substantial surplus and we have every hope for a surplus the next year. It is too early to forecast whether or not there will be a further permanent reduction of taxes in the near future. We are calling a test of the producing ability of the Revenue Act of 1926. What we can, should and must do today is to keep a firm grasp on our expenditure program. This is essential if we are to reap the full benefits of a favorable revenue under the existing law.

NECESSITY SERVED

In planning your next year's expenditure program keep constantly in mind the necessity of holding the rate of spending to a degree consistent with efficient and productive work. Every dollar wasted, every dollar misspent, is confiscation of funds—a withdrawal of working capital from the field of useful development and production. And in giving consideration to plans or proposals for enlarging the functions and activities of the government apply to them the measure, not of desirability, but of necessity.

In making your apportionment of funds for the coming year I want to emphasize again the necessity of setting aside a reasonable amount in reserve to meet the contingencies which may happen during the year. We have found this a profitable practice. These reserves should not be released to meet ordinary or routine requirements. The true spirit of the reserve of which I speak is to have something in hand to meet contingencies. If these do not arise, the reserves are then reflected in a direct saving. They always reflect a direct saving to the extent that they make it unnecessary to call upon Congress for additional funds.

COSTS CUT DOWN

Six years ago the costs of the government were over $3,500,000,000, or $31 per capita. Total taxes were nearly $4,500,000,000. The index figure of the cost of living was over 200. In addition a policy of construction necessary at that time required a great deal of courage. To all appearances it was almost impossible of accomplishment. The time when we could give any actual relief seemed to be so far in the distance that there was little incentive to make the required sacrifices to secure it. In a short period of time the situation has been nothing less than astounding. We have reduced the taxes of the government nearly $1,000,000,000, so that they now stand at somewhat over $3,500,000,000. The income taxes have been reduced more than $20, so that they now stand at somewhat over $30. The surtaxes have been reduced about $1,000,000,000, so that they are now somewhat over $1,500,000,000. This is a saving of $3,000,000 for each working day. The index cost of living has come down to 176.

This readjustment of the finances of the government has been a large contributing factor in the prosperity which the country has enjoyed. Out of the surplus earnings we have paid nearly a quarter of our national debt and furnished billions of dollars to stabilize and refinance other governments of the world. Measured by our productive capacity and by its application in wages and its relation to the general raising of the standards of living, it is far in excess of anything ever enjoyed before by any people anywhere at any time. We have had the courage to adopt this policy when its beneficial results appeared to be far in the future, now that we are in the midst of their enjoyment we ought to have the courage and the self-control to continue it. There is not a home anywhere within the broad confines of this republic which is not better off because of the services which you have rendered and the sacrifices which you have made. These results are unparalleled in the financial history of the world. They have placed us at the pinnacle of success and prosperity. It is our business to see that we keep it there.

PENALTY IN MORALITY CASE HEAVY

Defendant Gets Maximum Jail Sentence in Addition to Scoring by Court

Grant Ludolph, 21 years of age, of 1611 Picardo street, yesterday was given the maximum jail sentence by Municipal Judge George S. Richardson after he had been found guilty of distributing obscene literature and pictures among school-children in Hollenbeck Heights.

Ludolph, who told the court he is a physical culture instructor, was severely scored by Judge Richardson before the jurist imposed a jail sentence of 180 days.

"Deliberate attempts to corrupt the minds of young school-children by men of your type brook no leniency in this court," Judge Richardson said. "To such as you who stoop so low as the offense of which you have been found guilty, a maximum jail sentence can be the only punishment. Six months in jail is all I can sentence you to, but that may help you to see your way to a cleaner and more wholesome method of amusement."

According to Deputy City Prosecutor Chotiner, young Ludolph was arrested by Police Sergeant Benjamin and Officer Wolquist after a two weeks' investigation started by Assistant Supervisor Clark of the recreation department of the Board of Education.

Trusted Clerk Charged With Embezzlement

Charged with a series of embezzlements from his employer covering a period of two years and involving several thousand dollars, Joseph J. Morley yesterday was arraigned before Municipal Judge Ballard. Morley was arrested Friday night by Deputy Sheriffs King and Shafer. He was an employee of William A. Bartholomae, Jr., an oil stock broker.

According to the investigating officers, Morley misappropriated $2500 on Oct. 15, 1925. When discovered, the officers said Morley confessed the theft and was given another chance. Later an audit of Morley's books showed that $1486 in cash and $1000 in Liberty bonds were missing.

Judge Ballard set preliminary examination of Morley for February 7 next and fixed bail at $3000.

Slight earthquake shocks were felt here and by residents of near-by cities around 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, but no damage was reported. The temblor here occurred at 3:28 o'clock, appeared to be general all over the city and lasted about three seconds. Numerous telephone inquiries were received by The Times by persons who felt the shock.

Residents of Inglewood reported feeling a series of shocks at 3:18 that rattled dishes and swayed chandeliers, but caused no damage.

Police officials at Santa Monica, Long Beach and Pasadena reported slight tremors were noticed between 3 and 3:30 o'clock.

TROUBLE STARTED IN CORRIDORS OF COURT

After Superior Judge Bowren had gone to the trouble of listening to the mutual recriminations of Albert C. C. Mayer and Lois I. Mayer, formerly husband and wife, yesterday, the Mayers and their friends started to settle their difficulties by direct action in the corridor outside the courtroom and Bailiff Bogardus had to usher them out of the Courthouse by different exits in order to maintain proper judicial calm in the premises. When Mayer was granted his divorce some time ago he was given custody of his older daughter, and the younger daughter was left with Mrs. Mayer. She came to court yesterday to ask that she be given both children. Judge Bowren held that as she did not make charges of improper conduct against her former husband there was no ground on which to alter the decision of the trial court. A number of friends and relatives accompanied each party to court, and after the hearing an acrimonious discussion arose among the partisans just outside the courtroom door. Bailiff Bogardus hurried out and sorted out the factions, herding each toward a different door.

RANDALL FAMILY MADE HAPPY

First Girl for Generations Arrives

Mother and Long Wanted Daughter

Mrs. Horace B. Randall and her baby who arrived last week to break dearth of feminine descendants in family for four generations.

DESPAIR had almost settled permanently within the ranks of the family of Randall in this city because for the past four generations no daughter had chanced to grace the household of any of the branches of the family. There were sons, but sons grew to be monotonous after a generation or two, and the appearance of a daughter somewhere in the family album was devoutly desired. But another generation or so slipped by with only sons and it was not until last Wednesday that the spell was broken when a baby girl was born to Mr. and Mrs. Horace B. Randall of 820 West Knoll Drive, the first girl in the family in four generations.

"Don't you just know that she'll be the most spoiled young lady who ever lived?" Mrs. Randall said yesterday.

Mrs. Randall is also proud to be able to claim for her daughter a fine, old green luster warp cup, finished with copper, which is to be passed on to all the girls in the family. The great-great-grandmother of this baby's father first gave the cup to her daughter. That was many years ago, of course; and since that time the cup has had a long wait for the event which would bring it out into the light again.

The Randalls have long been residents of California. They first came to San Francisco from the East and fifteen years ago moved to Los Angeles where Horace Randall and his father, E. Broox Randall, have been associated in business ever since.

Directors of Association Meet on Program

Steel and Iron Industry's Gains Approved

Standard State Building Code Discussed

DEL MONTE, Jan. 29. (Exclusive)—Resources of California and a 1927 program designed to exploit these resources were discussed by fifteen directors of the California Development Association in a one-day conference here today. Five regional districts, covering the whole State, were represented, and R. B. Hale, president, of San Francisco, presided.

The subjects dealt with fall under eleven headings, namely: Industry, mining, home building, fish and game, forest-fire control, cotton growing, Boy Scouts, land economics, aeronautics, growth of electrical consumption and advertising of scenic assets.

It was reported by Fred W. Kiesel of Sacramento that industrial progress within the last year has been substantial and approval was made of a 30 per cent increase in the steel and iron industry possible through a program based on co-ordination.

A standard State building code was urged providing for elimination of waste as the prime factor in encouraging home construction.

The report on forest-fire prevention stated that in a conference with Gov. Young the latter agreed to allow 80 per cent additional to the last State budget of the last State Forester.

A report by Ralph P. Merritt on State cotton-growing showed that 66 per cent of last year's production was sold by producers and then mentioned a suggestion of Eugene Meyer, Jr., chairman of President Coolidge's cotton committee, that 25 per cent of this year's production be financed for a period of eighteen or twenty months.

A report on Boy Scouts showed that 82,000 youths stand available for campaign and emergency work in quarantine and pest control. Uniform methods of farm-land appraisals were outlined.

Analysis for sound development and advertising of the State's scenic assets was suggested. A report on aeronautics showed increasing acquisition of lands for municipal airports. R. Waldo Coleman of San Francisco, president of the California Electrical Association, a guest at the conference, submitted an interesting report on growth of the State electrical consumption showing that in 1900 consumption was 100 kilowatt hours per capita and today 1600 kilowatt hours per capita.

OCEAN VIEW COAST ROAD DECIDED ON

Nine California Counties to Join in Highway from Puget Sound to Mexico

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 29. (Exclusive)—The formation of a highway district by nine California counties to campaign for the construction of an all-coast scenic highway extending from Port Angeles, Wash., to the Mexican border, was practically decided upon today, when representatives of the counties met with San Francisco municipal officials.

All counties represented at the session now have portions of the proposed route already constructed. It is the intention to link the unconnected units into one route, in sight of the ocean all along the coast, and to make it a modern highway. Widening and reconstruction of existing units can be carried on without great engineering difficulty, the delegates were told.

It was generally agreed that the present State highway law is adequate to meet the requirements for the formation of the district. Most of those present directly represented the boards of supervisors of their counties and stated that they will present the matter in their organizations for approval. A special committee was named, the chairman of each county Board of Supervisors to be a member. George Rostron of the Santa Cruse Board of Supervisors, will act as chairman.

Navy Bureau in New Search for Missing Officer

SAN DIEGO, Jan. 29. (AP)—Officials of the United States naval intelligence service today started another search for Lieutenant-Commander Robert Gatewood, executive officer of the battleship Oklahoma, said to be suffering from amnesia.

Commander Gatewood first disappeared from the Oklahoma on December 18. He was found two weeks later by the Los Angeles police in a hotel room in that city.

He was returned to the Oklahoma and on the advice of the ship's doctors the Navy Department ordered him to the Balboa Park Naval Hospital here for observation. These orders became effective January 19, but Commander Gatewood has failed to report at the hospital, although he left the Oklahoma more than two weeks ago.

Pastor Norris Accepts Bid for Local Revival

FORT WORTH (Tex.) Jan. 29. (Exclusive)—Rev. J. Frank Norris, pistol wielding pastor of the First Baptist Church of Fort Worth, who last Tuesday was acquitted by a jury on a charge of murder, announced today that he has accepted an invitation to conduct a revival in Los Angeles.

The invitation, Dr. Norris said, came from a church of that city and the dates for the engagement are July and August. No other engagements will be accepted in the meantime, he said, present plans calling for his presence in Fort Worth in an effort to rid the city of what he terms a "few undesirable citizens."

NEW MINISTER ACCEPTED

TOKIO, Jan. 29. (AP)—Japan today accepted Dofgalefski, former soviet Minister to Sweden, as the soviet Ambassador to Tokio.

Headaches, Cross, Backward, Sullen, Gloomy ?

Perhaps it is due to your eyesight—poor vision.

Poor eyesight is the cause of many troubles and always is a great inconvenience. Eye strain may cause headaches, nervousness, squinting, insomnia and many other troubles. Many eyes are easily corrected, while many more are not. Yours may be the latter kind, and there is where my experience, knowledge and ability counts, for I overcome these "snags." Don't take a chance. Have an Oculist's examination. Give your eyes proper care now. I positively use no drops. Am very reasonable in my charges. Some of your friends are wearing glasses I fitted. SAFE PRIED INTO BY CAN-OPENER

Yeggs' Plunder May Reach Value of $10,000

Jewelry Store Robbed With Use of Instrument

Tool of Thieves Left by Side of Gem Holder

Employing a huge "can opener" in what police characterize as an innovation in safe-cracking, yeggs pried open the safe of the Kastle Jewelry Store, 2329 Brooklyn avenue, sometime Friday night or early yesterday morning, and escaped with plunder valued at many thousands of dollars.

After a check-up of the pretaken had been made by the owners last night, they declared their loss may approximate $10,000. After ripping open the safe the crackamen were thought to have made a hurried getaway, police said, as they left the "can opener," a piece of steel about five feet in length, and several detachable blades designed to fit its business end, on the floor near the rifled safe. Police Captain Barr of the Boyle Heights station, and Detective Lieutenant Barlow, fingerprint expert, are investigating the case.

PRINCETON MEN HEAR DR. HIBBEN

Princeton University Head Tells Break With Harvard at Alumni Dinner Here

Nearly 100 members of the Southern California Princeton Alumni Association at the annual banquet of the society last night at the Biltmore, heard Dr. John Grier Hibben, president of the university, as principal speaker. Dr. Hibben spoke on the future development of Princeton, prefacing his remarks with a brief discussion of the break in athletic relations between his institution and Harvard University.

Dr. Hibben declared in his talk on the relations of the two universities, which was confidential for the Princeton alumni, that the breach had not been unpremeditated and had been considered for several years prior to its occurrence. His address followed the showing of motion pictures of the recent Harvard-Princeton football game.

He then discussed problems of his institution and outlined needs of the university. He mentioned the growth of Princeton after the war as one of the outstanding problems of the school, stressing the importance of increasing the faculty to meet with present needs of the university.

Dr. Hibben also made special mention of the necessity for raising a sum of $2,000,000 for the creation of a bureau of scientific research at Princeton, an additional million to be donated by the Rockefeller Foundation.

After paying $180,000 as bonus to its workers, a coal company in Ireland has presented $15,000 to the local Board of Guardians to buy new boots for needy children.

DRIVER ARRESTED ON HIT-AND-RUN CHARGE

Asserted to have run down Miss Florence Hughes of 1570 Murray Circle at Sunset Boulevard and Mohawk street last night, Wade Hopkins was taken into custody at his home by Detective Lieutenants Wilde and Chandler on a charge of failing to render aid. After the car struck the woman it was abandoned at a nearby corner, police stated. The detectives traced the car to Hopkins.

HUSBAND FINDS WIFE HANGED IN GARAGE

Believed to have been despondent over ill health since her arrival here several months ago from Denver, Mrs. Pauline Broomfield, 40 years of age, was found dead hanging with the belt of a bathrobe in her garage at 329 West One Hundred and Nineteenth street last night by her husband, James W. Broomfield. His wife was suffering from melancholia, Mr. Broomfield said. The body was removed to the City Morgue.

SUSPECT HELD HERE FOR SAN FRANCISCO

Robert Peterson, alias "Dutch" Burton, was taken into custody last night by Detectives Henry and Stajer of the Newton-street station for murder on a telegraphic warrant from San Francisco. He was arrested at 1658 West Ninth street and lodged in the City Jail pending communication with northern authorities. Details of the charge are unknown here.

APARTMENT-HOUSE BLAZES

A brisk blaze that police believe originated in a defective oil burner in the basement of the Hershey Arms, 2600 Wilshire Boulevard, yesterday afternoon, was extinguished by firemen after they estimated, it had damaged the premises between $2000 and $3000.

CAFETERIA INSPECTION TO COME UP

School Question Will be Subject of Conference by Officials Tomorrow

To determine whether public-school cafeterias must obtain a permit from the health department and be subject to inspection and sanitary control in the same manner as public restaurants, City Health Officer Parrish and representatives of the Board of Education will hold a conference tomorrow with City Prosecutor Friedlander.

One conference already has been held and continued to allow both sides to prepare further arguments and decided on a course of action.

The conferences follow an announcement by the city health officer that the school eating-places are under his jurisdiction so far as sanitary regulations are concerned. This statement, he said, was made after his inspectors visited several schools and found conditions that the health department feels it must remedy to protect the health of the children.

While considering this and other problems pertaining to health and sanitary conditions in the public schools, Dr. Parrish recently broadcast a letter to many other cities to learn school health work is as satisfactory under the jurisdiction of the boards of education as if it were under the health departments. The letter stated that the local schools have their own health department and it does not function as it should. Because children who have had various diseases are admitted without examinations and cultures of sore throats are not made, Dr. Parrish stated, he feels greater satisfaction would be obtained if the city health department had full supervision.

Attacking Dr. Parrish's communication on the ground that it is a first step toward taking over the health work of the city schools, Mrs. Helen Palmer, as secretary and treasurer of the Public School Protective League, asked the City Council to remind the health officer of his official duties and request him to confine his efforts to them.

WRIT FILED OVER TENTH STREET JOB

Validity of Proceedings to Open and Widen Artery Will be Tested

Seeking to determine the validity of the proceedings for the opening and widening of Tenth street, Judge Leslie Hewitt and Deputy City Attorney Robert Stahl have filed a petition for a writ of mandate with the California Supreme Court. A hearing on the writ should be set some time in March, according to Mr. Stahl.

Several years ago, property owners along Tenth street asked the City Council to open and widen the street from Burck Place, in the western section of the city to Ninth street, near San Pedro street, and thence along Ninth street, over the new bridge to the intersection of Indiana street and Mines avenue, to a uniform width of 100 feet.

This project is included in the major traffic street plan and was given the support of the Traffic Commission, as its completion will mean the addition of a new through artery across the entire city.

Although only a small percentage of the property owners protested the proposed improvement, several persons attacked the validity of the proceedings in court, and had them set aside on technicalities.

Property owners again asked the Council to start proceedings, and on the 6th inst., the new ordinance of intention was passed. In order to forestall any new attempt to upset the proceedings through court action, the City Attorney's office decided to institute a test case.

The Board of Public Works purposely refused to publish or post the notices of the impending improvement, so that a friendly test suit could be instituted. Anna Frank, one of the property owners involved, has now applied for a writ of mandate, to compel the Board of Public Works to proceed. At the hearing, all legal points under discussion will be taken up, so that the scope, purpose and validity of the opening and widening act of 1903, under which the Tenth-street proceedings were started, may be tested.

KNOW YOUR CALORIES WELL

For if You Don't and Try to Reduce, You'll Not Only Be Overstuffed, But Bulge, Osteopaths Told

Fat men and rather stout ladies who pine for streamline figures might have picked up some helpful hints yesterday from speakers who addressed the California Osteopathic Association at the Alexandria.

It is rank folly, according to Dr. Lorenzo Whiting, for any person of overstuffed design to indulge in reckless dieting, unless he or she knows his or her calories. Nor can satisfactory results be attained by starving, he said, because the stomach will not tolerate it. When the average fat person loses about five pounds, Dr. Whiting said, headache or other symptoms of distress develop, followed by gnawing hunger. A condition of acidosis comes next which can be relieved only by plenty of food. This puts the would-be reducer right back where he started; possibly heavier, he said.

Fat folks require less food than slender ones, the speaker explained, because of a layer of fatty tissue which retains the natural heat of the body. If one is determined to diet, he said, the only safe plan is to undergo an examination and follow the advice of an expert on calories.

The meeting was the sectional mid-winter session of the osteopaths' organization in Southern California. The northern group will meet at the Hotel Bellevue in San Francisco February 4, 5 and 6. The purpose of these meetings, as explained by Ernest O. Basher, publicity chairman, is to discuss the problems of the profession which arise in daily practice and to consider the human body as a power-producing engine.

ADDRESSES DELIVERED

The morning session included addresses by Dr. L. C. Chandler, Dr. Curtis E. Decker, an illustrated lecture by Dr. Wade Morris, Dr. Mary Decker, Dr. Eleanor G. Kaucher, Dr. Harriet Connor and several others.

Besides Dr. Whiting, others who addressed the afternoon session were Dr. Dale W. Thurston, Dr. Louisa Burns and Dr. Charles H. Spencer. The chairman of the program committee was Dr. Floyd L. Hanes.

The meeting closed last night with a banquet at which Alfred Cookman, A.B., M.S., of the biology department, Polytechnic High School, spoke on "California Birds." Dancing followed.

DANCER GOING EAST

Maud Allen, dancer, whose appearance was one of the features of last summer's Hollywood Bowl season, is leaving tonight at 6 o'clock for New York over the Santa Fe. She will be accompanied by Max Gordon, head of the New York booking offices of the Orpheum Circuit, and Mrs. Gordon.

Picture Film Will Answer 'What to Eat'

A motion-picture film intended to answer the question, "What Shall We Eat Today?" will be shown by the Fleischmann Company next Tuesday evening at the Elks' Hall in Huntington Park. Bakers throughout the Los Angeles territory have been invited to the showing.

In addition to the film several speakers will address the gathering, among them C. W. Freeman, Jr., D. B. McCarthy, J. C. Summers and Leo J. Newman.

DATES AND PLACES FOR POULTRY TALKS LISTED

The list reads: February 7, 10 a.m., David Lowe's Poultry Ranch, San Fernando; 1:45 p.m., Van Nuys High School, February 8, 10 a.m., Forbich's Hatchery, South Santa Anita; 1:45 p.m., Hogsett Ranch, Pomona. HUSBAND ACCUSED OF CHARGING SHE DRANK

One of the peculiarities of William Bennet Schenck, when in his cups, according to Mrs. Melbourne Franklin Schenck, was to imagine she was drunk: "Once he came over to me and said, 'You're drunk,' and slapped me," she testified before Judge Gates at the trial of her suit for divorce. Judge Gates held it was cruelty and granted her a divorce.

WRESTLER ENTERS BUSINESS

Walter Miller, wrestling instructor of the Los Angeles Athletic Club and former lightweight wrestling champion of the world, yesterday became a Los Angeles business man with the opening of his wall paper and paint store at 854 South Hill street. Miller has associated with him in his new enterprise, O. E. Gorman and A. M. Wood, experienced in the business. Miller will continue as wrestling instructor at the Athletic Club.

Speedway at Culver City, California

24 hour endurance test!

New ESSEX SUPER-SIX Sedan

travels 1295 Miles at an average speed of 53.85 Miles per hour

The car used was an Essex Super-Six 4-door sedan, stock equipped and standard in every particular. The car was never opened to its full speed capacity at any time during the run - it always had something in reserve. The timing was done by Mr. Sweet of the Western Union Telegraph Company and the count of miles traveled was entirely in the hands of the representatives of three Los Angeles newspapers. Could you ask for better proof of the stamina and speed of the new ESSEX SUPER-SIX?

At six o'clock Saturday morning, January 22nd, a new Essex Super-Six Sedan was sent away on a 24 hour endurance run at the Culver City Speedway. At six o'clock Sunday morning it was stopped having traveled 1292.5 MILES at an average speed of 53.85 MILES PER HOUR. No mechanical adjustments of any kind were made during the run. No stops were made except to add gasoline and oil and the motor was NEVER STOPPED even while adding fuel.

~then to the top of Mt. Wilson

As evidence that the long, hard grind had in no way impaired the perfect running condition of the Essex Super-Six, it was immediately sent from the speedway to make the climb up the steep grades to the top of Mount Wilson. That the stiff climb was made without even heating up the motor is ample proof that the motor was running perfectly and also proves that no high-speed gears had been put in for the speedway test.

TRUCK TRAFFIC CHANGE URGED

Protection of Pavements Aim of Allan's Plans

Residential Districts Held Impaired in Value

Councilman Asks Start be Made in Hollywood

To protect the city pavements on residential streets from the rapid wear, tear, damage and destruction by heavy truck traffic, Councilman Allan of the Hollywood district, announced yesterday that he had taken initial steps to work out a routing and restricting of truck traffic on through heavily paved arteries of travel. As a start to a plan of this kind for the entire city, Councilman Allan said he had been active in obtaining a truck routing for the Hollywood district. Councilman Allan in his statement said:

"Heavy truck traffic in the city of Los Angeles has been a problem to which much serious thought and attention has been directed for years.

"This has been especially true on the streets leading through or out of the Hollywood Hills. If this heavy traffic remains on these principal streets the objection would not be as great as at present, but when trucks are diverted to strictly high-class residence streets the damage to the streets themselves, the annoyance to property owners, the dust and general inconvenience is increased to such an extent that the desirability of these streets for residential purposes is seriously affected.

"After many conferences it was decided the Hollywood district was the logical place to start such a system. Study has been made of the various arteries leading out of the hills and the City Planning Commission has prepared a system of traffic maps which, when adopted by the Council in an ordinance, and which the City Attorney's office also has studied and is in agreement on the terms thereof, will, by its provisions, start in the city of Los Angeles a system of heavy traffic arteries which later will be continued by additional maps to the south and to the east.

"The additional question of zoning on a street where heavy traffic is permitted must be considered. The first question that must be determined is the establishment of the streets themselves. The others will follow as a natural result of the adoption by the city of the first traffic maps."

Left as a trust fund in 1798 for the care of a tomb in a London churchyard, the interest on $500 has accumulated until the trustees are puzzled as to what to do with it.

OFFICER BENNETT BURIED

Victim of Bandit Laid to Rest While Search for His Slayer Goes on Unabated

While the man hunt for his slayer continued unabated, funeral services were conducted yesterday afternoon for Police Officer Parley L. Bennett, killed by a bandit in the offices of the Brodin Millinery Company, Tuesday night.

More than 300 members of the police department, including Assistant Chief Murray, Inspector Taylor and other officials, attended the last rites for Bennett, which were conducted in Brown Brothers's Las Flores chapel, 925 West Washington street. A picked squad of traffic officers in uniform acted as pallbearers. Interment took place in Evergreen Cemetery.

Following the services it was announced by Inspector Taylor, who also is president of the Police Relief Association, that that organization already had given Mrs. Bennett, the widow of the slain officer, a check for $1000 covering his police insurance. In addition, the city will pay the widow half of her husband's salary until and if she remarries, or, in the event of her death, the sum will be paid to the two minor children of Bennett until they reach their majority.

Although several suspects were taken into custody yesterday for questioning in regard to Bennett's slaying, Chief of Detectives Cline admitted last night that the police had not yet captured the right man and lack definite clews on which to work. He declared, however, that the search, in which nearly 100 officers are engaged, will be continued indefinitely.

UNUSUAL CASE HEARD IN PLEA FOR DAMAGES

Miss Terry Tuttle is waging a suit against the Pacific Electric Railway before a jury in Judge Bishop's court under an unusual handicap. She seeks $32,000 damages for injuries sustained when she fell from the steps of a car just as it was starting, and the effect of the accident, she declares, was to make her memory of the immediately preceding events a complete blank. She is relying on testimony of eyewitnesses to establish that the car started with a jerk and threw her to the ground. The accident occurred March 2, 1926, at Huntington Drive and San Gabriel Boulevard. The case will continue tomorrow.

CITY CLUB HEARS PLEA FOR PEACE

Woman Speaker Tells of Conditions She Found in Balkans and Turkey

Praising the people of the United States for their scientific and political progress, Miss Josephine Schain, director of the Department of International Relations for the National League of Women Voters, addressing the City Club yesterday, declared that the world's need is for individuals and nations whose moral and spiritual self-control will enable them to organize the forces now working for the establishment of permanent peace.

MISS JOSEPHINE SCHAIN

"We pride ourselves on our education, our culture, our science, wealth and strength," said the speaker. "Why should we not take the lead in those movements calculated to abolish war and bring about that international harmony and understanding essential to the true progress of the human race?"

Discussing a recent visit to Europe, Miss Schain spoke of the trend toward better political, social and educational conditions in the Balkans, voicing special praise of Turkey.

"Polygamy has been abolished and not one woman in ten wears a veil when she appears on the street of Turkey," said Miss Schain. "I found more men there in sympathy with the feminist movement than in any other country I visited."

L. E. Moselle, secretary of the City Club, announced that Carrie Chapman Catt, founder and honorary president of the National League of Women Voters, will be the speaker at the luncheon on February 12.

C. M. H. Burleigh, chairman of the Brighton Arts Club, says Brighton artists never fail to have at least ten pictures annually at the Royal Academy. He attributes their success in part to the brightness of this section of England.

CLUB DECLARED CRIME SCHOOL

Five Officers of Boys' Organization in Custody on Burglary Charges With Apprehension of Others Scheduled for Next Few Days

Grief and woe have descended in cataclysmic fashion on the ranks of the Dare-Devil Club of Gardena.

For yesterday, just as the officers of the club were completing plans for their first annual "graduation" exercises, who should appear on the scene but a flock of peace officers accompanied by a patrol wagon.

And so the affairs of the club were temporarily suspended while the policemen took the five youthful officers of the organization into custody on charges of burglary.

According to complaints filed yesterday in Judge Archbald's Juvenile Court, the boys were conducting a school of burglary and took their first lesson at the Gardena schoolhouse, a lesson, however, which was not included in the every-day curriculum of that institution of learning.

Those named in the complaints filed yesterday are Elson Stafford, Edward Taylor, John Seely, Phillip Seely and Frank Lawa, and, according to Juvenile Court officials, a number of other youths of the community are scheduled to be taken into custody within the next few days.

In the first count against the boys, they are charged with having broken into the Gardena schoolhouse, from which place they were said to have removed a number of articles.

T. Tsuchiyare, a Japanese resident of Gardena, seemed to be a particular victim of the asserted juvenile crime school, according to the complaints, which stated his home had been broken into on three different occasions. Tsuchiyare told investigators the marauders took his kodak and jewelry and also robbed his children's toy banks. All of the boys taken into custody range between 10 and 14 years of age, according to the arresting officers. The boys are scheduled to come before Judge Archbald next week.

Parmelee-Dohrmann Store Established in 1878 Will Move to Flower Street

Established in Los Angeles forty-eight years ago, the Parmelee-Dohrmann Company, which now controls fifteen china, glass and silverware retail stores on the Pacific Coast, is completing preparations to move into the new eight-story building at 741-747 South Flower street. Seven years later he became sole owner, and finally retired in 1898, leaving the business in the hands of his brother, C. A. Parmelee, and F. W. Dohrmann. The firm at present occupies the entire six floors at 436-44 South Broadway.

The value of the city's park real estate was given in the inventory as $21,539,445, and the value of fire department equipment, $2,206,336.

As showing the continued increase in the value of city properties due to increased land valuations and to equipment purchased to meet the requirements of the increased population, the inventory showed that the city's land and buildings were worth at the close of the previous fiscal year $199,800,418, and at the close of the last fiscal year, $228,118,450, an increase of $28,314,032.

Deputy Controller Hawk, who has been in charge for many years for the Controller of the inventory of the city properties, lists and values each parcel of land, each building and every piece of equipment owned by the city from a pick and shovel to great electric power-generating plants and harbor docks and wharves.

funds is too great, no appeal for co-operation is too forceful.

COLORADO PROGRAM

"Little has been said tonight about that marvelous mine of potential wealth—the Colorado River. Giving us only the share that is due us, the Colorado with its possible contributions to our water and our power is worth more to us than anything else could be.

"The development of that source of water and power supply constitutes Southern California's first, paramount and never-ending job. The dam as now proposed seems to be submerged in politics.

"Irrespective of whom it may hurt, as well as whom it may help politically, let's get together to demand the building of that dam on the Colorado. In the name of the future and out of consideration for its encessities, let's take the Colorado out of politics and let's take politics out of the Colorado.

"Demand the dam and damn the demand as to who gets the glory!"

The tone of the entire banquet last night was based on the foundation of the slogan: Know Los Angeles, which was emphasized in the addresses of the evening. Immediately preceding Mr. Bledsoe's address, Retiring President Coffin delivered his farewell to the organization he headed during 1926, which he entitled "Activities of 1926." It was concluded with the introduction of the incoming president, Mr. Culver.

"The detailed report of the board's activities during 1926 is in the hands of the printer and the year has been ons in which co-operation has made it possible to attain high objectives; where united efforts have made a fertile field in which to harvest lasting accomplishments," said Mr. Coffin.

"The justified power, enviable prestige and universal good will of our organization, built during more than twenty years of its splendid history, now make it possible for us to foster measures that are national in their scope and thereby render a service not only to our members and our community, but to mankind.

"When the 1926 income-tax law was passed by Congress, it contained many features adverse to real-estate development; features discriminatory and almost confiscatory in their nature. Doubtless the founders of our board dreamed of the day when its voice would be heard and respected throughout the nation. To them the credit is due that such a day dawned. Los Angeles realtors took upon themselves the tremendous task of amending the laws of our government and so forcefully presented our pleas for relief to Washington that a conference of every major board in the United States resulted under national auspices and today more than 650 boards have thrown their combined power behind our position and a voice that cannot be denied the justice it seeks in taxation matters has been created for the first time in history.

SECOND TO CHICAGO

"In numerical strength our board stands today second only to Chicago among the realty boards of the world. Four hundred and twenty-three new members were admitted during the year, which multiplies by three the highest record previously established by the board. The gap between second place and first is fast closing.

"As I turn over the gavel to my successor I experience a feeling of personal sadness in relinquishing the office that has been so close to my heart, but I am overjoyed that it goes into the hands of such an able executive; a man whose personal record of success has its foundation in the field of hard work, long hours and great responsibilities; a man who in civic life is the most beloved citizen of our State by the 40,000 whose daily bread is dependent upon real-estate salesmanship. It is the rarest privilege to turn over the gavel to a man who rules the hearts of men—my good friend Harry H. Culver."

Mr. Culver accepted the gavel from Coffin with the following response:

"Certain moments of special happiness loom up in everyone's experience. This moment will forever remain in my memory, an epitome of faith and gratitude and friendship. You tonight have expressed faith in me, faith that I will do my utmost to perform the duties delegated to me by the members of your board. On my part, I have the greatest faith in the righteousness of the aims and ideals of public service for which our great organization stands. Most of all, I have unbounded faith in and gratitude for your warm, unstinted friendship.

YEAR OF PROGRESS

"This last year has been a wonderful year for our board—a year of progress and prosperity—of advancement and achievement. And throughout all of its activities there loomed large one personality. Every member of this board owes a debt of gratitude to George Coffin.

"Now comes another year—a new year—full of hope, ambition—determination. We may experience some difficulty finding new ways and methods of bettering our service, but nevertheless we embark on our voyage with hearts full of faith, hope and courage.

"Apparently, it looks as though there is nothing to do this year—everything is in such splendid condition; but traditional experience cautions us not to rest on our oars.

"The realtor who thinks only of himself and confines his energy and efforts to his own business, never has time to help the board, soon stultifies his abilities by his selfishness. Just as you owe a duty to your board, you owe a duty to your city. There is only one Los Angeles—the miracle city of opportunity. She has doubled her population in the last five years; made a proportional gain of 120 per cent in six years—the greatest gain of any city over 200,000 in the United States.

DESTINY STILL SMILES

"During that time we have passed such cities as Boston, Cleveland, Pittsburgh and St. Louis, and if we keep on at the same rate we will pass Detroit in five years and become the fourth city of the United States.

"In spite of the knockers, in spite of the unfair publicity, or the calamity howlers over here in the park who rewrite the Bible every day—destiny still smiles down upon us and says: 'Come on, boys, let's go—let's capitalize the character of our citizenship—let's broadcast our population, education, wealth and industrial activity—let's tell the story of our great resources, how the motion-picture industry is spending $200,000,000 a year, the oil output $250,000,000, our little old mudhole harbor is doing $1,000,000,000 a year—that our city power revenue has increased to $10,000,000.'

"It is these various things that indicate the solid foundation upon which our future rests. This is no time for gloom or fear or pessimism.—it is time to show that indomitable spirit of Los Angeles which is to smile, sing, work and fight. Let's be straight shooting, progressive realtors, with our feet on the ground and our eyes on tomorrow. And with brains, courage and industry help to shape the destiny of the greatest city in the world—our own Los Angeles."

COLLECTION DECLARED AUTHENTIC

Rumor Reflecting Upon Art Objects in Auction Refuted by Attorney

Concerning published reports reflecting upon authenticity of art objects on sale at an auction in Hollywood, Leonard Meyberg, attorney for the owner of the collection, made the following statement yesterday:

"My clients in offering to the public art objects from the Fernande de Conde collection are offering goods as represented and only as represented. When they say they are offering pieces from the famous Fernande de Conde collection from the Chateau de Biarge, France, they speak the truth. They never have contended that the pieces they are offering are from the Prince de Conde collection from the Chateau de Chantilly. Any statement to that effect is without foundation. Mr. Ratskowski and Mr. Sussman, sponsors and owners of the collection, have, in fact, brought a most remarkable collection of antiques to Los Angeles. It is true that there are copies of original pieces included among those offered to the public, but in each case there is a definite statement to that effect."

Mr. Meyberg exhibited various documents, including government-stamped bills of lading, to prove the origin and authenticity of the antiques and art objects offered.

RECORD OF BOARD FOR YEAR CITED

Retiring President Lists Achievements of Realty Organization in Report

High spots of accomplishment during 1926 of the Los Angeles Realty Board set out in retiring President Coffin's report, mentioned briefly in his address at last night's annual banquet at the Biltmore, show a year of widespread endeavor.

The board, President Coffin said, obtained from the National Association indorsement of new income taxation policies through a committee sent to Chicago for that purpose.

Measures approved included vocational training in public schools; bond issue for viaducts over railroad tracks; bond issue for veterans of the World War to acquire homes and sale of land in the tract belonging to the Sawtelle Soldiers' Home to the University of California, Southern Branch.

It urged the City Council to abandon the Wilmington five-park proposition; opposed spot-zoning for undertaking parlors in residential districts; indorsed the work of the California Development Association and Symphony Orchestra; appealed to the Board of Public Works to have the puncture vine eliminated and lent its aid in bringing "The Miracle" to Los Angeles.

Through its efforts a uniform schedule of commissions was adopted by nearly all real estate boards in the county. A member of the board served on the Telephone Investigation Committee. The board interested itself in behalf of the policemen's and firemen's salary increase.

It sponsored more stringent requirements for real estate subdividers and was host to members of the National Editorial Association during the convention here. The board's taxation committee co-operated with the County Assessor in checking assessments. Representatives of the board actively co-operated with the City and Regional Planning commissions, Chamber of Commerce and State Real Estate Commission.

During the year 423 new members were enrolled, setting a record. The board is but 200 members short of being the largest in the world. Nine members were elected to the board of directors of the State Association of Real Estate Boards and W. D. Cochrane to a vice-presidency.

Evangelist Makes Jest of Carmel Incident and Story of Desert Trek in Addressing Iowans

MOINES (Iowa) Jan. 29. (Exclusive)—Aimee McPherson aimed a of facetious laughter today at any fogs of Puritan suspicion lingering minds of Iowans as the residue of her long legal ordeal.

evangelist, speaking before the Club, an organization of , made a jest of the Carmel and Agua Prieta's torrid

ed a wonderful time riding your city," she told the club, splendid automobile you so ened me. But I am not par- I will ride in any kind of an automobile except a blue Chrysler coupe."

A blue Chrysler coupe was Kenneth Ormiston's car—the one mentioned in the accusations she refuted in California.

"In fact, I am not at all interested in radio men," she went on. "Not at all——. You gentlemen are Shriners and I have heard that one of your ceremonies is the crossing of the hot sands. Well, if your sands are as hot as those I staggered across near Agua Prieta when I returned from the kidnaper's shack, why, you surely suffer from callouses on your feet."

Fully 6000 persons packed the Coliseum this afternoon to hear the evangelist as she opened the second day of her three-day campaign here. But the tinplates circulated among the faithful and curious brought back only $235, an average of scarcely 4 cents from each member of the audience. Friday when Aimee packed 1500 persons in a smaller auditorium matinee and night and turned away several hundred others for lack of room the collections averaged about 8 cents apiece.

Ralph Jordan, the evangelist's manager, is far from optimistic over prospects of collecting the $1250 which he says represents the McPherson party's expenses for the Des Moines visit.

MAY BAN SMOKERS' PICTURES

SALEM (Or.) Jan. 29. (Exclusive)—Pictures of handsome young men smoking cigarettes may be banished from cigarette advertisements in Oregon. A bill has been introduced in the State House of Representatives which would prohibit the use of pictures of persons, either real or imaginary, in cigarette advertising. The sponsor of the measure thinks the signs lead boys to smoke.

WOMEN'S CLUBS NOMINATE

State Federation Chooses Mrs. W. W. Green of Northern District Over Protest of South

OAKLAND, Jan. 29. (Exclusive)—In what was reported to be one of the stormiest pre-election sessions ever conducted by the California Federation of Women's Clubs, the organization today nominated Mrs. W. W. Green of Biggs (Northern California district) for the State presidency.

The meeting was held behind closed doors in the Hotel Oakland, but the presence of strife within could not be downed after the session had been concluded.

Southern California women openly asked for the State presidency, it was reported, but the nominating committee, headed by Mrs. Robert Fisher of Carlotta, as chairman, ignored the southern delegation. The nomination of Mrs. Green was a surprise even to the northern delegation, it was reported.

Eyes of every club woman in the state were upon the meeting as the board went into session. It was presided over by Dr Marianna Bertola of San Francisco.

Today's nominations and the meeting which prompted them followed a called meeting of the Los Angeles District Federation of Women's Clubs Thursday, at which Mrs. James B. Lorbeer of anta Monica was named to make the run for the highest office in the State organization.

A resolution passed at that time as presented by Mrs. Charles S. McKelvey of Los Angeles, was read on the floor today by Chairman Fisher of the nominating committee. It read:

"It is moved that instructions be given Mrs. Urquhart (our member of the nominating committee) that she state to the committee that Los Angeles district feels deeply that the presidency should come to the South and that the northern district should wait two years, when the Los Angeles district will then support its candidate.

"Los Angeles district feels that Mrs. Lorbeer's name should go on the ballot uncontested.

"If the nominating committee will not accede to this then in the interests of harmony in the federation, the Los Angeles district will present Mrs. Lorbeer's name for vice-president-at-large provided that it goes on the ballot uncontested. Los Angeles district feels deeply that two years from now it will be in the field for the presidency."

With the reading, it was reported that a storm of arguments swept the committee room.

When the report of the nominating committee was returned, it was found that Mrs. Lorbeer had been nominated for vice-president-at-large.

State vice-president—Mrs. George W. Turner, San Joaquin Valley.

Vice-president-at-large—Mrs. J. B. Lorbeer, Santa Monica.

Treasurer—Mrs. S. S. Ripley, Alameda.

Auditors—Mrs. E. J. Wales, San Francisco district, and Mrs. George W. Wing, southern district.

Aside from Mrs. Fisher, chairman, members of the nominating committee were:

Mrs. J. E. Butterfield, Mrs. A. W. Wohlford, Mrs. Elon L. Warner, Mrs. W. D. James, Mrs. John C. Urquhart and Mrs. Cora N. Woodbridge.

In rendering the report, Mrs. Fisher declared the committee had acted with only one thought in mind, that of the general welfare of the federation.

Mrs. Lorbeer made no comment other than to say that she was in favor of some regulation by which the State presidency would alternate from the northern to the southern districts.

MAN POSING AS SLAYER ROBS PAIR

Bandit Declares Himself to be Officer's Killer; Many Homes Plundered

Outstanding among two score burglaries and a scattering of hold-ups reported to the police yesterday was the experience of W. G. Rockstroh, cashier for the F. T. Briles Tractor Company, and a woman companion, with a gunman who announced himself a the bandit-murderer of Police Officer Bennett.

Cashier Rockstroh and friend were seated in his closed car near Tesla Terrace and Armstrong avenue when the bandit opened the door and prodded Rockstroh in the ribs with a gun, demanding money and explaining his desperation by saying he was the much-sought slayer of Officer Bennett and had to have funds with which to escape. After forcing Rockstroh to drive to the vicinity of Silver Lake Boulevard, the gunman departed, taking with him the $36 his victim handed him. Subsequent search for the bandit proved futile. Rockstroh lives at 572 South Middleton street, Huntington Park.

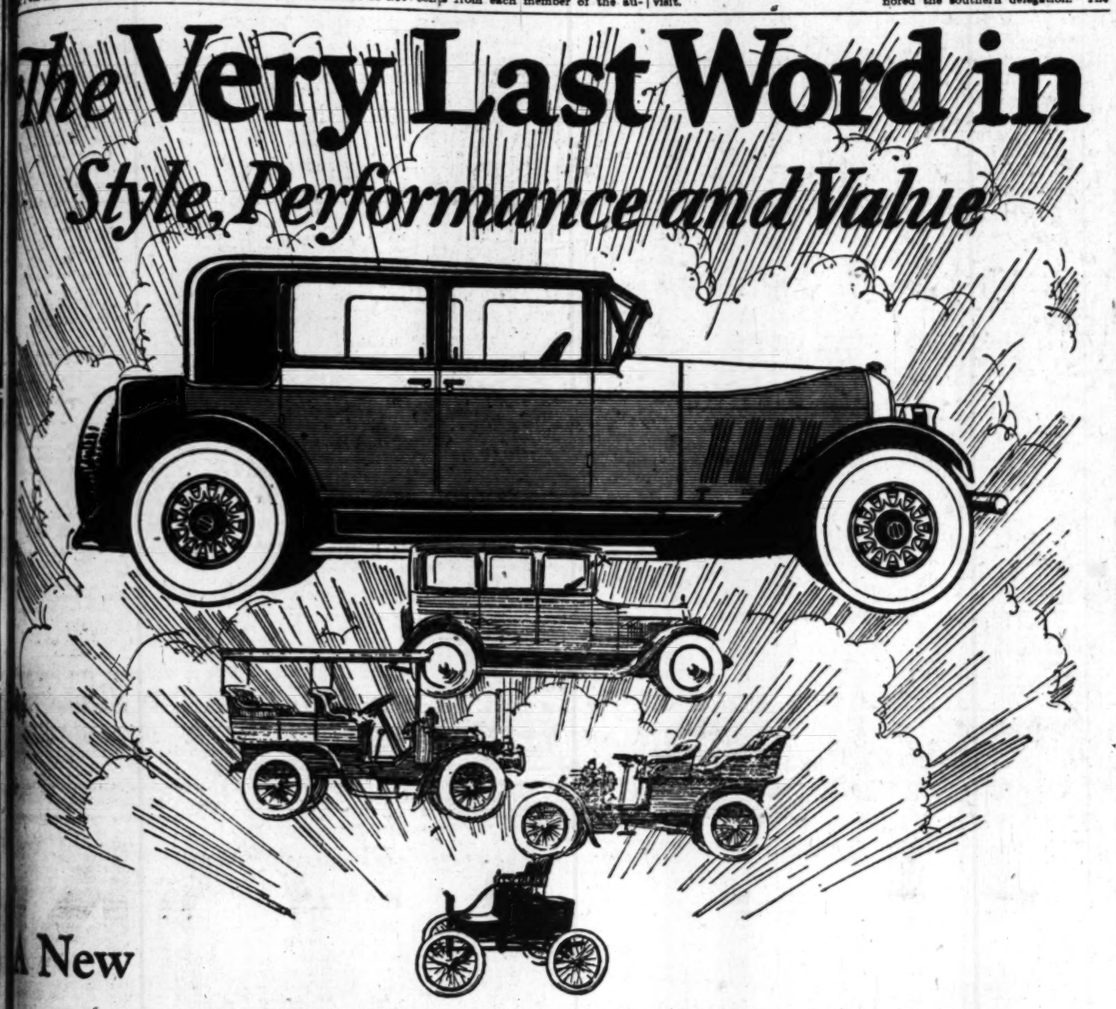
Heaviest loser of the burglar victims was J. B. McComb, who reported a negotiable check for $2254 and clothing valued at $300 taken from his room at the Huntington Hotel, 752 South Main street. The burglar took all of McComb's clothes save a solitary pair of trousers. Entrance was made with a pass key.

A lone armed bandit forced M. S. Misra, oil-station attendant at Fifty-fourth and Figueroa streets, to leave while the former emptied the cash register of $50 in cash and escaped. Two other bandits entered the home of Mrs. Pablo Urista at 6208 Reseda avenue, overpowered her and escaped with jewelry valued at $100.

Miss Lena Walker, Biltmore employee, reported an encounter with a thug on First street, between Olive street and Grand avenue. She was afoot when the man seized her, dragged her into an alleyway, and wrenched from her hand a purse containing $15. Miss Walker suffered minor bruises.

Victims of pass-key burglars were Mrs. A. C. Collins of 764 South Normandie street who reports the loss of rings valued at $1000; J. A. Nelson of 822 South Park View street, who suffered a loss of books and drapes valued at more than $1000; Mrs. Marion H. Clapesadell, a nurse at 2017 Charlotte street, who lost $300 in cash and jewelry and a fur valued at $500; Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Kramer of 5385½ South Vermont avenue, who slept so soundly they were not awakened by the actions of the intruder, later discovering the loss of clothing valued at $200 and approximately $135 in cash; Peter Droishaden, a resident at the Van Nuys Hotel who was burglarized of jewelry and cash estimated to have a value of $800, and V. H. Lockwood, patent and trademark attorney, whose home at 2007 Ocean View was plundered of a radio receiving set and clothing valued at $500.

The Very Last Word in Style, Performance and Value



A New

Straight Eight for Less Than the Better Sixes

Auburn has written the latest chapter in the history of automobile progress.

Written it, not as a forecast for "some day," but as an actual attainment, available now.

Written it, not as an experiment, but as a proven product. All possibility of dross has been removed by the white heat of experience. Only 100% unalloyed value remains. Proof of unequalled performance and excessive wearing quality is abundantly provided by irrefutable owner-evidence.

This new kind of automobile introduces a decided difference over contemporary types of cars.

Contrasted with the old-style high, top-heavy, clumsy designs of over-priced sixes it marks a new era as distinctly advanced as any fundamental improvement since the industry began.

Future improvements must date from this Straight Eight. Therefore, the extra advantages and satisfaction in driving this "pattern car" now, which others must imitate next year.

In appearance its distinction is undeniable; long, low and smart! No other car like it. You express your individuality.

In ease of handling, and in the way it performs, only a drive at any speed you choose can convey its truly remarkable difference over any car you ever drove before. We make no exceptions. The reasons for these claims are built into the car itself. Drive it—and if it does not sell itself, you will not be asked to buy.

NEWS OF SOUTHERN COUNTIES

EXERCISES MARK OPENING OF BALCH POWER PLANT

First Unit of Chain of Six to be Fed by Kings River Finished at Cost of $5,533,000

FRESNO, Jan. 29.—Consummating the first step in the $50,000,000 hydroelectric development project of the San Joaquin Light and Power Corporation on Kings River, sixty miles east of Fresno in the Sierras, the 40,000 horsepower Balch powerhouse was placed in operation today with appropriate exercises which were attended by several hundred guests from all parts of the State.

Peculiarly appropriate to the occasion was the fact that the actual starting of the plant was accomplished by A. G. Wishon, president of the power corporation, who in 1918 conceived the vast development project, while associated with A. C. Balch, Los Angeles engineer for whom the plant is named, and William G. Kerckhoff, Los Angeles capitalist in the management of the old San Joaquin Power Company, which they purchased as a bankrupt institution in 1902.

The day's program at the powerhouse site opened with a band concert, followed by luncheon served to approximately 1000 guests, and a program on which Ezra Decoto, president of the Railroad Commission of California, was the principal speaker. Others who spoke were A. C. Balch, A. Emery Wishon, general manager of San Joaquin Power and Great Western Power Company; Harold K. Fox, chief construction engineer on the project, and Henry Hawson, vice-president of the Fresno county Chamber of Commerce, who served as chairman of the day. In direct expenditure the Balch plant has cost $5,764,000, while incidental preliminary surveys have cost $569,000, and the company's private road into the mountains an additional $1,200,000, making the total cost of the entire project to date $5,533,000.

FIRST OF CHAIN OF SIX

Balch plant is the first of a unit of a chain of six power houses on the north fork and three on the west fork of Kings River, which ultimately will develop 495,000 horsepower of electrical energy. It is so constructed that it can eventually be expanded into a 160,000-horsepower unit, with the development of water-storage facilities.

A unique feature of this unit is that it is a stream-flow plant, and is not dependant upon storage of water of the river, the main stream of North Fork being diverted directly into the power house from a point four miles distant through utilization of a small diversion dam, a three-and-one-half-mile long tunnel and a 4482-foot penstock.

The tunnel, 19,350 feet in length, was cut through solid granite for all but 148 feet of its length. It is twelve feet square and receives the water of the stream directly from the diversion dam, and discharges it into Balch plant under a static head the plant. Through a sixty-inch pipe the penstock carries the water into Balch plant under a statis head of 2381 feet, the highest in America, and gives a static pressure of 1030 pounds per square inch at the bottom. To compensate for this tremendous pressure the lower 2448 feet of the penstock is reinforced with welded steel bands. The line is divided 280 feet above the power house into two lines reduced to forty-eight inches a short distance above the power house and enters the building under the river in two pipes of thirty-four inches in diameter and in this way motivates two 20,000-horsepower water wheels.

HOUSES FOR OPERATORS

Power is generated at 13,200 volts and is stepped up to 135,000 volts for transmission to the Sanger substation over a transmission line thirty-nine miles in length. The unit also includes seven modern fireproof cottages at Balch Camp, two miles from the power house, in which the station operators will be housed.

A noteworthy feature of the construction project, which has been under way in its major features less than two years, is that on the tunnel, which was driven by five crews working simultaneously for fourteen months, there was no serious accident, and no noteworthy delay because of accident or miscalculation.

Following a trip over the Kings River and its tributaries, in 1913, Mr. Wishon conceived the plan for harnessing the streams and putting them to beneficial use, and in 1917 preliminary surveys were made. It is a notable fact that the original plans have been maintained except in minor detail and will be used in future development. The North Fork was chosen for the preliminary development in preference to the West Fork, commonly known as Dinkey Creek, because of its greater advantages of storage capacity in upper elevations, close proximity to the valley and extremely steep grades for stream beds. More preliminary work was done in 1920, including the building of a road to the 7000-foot elevation, the site of the proposed Lake Wishon, much of the road being blasted out of the face of a solid mountain of granite.

BEGUN EARLY IN 1925

It was not until 1924 that the need for additional generating capacity led the company to lay definite plans for construction of the first unit, and early in 1925, it was started. The tunnel project was completed October 11, last, and the powerhouse unit finished and tested just a few days ago, clearing the way for the starting today of distribution of a greatly augmented supply of electrical energy to the homes, farms and industries of Fresno and the San Joaquin Valley as well as to the coast counties covered by the Midland Counties Public Service Corporation, a subsidiary of the San Joaquin Power.

Achievement of the end arrived at today is credited principally to Mr. Balch, and Mr. Wishon, whose optimism and technical knowledge of the situation, and foresight of the vast possibilities of expansion of the distribution of electrical energy were behind the development since they and their associates originally joined in the purchase of the bankrupt company, which with one small powerhouse on the San Joaquin River, was supplying light and power to the city of Fresno.

The company in its progress during the twenty-five years that Wishon has been its guiding head, first as general manager and later as president, has spread in all directions from Fresno until today, this crowning achievement is realised with the company serving ten counties, in a territory eighty miles wide and 200 miles long, in which there are approximately 75,000 consumers served by 6000 miles of transmission line.

DOG AND MAN GONE AFTER AUTO CRASH

TIPTON, Jan. 29.—An element of mystery was added to the collision of autos driven by C. R. Geust of Imperial Valley and Dr. A. W. Boucher of Tipton, Geust being injured and Boucher sustaining only shock and bruises, when Geust later insisted on a search being made for an "uncle" whom he declared had been riding with him at the time of the accident. No such person was found and it was believed that Geust's memory had been temporarily affected. One disappearance, however, was confirmed. Dr. Boucher's dog which had been riding with him in his car at the time of the crash could not be found afterward.

JUMP TOO SHORT

REDLANDS, Jan. 29.—Jumping from a two-story window did not save S. A. Coffman from arrest on a charge of petit larceny, for he was caught by the police later. When taken into court he pleaded not guilty and called an attorney. After advising with his attorney he entered a plea of guilty and Justice C. O. Potter sent him to the County Jail for thirty days. He stole some perfume and powder from Mrs. Robert Sproul.

WHOLE CROWD "TAKEN ON"

Man Sets Fire to Store Trimmings, Then Fights All Comers When Told to Desist

MONROVIA, Jan. 29.—Believed to have become temporarily insane, a man identified as J. M. Powell, 555 Seaside avenue, Long Beach, created a wild scene this morning in the Safeway store on South Myrtle avenue, when he picked up everything that he could lay hands on, threw it all over the store and street and attacked several people in the store.

According to the eyewitnesses of the scene, Powell walked into the store and set fire to paper decorations around the vegetable stand. When Bud Bortisser, proprietor of the stand, told him to "cut it out," Powell was said to have suddenly "gone mad" and picking up several apples, heaved them at Bortisser.

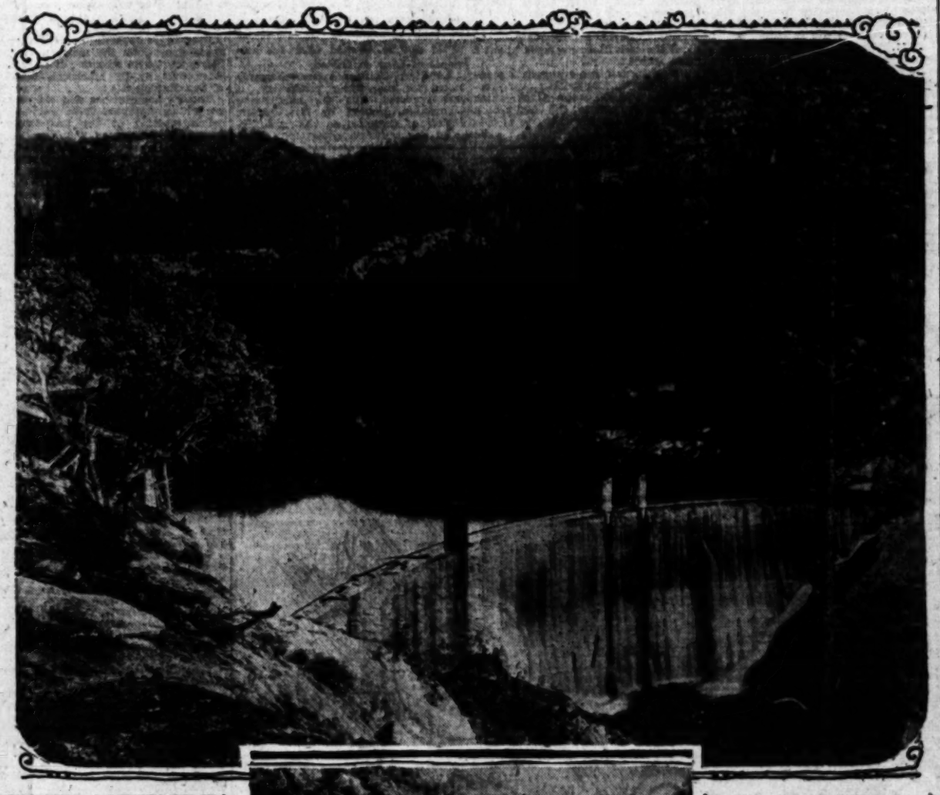
By this time he was furious and started to fight several men who attempted to grab him. One of the blows struck R. B. Hurtable, high school teacher, in the nose and inflicted a severe cut. He broke loose and before he was finally downed, had turned upside down a table laden with cakes and other food that was being sold by the American Legion auxiliary.

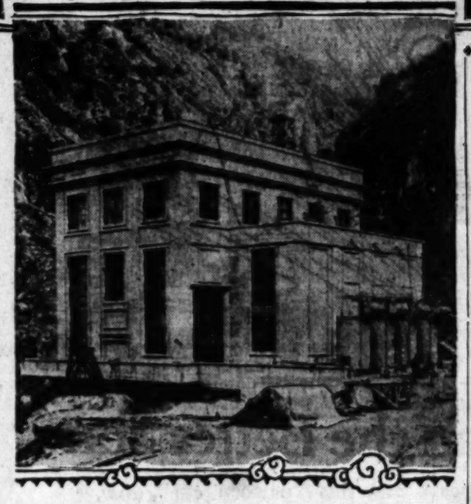
Police were called but before the officers arrived, five men succeeded in controlling him. Following an examination at the police station by Dr. E. R. Kelly, he was taken to the County Hospital by Chief Frank Scott and Motor Officer Ryan. Dr. Kelly stated that the man was suffering from a nervous breakdown and was near the point of insanity.

Powell was identified as a member of the Monrovia Elks' Lodge through a receipt for dues found in his clothes. A check-up with Elks' officials verified the fact that he was a member but none could remember ever seeing him at a meeting. The man also had an automobile certificate but all efforts by police to locate his car were futile. No information was obtained as to where he had been or why he was in Monrovia.

After he was taken to the police station, Powell calmed down but was still irrational. Before he was taken to Los Angeles, Powell made the following statement to Chief Scott: "Lock me up before I do something that I will be sorry for. I do not know what I am doing. I am not right."

New Hydroelectric Development Project Completed





Power Generated in Scenic Surroundings

Above—Balch diversion dam, 220 feet long at the crest and 85 feet high from bedrock, and sixty feet above normal level of Kings River. It is used to divert water of the north fork of the river through the Balch plant tunnel. Below—Balch power-house, first 40,000 horsepower unit of San Joaquin power development. Entire project contemplates development of 495,000 horsepower through nine power-houses on North and West Forks of Kings River. This unit, with penstock line, tunnel, highway construction and other incidental expense cost approximately $5,000,000. Much of the work, such as road construction, was in solid granite, making it permanent and available for future development. When the project is completed the highway, through one of the most scenic stretches of the Sierra, hitherto inaccessible to motorists, will be turned over to the county.

Record Crowd Marks Meeting of Valley Men

BRAWLEY, Jan. 29.—More than 130 persons from all parts of the valley were in attendance at the monthly meeting of the Associated Chambers of Commerce, held at the new Planters Hotel in this city last night, breaking all records for attendance since the organization of the valley-wide chamber.

Telegrams calling upon President Coolidge to use his influence to secure early passage of the Swing-Johnson bill were dispatched today from the associated body and by the Chambers of Commerce of six cities in the valley in accordance with the passage of a resolution to this effect passed unanimously.

The resolution also appealed to the people of the valley to wire or write President Coolidge asking him to secure passage of the bill during the present session of Congress.

J. J. Duell, manager of the law and utilities department of the California Farm Bureau, made a brief address. Sen. Robinson, president of the Imperial Valley Farm Bureau, gave a brief outline of the history of the valley bureau and announced the objective of the organization, one that was intended to aid the farmer in solving his many problems.

Assemblyman M. D. Witter made a short talk in which he explained the complexion of the present Legislature.

The next meeting of the Associated Chamber of Commerce will be held at Imperial during the latter part of February.

Youth Thwarts Attempt to Rob Pasadena Store

PASADENA, Jan. 29.—An unsuccessful attempt by a Mexican bandit to hold up the Fromm Kodak Shop at 965 South Fair Oaks avenue, was reported to police this afternoon.

According to Lloyd Fromm, 18 years of age, he was alone in the store when a roughly dressed Mexican entered, and, after looking at some cameras, suddenly drew a dagger from his pocket, laying it on the counter with a note demanding "all the money in the store."

Instead of complying, young Fromm ran to the back of the store to summon aid. At the same time the would-be bandit picked up his dagger and ran out the front door.

BOY FALLS OVER CLIFF

Child Member of Bible Class on Hiking Trip Drops 100 Feet, Striking on Boulder

PASADENA, Jan. 29.—Plunging 100 feet down the sheer bank of a cliff in Millard's Canyon northwest of Pasadena today, John W. Cowles, 8 years of age, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul R. Cowles of 2056 Fletcher avenue, South Pasadena, fractured his skull when he struck a huge boulder at the bottom of the canyon, and is expected to die.

The boy was a member of a Bible class at the Church of the Open Door, which left Los Angeles this morning for a hiking trip in the mountains. The accident occurred at the edge of the new Edison road in the canyon when young Cowles ran back to take another look into the canyon.

All other members of the party had passed the fatal spot when Paul Cowles noticed that his younger brother was missing. At the same time he heard a faint cry from the depths of the canyon and it became apparent that the younger boy had lost his footing.

Herbert Cassell, 3437 Macoe street, Los Angeles, and Vernon Miller of the Los Angeles Bible Institute, who were in charge of the party of six boys, struggled with young Cowles's body for about a half-hour in an effort to get it back up on the trail again. Finally they secured ropes, with which they accomplished the task.

The youth was then rushed to the Emergency Hospital here and later taken to the Pasadena Hospital. His father is a civil engineer and the boy was a student at the Onsonta Park school.

HUSBAND CONVICTED, WIFE PAYS

Man Pleads Guilty to Clear Woman of Charge Then She Gives Court $300 in Small Change as Penalty

REDLANDS, Jan. 29.—Though he very magnanimously claimed ownership of eighteen pints of bootleg whisky to keep his wife from going to jail and then decided to fight the charges, pleading that the liquor was not his, U. A. Valdez, restaurant owner of Third street, was found guilty by a jury last night. This morning he was fined $300, which Mrs. Valdez paid in small bills and silver and nickels and pennies, the total which she was able to raise being $299.95, and Marshal Walter Thomas being kind enough to throw in the extra jitney.

The officers raided the Valdez restaurant some time ago. For an hour they searched diligently, but found nothing. Then in an outhouse the flashlight of Officer John Stocker caught a glint through a knothole. He reached in his arm and brought out a pint of whisky. Then seventeen more of them.

On the stand Valdez swore that he could not speak or understand a word of English, although the officers all swore that he told them the whisky belonged to him and he had been selling it for $2 a pint. But he forgot himself and in the course of the trial shouted "I did not" at some of the testimony, and it was in good English. His wife and stepdaughter swore that the liquor belonged to one Juan who had a room at the Valdez home, but who has disappeared. Last name unknown.

E. W. Bartlett of Colton, attorney for Valdez, made a violent protest when the court made the maximum fine. He at once entered a plea of appeal, but Valdez refused to go ahead and asked his wife to get the money. She and the girl dug it up, all but the 5 cents, and the Chief of Police, who arrested Valdez, provided it.

The four Mexicali gins have produced 63825 bales, the governmental gin at Progreso has produced more than 1500 bales and approximately 200 bales produced on the north side of the border and ginned at Holeville or Imperial will bring the total well above the 65,000 mark.

Magee, veteran Pasadena attorney, suggested today that the city appoint a board of arbitration to fix the amount of damagase to be paid victims of the accident.

Two Held for Trial Charged With Shooting

RIVERSIDE, Jan. 29.—Held under bond of $10,000 each, Leonard Trivitt, 23, and Huston Rye, 28, are lodged in the County Jail charged with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to commit murder. The pair were brought from Blythe by Deputy Sheriff Munger where they had been taken for arraignment.

Both were arrested in El Centro a few hours following a shooting affray in which "Shorty" H. M. Lein was shot in the leg and relieved of fifty gallons of high-grade liquor. The liquor was declared to have been found with the supposed hi-jackers when arrested in El Centro. Lein was a well-known character of Blythe, proprietor of the Lee Hotel.

The hi-jacking battle was conducted at 3 o'clock last Saturday morning. Trivitt is said to go, also by the name of Leonard Babcock, and is believed, at the time of the assault to have been in company with a brother, Carl Babcock, as well as Rye, variously known as "Red" Rye, "Split-lip" Rye and "Keno Red." The case will be carried to Superior Court as soon as Dist.-Atty. A. Ford receives the information from the Blythe court.

NEW BOMBSHELL HURLED

Murder Case Defendant Quoted by State Witness Over Protest in Bakersfield Trial

BAKERSFIELD, Jan. 29.—Dist.-Atty. Ray Bailey released another bombshell for the State during the rebuttal of defense testimony today in the murder trial of Odd Cornell, held for the double slaying of his wife and stepdaughter here. Over the concerted objections of Attorneys Paul Garber and James Reavis for the defense, Attorny Edward West, formerly assistant District Attorney of the county, was allowed by Judge R. B. Lambert to testify to statements made by Cornell during his arraignment held in the County Hospital.

Cornell was told, somewhat ironically at the time, that there are only three steps to the scaffold at Folsom.

Cornell's reply to this was quoted as follows: "That's all right. They'd hang me at San Quentin because this is my first time up and they always send you there first."

With the conclusion of the hearing Judge Lambert ordered a continuance until Monday morning.

It is probable that the case will be considered by the jury Tuesday, unless something unforeseen develops.

JUDGE COX ESTATE IN COURT SUIT

Legacy of Strife Left by Famous Fighting Jurist of Orange County

SANTA ANA, Jan. 29.—The late Judge John B. Cox, famous fighting magistrate, whose career was a reign of terror to violators of the law, left a legacy of strife.

His estate, left in trust with a Santa Ana bank, is the subject of a court battle rivaling some of the big court fights that gladdened the heart of the old warrior in former years.

Judge Cox's will has been attacked by his children, through Mrs. Mary Cox Emerson, a daughter, whose petition for "proper distribution" of the estate is being opposed by the Orange County Trust and Savings Bank, trustee of the estate. The matter was heard late yesterday by Superior Judge Homer G. Ames, who ordered briefs submitted and fixed February 25 as the date for resuming the hearing. Oral argument is expected at that time.

The Cox estate is valued at $80,000, of which half is concerned in the will contest, that portion representing the late magistrate's community share. The will directed that the widow should receive the income from the entire estate during her lifetime and that at her death it should be distributed to the four children at the rate of $25 per month to each.

Mrs. Emerson, principal of the Pasularino school, filed the petition for "proper distribution" through Attorneys William F. Menton and S. B. Kaufman on the ground that the will creates a perpetuity and "suspends the power of alienation of real property for a period of time longer than the lives in being at the time of the testator's death."

In other words the attorneys explain the small rate of distribution means that the estate would not be fully distributed during the life of any of the heirs. This prospect is made more certain, it is argued, because the will provides that in the event of the death of one of the heirs the share of that heir shall go to the heir's issue, thus dragging out the distribution. The four heirs affected by the trust are Mrs. Emerson, Elaine Cox of Santa Ana, R. D. Cox, whose home is in Northern California, and Bruce Cox, who resides in the East.

The Orange County Trust and Savings Bank is opposing the petition and defending the trust. Attorney A. P. Nelson represented the bank at yesterday's hearing.

Lowe is a bond salesman and has lived in the city eight years. Heskett is a printer and has been a resident of Pasadena for eighteen years. Both live in the First District.

OLIVE MEN REORGANIZE

Plans Under Way Whereby Sylmar Corporation Will Do Packing and Selling of Crop

FRESNO, Jan. 29.—Reorganization plans of the California Olive Association, Inc., the co-operative whose permit to operate was granted by the State Corporation Commissioner, were under way today at a meeting in Madera at which the campaign was outlined.

The features of the campaign as planned by the association are as follows: No one except growers to hold stock in the new concern and then upon a basis of acreage of olives owned; an eight year co-operative packing and selling arrangement with Sylmer Packing Corporation of San Fernando; the retention of the association's brands; the sale of the association's olives to be made through both the association and the packing concern; the packing concern to sell to the association's brands at cost, each ton of olives delivered by growers to the olive packing concern to be credited to the olive grower in the payments the first year to be applied on the growers' contracts for packing costs and the balance of the payments to be a credit on the growers' balance due after deducting packing costs, the packing corporation to pay all expenses of the olives; deliveries to be made to the packing concern as the olives mature, then shipped to the association and packed by the packing concern on an agreed basis, the packing concern to be paid growers only on the basis of the grade and size of the olives.

In outlining the plans, Jim E. Jones, president, said: "We are going to have the largest concern in the olive business in the world and we are going to be responsible and capable of doing the best for our members. We already have the confidence of the growers and we are going to keep it. We have the olives from which to make a success of the business and we have the acreage to supply the demand. We have the facilities to handle the crop and all phases of the business. The association has all the machinery and equipment it can extend its operations to any degree necessary to meet the demand. Its reputation is established and it is backed by thousands of dollars of capital."

"The element of the packing and selling is the main problem and this we have been able to solve. We have been able to place our product and have the part of the business that takes care of it a good profit."

President von Hindenburg, who is a great stickler for upholding the dignity of the Presidential office, readily acceded to the request for withholding Herr Graef's commission when told of the incident in 1924 in which Graef refused to pay the customary call of respect on President Ebert when the new Reichstag elected officers, including Graef as Vice-President.

QUEEN OF CHINATOWN SLAIN

San Francisco Police Watching "Little Canton" for War Following Murder of Tong Favorite

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 29. (AP)—Ham Leong, the butterfly of Little Canton, is dead by the hand of some murderer. She was found in her silky, perfumed boudoir today with a pair of thin barber's shears thrust deep into her chest. All of her rich jewels were gone.

The killing of Ham Leong was no ordinary murder. She was the best-protected woman in Chinatown, because she was the favorite of a tong.

big Cantonese gunman padded along behind her wherever she went on the streets and guarded the door of her boudoir. But some wraith-like nemesis slipped by him last night, armed with a pair of barber's shears.

Not far away from the perfumed death room, now heavy with the reek of dead incense, is Waverley Place "street of the Temple of Heaven," Sullivan Alley, St. Louis Alley and all of the old tong battle grounds. They are being watched by an eagle-eyed police squad today, for the death of Han Leong may mean many a shot in the dark if the tong that she favored follows the age-old tradition that the score shall be evened.

The death of "Chinatown's queen" was evidently wrought for purposes of robbery. She always appeared with the glitter of a dozen rings on her fingers, with a diamond-studded watch that cost $300 and with a necklace with diamond pendant that must have cost $700. None could be found today.

SPY SYSTEM OF DRYS DEFENDED

Andrews and Blair Appeal for Continuance

Enforcement Handicapped by Lack, Says Report

Present Conditions Likened to Those of War

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29. (AP)—In a supplemental report sent today to the Senate, the Treasury Department said that prohibition enforcement would be handicapped "almost to the point of failure" without employment of undercover methods and "the willingness of government servants to become identified with law violators in order to unearth their secrets."

The report set forth the views of Lincoln C. Andrews and Commissioner Blair of the Internal Revenue Bureau. It reached the Senate a few days after Secretary Mellon, responding to a Senate resolution, had disclosed some of the "undercover" activities of prohibition agents, and had advised the Senate that they were directed only against major commercial violators, were not looked on with favor by the department, and would have to be kept within the law.

COMPARED TO WAR TIMES

Comparing present conditions to those prevailing in times of war, today's supplemental report warned that prohibition must have the united support of public opinion and a well-organized intelligence service.

"Conspiracies are nation-wide in extent," the report said. "They are in great numbers, organized, well financed and cleverly conducted.

"No parallel of this situation exists in normal times. It is similar, rather, to war.

"Our efforts must be nationwide and as thoroughly organized. We are in particular need of a highly developed department of intelligence to keep the forces of society informed as to the personnel and methods used by lawbreakers. We cannot defeat a force as to whose numbers, organization and methods we are in the dark."

SPIES HELD NECESSARY

Secret service work is as necessary to the successful enforcement of these laws as it is for the enforcement of the laws against counterfeiting or similar crimes. Even more important is the existence of a public opinion which will sustain the morale of the government agents.

"It is neither necessary nor desirable that these agents engage in any illegal practices or entice others to do so. But it is necessary that agents be employed who are qualified and to act as spies with the opposing forces. No one likes the idea but it is as essential here as it is in war in order to gain necessary intelligence secret service methods and undercover men are absolutely necessary if the prohibition law is to be enforced. This is a fact which the public and their representatives must face. The alternative is lax and ineffective enforcement of the law."

NEW BOBBED VENUS SOUGHT

Discoverer of One Lent to Berkeley School Plans Another Search in Holy Land Excavations

BERLIN, Jan. 29. (AP)—The bobbed-hair Babylonian Venus discovered in Palestine last year and at present reposing in the administration building of the Pacific School of Religion in Berkeley, Cal., must soon return to her old home in the Holy Land unless another one is discovered in excavations which will be renewed shortly.

Dr. William E. Bade and Maj. William Gotshall, American archaeologists who discovered the Venus, are now in Berlin en route to Palestine to renew their work.

The little terra cotta head of the Venus, found in the 4000-year-old city of Mizpah, certainly has a counterpart somewhere, says Dr. Bade and he is determined to find her if possible. The Venus is a splendid specimen of what Jeremiah called "the Queen of Heaven" and went to California only temporarily on the understanding that she would be returned at any time the authorities decided.

The archaeologists of Palestine now have decided that the bobbed Venus has been away long enough. Dr. Bade persuaded them, however, to permit her to stay at Berkley a while longer during the resumption of his excavations when he is confident he will unearth another just as good.

The "bobbed Venus" is a well-modeled head of Astarte, or Babylonian Venus, whose coiffure resembled the modern style of hair trimming, even to bangs. She has very large eyes, a prominent forehead and scientists assume that the head represents a style of hair dressing of 750 B. C.

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 29. (AP)—Ray Arnold's wish that the rope by which he was hanged at Folsom prison yesterday for the murder of a Japanese woman be cut into thirteen pieces and a portion sent to each juror and the District Attorney who served at the trial, may be granted.

The rope is being preserved in a box by Warden J. J. Smith and he will present Arnold's wish to the State Board of Prison Directors at their next meeting at Folsom February 12, next, for their direction as to its disposal, he announced yesterday.

Arnold expressed his wish in a dramatic speech before spectators just a minute before he was hanged.

LEO LOMSKI ARRESTED IN LIQUOR CASE

Boxer and Friend Pay Fine in Oregon on Charges of Possessing Liquid

EUGENE (Or.) Jan. 29. (AP)—Leo Lomski, boxer, and Pat McNeal, were arrested here today on liquor-possession charges. Lomski paid a fine of $50 and McNeal, $75 when they entered pleas of guilty before Judge Wells in Justice Court.

Lomski and McNeal, with another man and two women were traveling north from Los Angeles in two cars. The party stopped here overnight and left today for the north. The arrest was made just outside the city limits, and after the fines were paid the party continued on its way.

Lomski said he was bound for Aberdeen, Wash.

Prohibition officers who made the arrest this morning stopped at the same hotel at which the Lomski party stayed. The prohibition officers said that they suspected liquor possession and when the Lomski party started for the north the two cars were followed by the officers.

The five members of the Lomski party were brought back and after a short hearing before the District Attorney, Lomski and McNeal went to Justice Court and entered their pleas of guilty.

The pugilist thanked the officers for their courteous treatment, seeming not in the least chagrined. He gave one of the officers, Frank Carroon, two pictures, signed with his name and best wishes.

Lomski said that he was in a hurry to get to Aberdeen, where a "homecoming" welcome awaited him in celebration of his ten-pound victory over Tiger Flowers on the 22nd inst.

The names of Lomski and McNeal were the only ones mentioned in court. The third man in the party is said to have been a sparring partner of Lomski.

BY HOWARD C. KEGLEY

The Marland Oil Company's Bixby No. 4 well, which has been fighting bottom water for the past three months, began flowing into the tanks yesterday at the rate of about 1000 barrels a day, according to field reports. The well was flowing by heads, and had not cleaned up sufficiently to determine definitely whether its troubles were over, but appearances indicated that the water problem apparently had been solved.

This well made about 2500 barrels a day on its initial production test, but it was killed and drilled deeper, picking up the water zone which has been giving trouble ever since.

The Selover No. 2; which the Marland Oil Company completed on Friday morning at the rate of 2400 barrels a day, continued to show the same rate of output, and had cleared up completely, it was said. At first the well showed a cut of about 10 per cent, but this soon cleared up to about 4 per cent and by Saturday had disappeared altogether.

The Marland has another well which is expected to be on production by tonight, this being Bixby No. 5, which started swabbing on Saturday. Bixby No. 6, which was on production once, but developed water trouble, probably will drill out for a production test by the end of the week.

Hits Gray Sand

The Standard Oil Company, which effected a successful water shut-off in its San Gabriel No. 1 well at about 4480 feet, has reached a depth of almost 4600 feet, and has been in gray sand and barren shale almost from the shoe of the casing, according to field reports.

The San Gabriel No. 1 when it drilled out is said to have penetrated about ten feet of oil sand, and that was all. This oil sand is supposed to represent the Bixby zone in this area, and its thinness is taken as an indication that it probably will pinch out altogether before the formation reaches the Petroleum Securities Company's Naples well on the northwest end of the structure.

Gets Some Oil

The Smith Brothers' wildcat well on the Lawndale structure, which has been swabbing and pumping and baling for about six weeks is still unable to go on regular production, although the various methods of testing have demonstrated the presence of oil in considerable quantity, according to field reports. During the last week by swabbing and pumping the well is said to have made about 100 barrels of oil, which is more than any other project in this general district has succeeded in getting.

Geologists who think a field may be found in this locality, and they are not as numerous as those who think there won't, believe that the Smith well, while it may turn out to be a commercial producer, may be nearer the productive portion of the structure than any previous well.

Oil Exports

Figures compiled by the American Petroleum Institute indicate that receipts of California oil at Atlantic and Gulf Coast ports for the week ended the 22nd inst. totaled 248,000 barrels, a daily average of 35,000 barrels, against 379,000 barrels, a daily average of 54,143 barrels for the previous week, and a daily average of 76,643 barrels for the four weeks ended the 22nd inst.

Imports of petroleum at the principal United States ports for the week ended the 22nd inst. totaled 1,016,000 barrels, a daily average of 145,143 barrels, compared with 1,140,000 barrels, a daily average of 162,857 barrels for the previous week, and a daily average of 160,857 barrels for the four weeks ended the 22nd inst.

Production Estimates

The American Petroleum Institute estimates that the daily average gross crude-oil production in the United States for the week ended the 22nd inst. was 2,388,650 barrels, as compared with 2,391,000 barrels for the preceding week, a decrease of 2350 barrels. The daily average production east of California was 1,782,050 barrels, as compared with 1,790,500 barrels, a decrease of 7450 barrels.

In California, Santa Fe Springs is reported at 47,000 barrels against 43,000 barrels; Long Beach, 93,000 barrels, no change; Huntington Beach, 93,000 barrels against 92,000 barrels; Torrance, 26,000 barrels, no change; Dominguez, 19,000 barrels, no change; Rosecrans, 12,500 barrels, no change; Inglewood, 39,000 barrels, no change; Midway-Sunset, 90,500 barrels, no change; Ventura avenue, 54,300 barrels against 55,000 barrels, and Seal Beach, 10,300 barrels against 9500 barrels.

RUBBER MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 29. (Exclusive)—Prices on the outside crude rubber exchange continued at their former market portion in the short session today. Local was quoted at 20¼c. Cables from London were bearish, but the majority of the traders were contented to carry their stocks over the week-end.

London closed off 1/16d at 15d. The stock increase for the week is placed at 1300 to 1600 tons. The primary markets continued quiet, in view of the approach of the oriental holidays.

Wheat Prices Unchanged to Shade Higher

CHICAGO, Jan. 29. (Exclusive)—Wheat prices held within a range of ¼@¾c, with trade largely of a local character, and while there was a small dip early, the finish was within a fraction of the top, with prices unchanged to ⅛c higher. May closed at 1.43@1.43¼. July 1.38 and September 1.34¾. Corn was ¼@¼c higher, with May 81¾, July 84¾@84¾ and September 86¾@86¾. Oats finished unchanged to ⅛c lower, with May 48¼ and July 42, while rye was ¼c lower to ⅛c higher, with May 1.06@1.06¼ and July 1.04¾.

Grain markets fluctuated in an erratic manner the past week, with wheat and rye stronger and coarse grains easier, wheat being 1¼@2⅛c higher at the last, as compared with the finish of the previous week, and rye was up 1¼@2¼c, with corn unchanged and oats ¼@⅝c lower. Lard gained 17½@22½c for the week, with ribs up 10c to 1.12½ and bellies unchanged to 13½c higher.

Weakness in Liverpool, which was off ¼@⅝d in the face of fewer Argentine offers, had demoralized here at the opening, but around 1.41¼ for May wheat there was buying by commission houses, the same as Friday, which absorbed the surplus in the pit, and caused a fair rally. The buying failed to follow the upturns, however, and locals were somewhat inclined to sell on bulges.

Export demand was less active, although sales of wheat to all positions aggregated 800,000 bushels, including some red winter to France. Premiums on spot wheat here and at the gulf were little changed, with hard winters at Omaha to lower. Mild weather has broken up country roads and offerings at interior Kansas points were smaller. Reports regarding flour trade were decidedly mixed, with Kansas City mills grinding full time.

Corn was slightly easier early, but firmed up later on buying by local bulls, and the close was at the top, after a range of ¼@⅝c for the day. Press messages from Washington indicated that the McNary-Haugen bill had a good chance to be passed by Congress, and had some effect. Mild weather is restricting movement in the interior, but the country offerings to arrive were somewhat heavier, with 65,000 bushels booked by local handlers. There was 35,000 bushels sold here to the seaboard for export, and the seaboard asked for offers at Missouri River markets for shipment to the gulf.

Hearing orders to buy May oats around 43 were in evidence, but the market rallied fractionally after being easier early on scattered liquidation. Trade in the aggregate was light.

Trade in rye was active, with profit-taking on in the May early, while the break brought in a good class of buying, headed by houses with eastern connections. A little rye was sold at the seaboard for export.

Trading in lard was mainly in evening-up January contracts, packers and carriers buying it and selling the May. Otherwise interest was limited, and the range of prices small. January and cash held clear of 13.50, a gain of 25c. Other futures were unchanged. January ribs closed 25c higher at 17.05, and May was 5c lower. Bellies were unchanged to 5c lower.

DOLLAR HEAD AT WHEEL OF LINER

Veteran Arrives on Bridge of President Lincoln

Start of New Orient Service Honored by Presence

Venerable Skipper Vigorous and Fiery as Ever

The arrival of the liner President Lincoln with the rising sun yesterday, a momentous occasion because the big ship is here to inaugurate the Dollar Line's new trans-Pacific service, was marked by the presence of Capt. Robert Dollar, himself, at the wheel.

"Just to see if my hand is as steady as it was half a century ago," chuckled the most picturesque personality in American shipping. Incidentally he is one of the most successful, too, with scores of great ships that are making the $ sign on the smokestacks almost synonmous with the American flag, around the world.

Now he has come to pay full homage to Los Angeles as a new trade giant and to inaugurate out of this port a huge new trans-Pacific service with nine of the finest, fastest liners in all his fleet.

At 83 years of age, the venerable one is laying out trade-blazing plans to take him yearly around the world for ten years to come.

"After that, well, there'll still be plenty work to be done." There still is fire in the captain's eye, and the halls of Washington still echo with his battle cry, for the government's treatment of shipping doesn't always please the captain, and he minces no words about it.

"What is the greatest need of American shipping?" the captain was asked.

HITS AT CONGRESS

"Laws permitting us to compete on equality with foreign rivals," was his prompt rejoinder, adding: "They talked of a government subsidy recently. Did they give it? Instead they imposed a 50 per cent tax for repairing our ships in foreign ports. We pay 23 per cent more tonage tax in China and excess pilotage, because we measure a ship greater than foreigners."

In the face of these obstacles, however, and while other American lines are finding difficulties overwhelming, the expansion of the Dollar Steamship Company has never faltered. Today a great fleet belts the world; two more cover the Atlantic and Pacific, and the new trans-Pacific service to be inaugurated by the departure of the President Lincoln tomorrow will see nine more great passenger and freight steamers crossing the Pacific on regular fortnightly schedules from Los Angeles.

Although Los Angeles' present trade attracted his fleets here, the future possibilities, he said, are unlimited not only here, but all up the Pacific Coast to Vancouver.

CHINA SITUATION

China's turmoil he minimized as merely a strike mob's brawl. "Passenger travel there hasn't dropped one iota, but exaggerated reports have impaired freight from the States materially. My son, Harold, now in the Orient, has been reported fleeing China. 'Tis a canard. I just got a cable from him advising against even putting war-risk insurance on the ships as a pure waste of money. Every day I get cables from our offices in Hankow, Tien-Tsin, Shanghai, but they never think enough of the purported strife to mention it."

The captain as president of his company, and his daughter, R. Stanley Dollar, vice-president and general manager, will be guests of honor at a banquet at the Alexandria Hotel tomorrow night as the Chamber of Commerce's crowning event of Foreign Trade Week. He and Mrs. Dollar will return to San Francisco by train Tuesday.

HARBOR DECORATED

Today's Foreign Trade Week program will commence with the special observance in the churches for international relations day and at the harbor the streets of Wilmington and San Pedro as well as all the ships in port, will be dressed in gay colored pennants for the reception to the general public. In addition to the President Lincoln, which will inaugurate the direct oriental service with her departure tomorrow, the S. S. Hemdyk Holland-American Line; M. S. Canada, Johnson Line; M. S. Silverpine, Kerr Line; S. S. West O'Rowa, Oregon Oriental Line; M. S. George Washington, Norway-Pacific Line, and the S. S. Emma Alexander, Admiral Line, all of which are engaged in trade with foreign countries, will hold open house from 11 a.m. until 4 p.m.

Foreign Trade Week will be officially closed tomorrow night following the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce dinner in honor of Capt. Dollar, which is to be held at the Alexandria for members and shipping men. A ceremony is also planned in connection with the departure of the President Lincoln tomorrow afternoon, and prior to the sailing hour a private reception for members of the Chamber of Commerce will be held on board.

RECORD PASSENGER LIST ON HONOLULU LINER

The liner City of Los Angeles carried out the biggest number of passengers ever departing this port for the Hawaiian Islands, when she sailed out of Los Angeles Harbor yesterday noon with 355 paid admissions aboard. Of these, 350 were first-cabin passengers.

A singular feature of the travelers embarking was that 150 of them were booked through the Chicago offices of the Los Angeles Steamship Company, while an equal number made reservations for the trip through the company's New York agencies. Practically all the sailorcary fare scheduled for return passage on the same ship.

The heavy eastern bookings have an especial significance, it was said by Harry Chandler, general manager of the company, as they indicate the easterners are to think of Hawaii is now thinking of Los Angeles as a port of embarkation, a tremendous asset to this port and this steamship company.

Although the sailing yesterday was a record, equally heavy bookings are scheduled on every vessel departing here for the islands until late in the spring, according to Bob Cullen of the passenger department, and a special cruise excursion already is being talked for a couple of months hence.

Heads of a number of nationally known business concerns are making the passage with their families, and Norman Ross, second in the Catalina channel swim a few weeks ago, is aboard, as John Mrs. Ross at Honolulu.

Two bridal couples embarked, Cecil Mason and his bride, formerly Miss Jane Nesmer, who were wedded in Venice yesterday morning, and Victor Forve, who was united the day before to Miss Helen Dakin, a local society girl, at the latter's home. Others included F. Clarke, president of the Fleischmann Yeast Company of Chicago; E. L. Peace, vice-president of the Royal Bank of Canada at Montreal; Mrs. Urie Heston, wife of the secretary of the International Mercantile Marine of New York; Sherman Sexton, vice-president of the Great Lakes Transit Corporation at Buffalo; W. J. Jackson, chairman of the executive committee of the Chicago and Eastern Railroad; S. Felton, chairman of Chicago Great Western Railroad, and W. B. Walbridge of the Owens Bottling Factories of Toledo.

One and one-half million dollars will be spent by the Dollar Steamship Company in Los Angeles Harbor yearly hereafter just on routine items, like first oil, provisions and supplies, it was announced yesterday by W. K. Ashman, purchasing agent for the company. Ashman accompanied Capt. Robert Dollar and other line officials from San Francisco to Los Angeles on the inaugural sailing of the President Lincoln, first of nine liners in the new trans-Pacific service. The purchasing agent, who is also traffic manager, said unexpected items, which would swell the line's yearly purchases here to considerably more. The inaugural sailing was deemed as important that practically all the higher executives of the line will be here. R. Stanley Dollar, vice-president, and Stanley Dollar will arrive by rail today, as will the following: M. J. Buckley, freight traffic manager; M. J. Twomey, secretary; Hugh Mackenzie, general passenger agent; Randolph Nicker, assistant freight traffic manager, and Capt. E. H. Woodall, marine superintendent. Local arrangements for the celebration will be in charge of Ashman, Mackenzie, Buckley, Twomey and Capt. Nail, passenger agent at Los Angeles.

In addition to the Montpelier and the Kermit, recently purchased from the United American Lines, the American-Hawaiian Steamship Company will have four other sailings westbound in the next forty days, to augment its present freight fleet of seven vessels. Increased The Artemesan will arrive February 5 from the east coast, to be followed by two ships under charter, the Cartstream, February 27, and the Tashmas, March 16.

Two more vessels, representing nine maritime nations, will dress ship at the harbor today in token of the port's observance of Foreign Trade Week. The Swedish motorship Gripsholm, in port vessels from Great Britain, France, Japan, Germany, Holland, Norway, Sweden and Mexico. Her decks house will attract hundreds from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. today aboard the liner President Lincoln, which will be open to the public, with guides to show them about the big ship, which tomorrow opens the new trans-Pacific Dollar service.

PLEAS MADE FOR SMITH

Challenge Given to Senators

Counsel for Illinois Seeker After Seat Say States Must Hold Rights

Legislator Designate Called Fitted for Position But Committee Delays

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29. (AP)—An immediate partial report recommending the seating as a Senator of Frank L. Smith was urged today by counsel for him and for the State of Illinois, but action was deferred by the Senate Elections Committee until Wednesday.

Opening formal hearings on the case, the committee listened to five hours of argument and appeal by James M. Beck, former Solicitor-General of the United States, who appeared voluntarily; Oscar Carlstrom, Attorney-General of Illinois, representing his State, and C. J. Doyle of Springfield, Ill., personal counsel for the Senator-designate.

Pointing out that the committee had two separate functions under the Senate resolution barring Smith pending a hearing, counsel urged that a favorable report be made on the proposition of administering the oath to Gov. Small's appointee and to defer a hearing as to his fitness until after he has been seated.

ARGUMENT MADE

The argument was advanced that Smith could not be expelled until he had been seated and the declaration was made that a two-thirds vote would be necessary to unseat him once he had been admitted officially to the Senate.

A picture of Smith continually hammering at the door of the Senate over a period of six years if he should be refused the oath under his credentials from the voters of Illinois was drawn by Doyle.

Doyle, who formerly was Secretary of State of Illinois, said Col. Smith could present his credentials at the opening session of every new Congress during the term for which he was elected last November.

Warning was given by Atty.-Gen. Carlstrom that Gov. Small will not withdraw the credentials given Smith as the successor to the late Senator McKinley and he argued that every day the Senate refuses to accept them it unlawfully deprives Illinois of its constitutional rights to equal representation in the Senate with the other States.

RIGHTS DEFENDED

Both former Solicitor-General Beck and the Illinois Attorney-General declared the decision in the Smith case will not end the controversy that has arisen between the States and the Senate on the question of the qualifications of the ambassadors the States send to Washington.

Carrying the committee back to the days of the constitutional convention, Mr. Beck read portions of the debate then to support his contention that the qualifications referred to in the Constitution are those enumerated in that document and that so long as those qualifications are met the States can elect who they "damned please" to the Senate.

Both Beck and Carlstrom went over the testimony before the Reed committee regarding the contributions made by Samuel Insull, Chicago utilities operator, to Smith's campaign fund and argued that these contributions were not unlawful then and all not unlawful now.

LARGE MAJORITY

Counsel pointed out that Smith had been elected by more than 70,000 majority after these contributions had been disclosed; contended that there had been no suspicion of any irregularity in the election and that there had been no charges against Smith or any contest instituted.

Carlstrom declared that aside from the irreparable damage the Senate would do to Smith as a man, the Senate in refusing to seat him would be establishing a precedent under which in the future a State from time to time for political advantages might be deprived of its constitutional representation in the Senate.

Carlstrom told the committee that if it goes into the matter of Insull's contributions, evidence will be presented to show that during the five years the Senator-designate was chairman of the Illinois Commerce Commission thousands of orders had been issued without any suggestion of suspicion against one of them and that they had involved rate reductions against the Insull and other companies totalling many millions of dollars.

REVIEW OF DAY IN CONGRESS

Senate Democrats engaged in a Smith-McAdoo, wet-dry debate.

The House approved the compromise radio control bill.

A Senate vote on the cruiser amendment to the naval bill was deferred.

Representative James of Michigan, denounced army engineers at a Muscle Shoals hearing.

CRUISER BILL SUPPORTERS SEE VICTORY

Democrat Joins Republican Leader in Urging That Senate Uphold President

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29. (AP)—The Senate failed to reach a vote today on the three-cruiser amendment to the naval supply bill, adjourning with supporters of the proposal, which is at odds with President Coolidge's recommendations, predicting its adoption probably Monday.

During debate today, one Democrat, King, of Utah, joined with Curtis of Kansas, the Republican leader, in urging that no funds be appropriated for additional light cruisers until the President has had full opportunity to attempt the bringing about of another arms conference.

The pending amendment would provide $1,300,000 to start work on the three remaining hulls authorized in 1924.

Pleading for abandonment of any program which might be construed abroad as evidence of bad faith on the part of the United States in connection with further disarmament, Senator Curtis urged its rejection in the interest of world peace.

The President, he said, had not counseled abandonment of the 1924 building program, but had urged only that no additional hulls be laid down until efforts of the administration looking to another arms conference had been brought to fruition.

Why Thompson drives an Oakland 6

Hotel Savoy
LOS ANGELES
January 28th, 1927

Reeve Gartzmann, Inc.,

1200 South Figueroa St.,
Los Angeles, California.

Gentlemen:

As answer to a question to have conclusive proof that my statement, made through a desire to convince an opinion as to which is the best "blind" driving exhibition, was not prejudiced, I will first record your driving me from your office to the Savoy. You will then record your driving me from the Savoy to Oakland in your "blind" driving exhibition.

My reasons for selecting the Oakland as the motive power are many, but principally because of its unusual flexibility, ease of operation, and smooth, easy riding qualities. To be brief, I have used many cars, but never have I driven one that was so responsive to my every command. In my opinion, after many years of experience with motor cars, the most flawless power, best co-ordination of motor and car, and good road of the Oakland automobile, stands out as the most outstanding car I have ever driven.

In my "blind" driving exhibitions you will be a motor car which will not fail me in any emergency. You will have while driving me, absolute confidence that it will not stall, that it will not "pick-up", immediately after four or six sharp corners, that the steering gear is so adjusted that it will not tire me on any curve, that the shock absorbers function to perfect co-ordination during emergency, to enable me to correct at high speed, the dangerous sidesway, to eliminate the rebounding or "jump" of the rear springs, and thereby to avoid the dangerous skidding, and that the brakes are such a one of the responsive kind.

There are just a few of the requirements that I demand in a motor car to enable me to do what I shall endeavor to do in my "blind" driving exhibitions next month. You, I shall appreciate it, if you will let me know at your earliest convenience whether or not the Oakland can meet these requirements. Thanking you for the careful and prompt attention you have given to my request, I remain,

Sincerely and sincerely yours,
Hayward Thompson

Angeleno Among Traffic Victims at Long Beach

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, Jan. 29. Eight persons were injured in five automobile accidents which were reported here tonight, one of them perhaps fatally.

William K. Wilson, 27 years of age, 809 Monterey avenue, Alhambra, received serious injuries when his car was overturned on Terminal Island, near San Pedro. He was taken to the Seaside Hospital, where physicians examined him and pronounced his condition critical. He is connected with the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce.

The other seven were injured when a city ambulance collided with an automobile driven by Mrs. Lelia Bach of Sierra Madre. In the car with her were her two children, and Mrs. Hiram Waters of Long Beach, who also was accompanied by her three children. All were cut and bruised but none was seriously injured. The ambulance was answering an emergency call when the crash occurred.

GRANGE'S TEAM FACES MULLER'S ELEVEN TODAY

PLAY LEADING ROLES IN FOOTBALL FINALE TODAY

The four athletes shown below will be pretty much in the limelight this afternoon when the Los Angeles Buccaneers and New York Yankees ring down the curtain on the 1926 football season which has already run well into the year of our Lord, 1927. While "Brick" Muller and "Red" Grange are the big magnets a lot of fans are looking forward to the duel between "Tut" Imlay and "Rabbit" Bradshaw, rival quarterbacks. These two midgets are speed merchants par excellence and there should be plenty of red-hot action today.

MAY LOSE OLYMPIC GAMES

Washington, D. C., Threatens to Take Event Away from Los Angeles by Congressional Bills

WASHINGTON (D. C.) Jan. 29. (Exclusive)—Not only in Washington envisioned as the nation's athletic center, but Los Angeles would be deprived of its award of the 1932 Olympic Games in favor of Washington under proposals advanced here recently. Two bills introduced in Congress would provide for the construction of a giant stadium on the famous Mall, and the idea of an international sports fair, with the Olympic Games as a feature, comes from an author residing in Washington who attended the Olympics at Paris in 1924 and returned with a scheme of making it part of the already projected bicentennial celebration of the birth of George Washington to be held in the national capital.

The two bills call for the building along the Potomac Park waterfront of a stadium seating 100,000, and were introduced in the House by two former Harvard athletes. William Atherton Du Puy, the writer, makes the games proposal in a letter to Senator Simeon D. Fess of Ohio, who is chairman of the Washington bicentennial celebration.

Congressman "Jim" Gallivan, Harvard '88, Boston Democrat, and Congressman Hamilton Fish, Jr., Harvard '09 of New York, both think their stadium measures have a good chance in Congress, if not this session then during the Seventieth Congress.

PROPOSE STADIUM

Gallivan introduced his bill the first day of the short session, proposing that the army engineers plan and build a giant stadium as part of the Mall plan. Fish, the former gridiron captain of the Crimson, proposed a similar stadium, and would have it on the speedway along the Potomac waterfront.

According to the latter's plan, the stadium would be built as a memorial to Theodore Roosevelt as a tribute to his great interest in athletics and sportsmanship. Mr. Fish believes such a stadium would be the logical place to hold the Army-Navy football classic periodically. Mr. Fish has stated he will take up his bill with Speaker Longworth, whose wife is the former Alice Roosevelt, daughter of the late President, and may seek action on it in committee before the present session is over.

The stadium proposals are directly in line with suggestions that have been made by army engineers and by

ANNOUNCE CUBS' SPRING SCHEDULE

CHICAGO, Jan. 29. (AP) — A spring schedule of twenty-one games was announced tonight by the Chicago Cubs, starting with Coast League competition around Los Angeles on March 1, and finishing a five-game series against the Kansas City American Association club, April 6-10.

March 29, they will play an exhibition at El Paso and then four games against Dallas, March 31-April 3. April 4 they will play at Oklahoma City and April 5 at Tulsa.

CALIFORNIA HAILS CORBIN AS HERO OF TROJAN CAGE DEFEAT

BERKELEY, Jan. 29. (Exclusive)—Hailed today as California's hero in the pulsating victory over the University of Southern California's courageous Trojan basketball team, Vern Corbin, sophomore center, has assumed the scoring leadership over his mates on the California varsity by reason of twelve points earned against the southerners.

Just as Morris "Red" Badgro took the heart out of the several thousand California rooters huddled in the Oakland auditorium by means of his dexterous scoring on free throws and sinking of field goals, Corbin gave impetus to the Bear comeback, which put the contest in the ice box, by sensational tallies from bad angles. With the points turned in last night, Corbin has a grand total of 51 tallies to his credit. His closest rival for point honors, Capt. Fran Watson, has 44 points, while Jim Dougery, another brilliant sophomore, has 30 markers. Corbin's playing throughout the season has been of such caliber that Basil Peterson, varsity letter man, failed to win back his old job.

MACK SEEKS COBB, SPEAKER

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 29. (AP)—Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, said today that his club is not only in the market for the services of Tris Speaker, former Cleveland manager and star outfielder, but expected to enter the bidding to sign Tyrus Raymond Cobb, late of Detroit, to a 1927 contract.

Talking baseball at his office at Shibe Park, Mack declared that while his club was well equipped with outfielders, he is hopeful of getting both Cobb and Speaker.

Mack and Speaker conferred here yesterday but both said the matter of signing a contract was not discussed.

CRUICKSHANK LEADS FIELD

Winner of Los Angeles $10,000 Open Out in Front for First 36 Holes of Texas Tourney

SAN ANTONIO (Tex.) Jan. 29. (AP)—Bobby Cruickshank of Purchase, N. Y., with a total of 144, led the field tonight at the end of the first thirty-six holes of the seventy-two hole Texas open golf tournament.

The New York professional will start the final thirty-six holes over the Willow Springs course tomorrow with an advantage of two strokes over his nearest rivals, Jack Burke of Houston, Tex., Mike Brady of Mamaroneck, N. Y., and Bill Mehlhorn of Los Angeles, who tied for second place today, each with scores of 146.

S. W. Hutchison of Oklahoma City, Leonard Schmutte of Lima, O., and Waldo Crowder of Shreveport, La., stroked their way to a tie at 147, and Frank Walsh of Appleton, Wis., holed his final putt for 148.

Edwin Juelg of Mercedes, Tex., who proved a threat earlier in the day, fell down on the final round and took a 79 tie with Archie Loeffler of San Antonio at 151.

Frank Brokl of St. Paul was the ranking amateur with 153. Cruickshank blasted steadily away at the mud all day, finishing the morning round with a par 71, one stroke ahead of his nearest competitor, and doubling his advantage on the afternoon round. His score struck close to par figures on every hole in the morning, but he weakened slightly in the afternoon.

Many of the early favorites were in the ruck at the end of the day, Harry Cooper of Los Angeles finishing with 150 and Walter Hagen taking 156. The poor scores discouraged many of the entrants and they dropped out or refused to turn in cards at the end of their rounds reducing the field to seventy-five men

STAR GRIDDERS IN RETURN TILT

Close Football Season Today at Wrigley Field

"Red's" Eleven Favored to Cop Encounter

Imlay and Bradshaw Doped to Hog Limelight

BY BRAVEN DYER

All things, including chain letters, chess tournaments, a perfect day, storms in Florida, Wilshire Boulevard repairs and the Aimee Semple McPherson case must come to an end eventually so football breathes its last here today. That is, Old Dex Gridironous will become more or less unconscious for a period of several months following this afternoon's pro battle between "Red" Grange's Yankees and "Brick" Muller's Los Angeles Buccaneers.

George Wilson

The sport has been dying by inches since the Alabama-Stanford game of New Year's Day but ought to go out with a boom today for the attraction is a juicy one. Wrigley Field, scene of the conflict, should hold close to 25,000 fans, especially as the prices have been cut in half since the first game between the two pro organizations.

On that occasion Muller and his henchmen handed the Yankees a 20-to-6 thumping. "Brick" and his boys made Grange & Co. look bad. However, after seeing the Yankees against Hollywood there is no question in this writer's mind but that Grange's charges were considerably off form when first thrown against Muller. Right now we favor the Yankees to win today's engagement, although anything is liable to happen and we won't be terribly surprised if Muller et al turn the trick again.

IMLAY VS. BRADSHAW

Although the Muller-vs-Grange angle is probably still uppermost in the public's mind there is another duel which local fans are looking forward to with much interest. That is the clash between Talma "Tut" Imlay and Jimmy "Rabbit" Bradshaw, quarterbacks on the rival organizations.

Bradshaw, skippering George Wilson's Wildcats, blew into Los Angeles four weeks ago and whistled through the Hollywood Generals like a Texas tornado. "Rabbit" did everything but tear up the goal posts. He gave the greatest exhibition of all-around brilliance ever seen in a local pro game.

Imlay came along one week later and duplicated Bradshaw's performance.

AMERICAN NET TOUR ENRICHES SUZANNE LENGLEN $100,000

NEW YORK, Jan. 29. (AP)—Suzanne Lenglen will return to New York tomorrow from Havana for three concluding eastern exhibitions of an American tennis tour which already has enriched her by close to $100,000.

SUZANNE LENGLEN

The French queen of the courts will sail for home immediately after a farewell appearance in Providence, R. I., on February 7. William Pickens, business manager of the tour for C. C. Pyle, disclosed today. Before her departure, however, she will confer with Pyle here on details for a world tour this year which already has been tentatively arranged, Pickens said.

During the four months that Suzanne has been under contract to Pyle as a professional she has played with Mary K. Browne, Vincent Richards, Harvey Snodgrass, Paul Feret and Howard Kinsey in thirty-seven cities. The total will be extended to an even forty next month with visits to Hartford, Ct., Newark, N. J., and Providence.

"The venture has been a financial success far beyond our expectations," Pickens said, asserting that total receipts would run to $500,000, including royalties from tennis paraphernalia, dolls and women's wearing apparel indorsed by Lenglen and Richards. He estimated Pyle's profit, exclusive of royalties, at between $50,000 and $75,000.

Pickens said the world tour had been encouraged by calls from foreign countries to see Suzanne. He mentioned France, England, Germany, Japan and Australia as the most insistent for a visit from the French queen, who will be accompanied probably by Richards and Miss Browne, if Pyle succeeds in successfully negotiating with the players.

Pickens said that Mlle. Lenglen had played to capacity or near-capacity throngs in every city visited. She lost only one set to Miss Browne during the long series of single encounters between them.

Mlle. Lenglen's contract brought her a flat guarantee of $60,000 and 50 per cent of the net gate receipts at all exhibitions, Pickens revealed. Richards received a $35,000 guarantee, while Miss Browne drew down $30,000 and 5 per cent of the net gate receipts.

MALONE WILL HANDLE GENE'S BOUTS ABROAD

NEW YORK, Jan. 29. (AP)—Dudley Field Malone, New York attorney, who has been handling the legal affairs of Gene Tunney and Gertrude Ederle, sailed for Europe today to arrange exhibitions by Tunney in England, France and Germany this spring.

DONALD AFTER WALKER

Dick Donald is still after a championship bout between Mickey Walker, the title-holder, and Leo Lomski, who recently defeated ex-Champion Tiger Flowers at Wrigley Field.

Donald conferred yesterday with Jack Kearns, manager of Walker, and announced last night that Kearns is favorable to a title fight here next month.

The Wrigley Field promoter, however, said he wanted to be sure that Flowers does not have first call on Walker for a championship fight, as the negro's manager announced in the East, and he will confer again with Kearns relative to this angle next Wednesday.

If Donald is successful in landing the championship fight he probably will stage it the Saturday following Washington's birthday, he said.

MAY BUNDY AND BILL TILDEN TRIUMPH IN TENNIS TOURNEY

More than 4000 tennis fans of the Southland gathered at Griffith Park Stadium yesterday afternoon to witness the continuation of the Los Angeles City tennis tournament and the prowess of William T. (Big Bill) Tilden and Mrs. May Sutton Bundy, former national champions.

BILL TILDEN

Big Bill gave the fans a real treat in a singles exhibition with Johnny Doeg, national junior title-holder. Tilden, holding a 6-2 victory, while the clever Doeg in an effort to come on to a victory, Doeg gave a masterful exhibition of tennis, but Tilden four times off service, displayed his accuracy ground strokes and volley.

Later, Big Bill, paired with Ben Dewey, 15-year-old high school star, defeated Herbst and Wanamaker, another prep combination, in two easy sets, 6-3, 6-2. Later in the afternoon the pair were furnished some real opposition in Joe Ciano and Joe Saunders, but the duo trounced Ciano and Saunders to the tune of 6-3, 6-4. Big Bill and his partner will probably face Bob Laird and Johnny Doeg this afternoon, the latter pair having beaten Tilden and his protege in practice twice to date.

Mrs. May Bundy, former women's singles and doubles champion, displayed some fast and clever tennis yesterday paired with Doeg, advancing into the quarter final of the mixed doubles with victories over Miss Trafton and Alley, 6-2, 6-1.

The men's singles and mixed doubles will hold the spotlight again this afternoon, Tilden and Harwood, Gorchakoff and Craig and Doeg and Laird are the favorite teams. The finals in both of these events are slated.

Yesterday's results:

LADIES' SINGLES

Second round — Miss Williams defeated Miss Mellon, 6-1, 6-0; Miss Gladman defeated Mrs. Neville, 6-4, 6-1; Miss Robinson defeated Miss Hott, 6-3, 6-2; Miss Fatz defeated Miss Taylor, 6-4, 6-1; Miss James defeated Miss McGregor, 6-0, 6-4.

BUNNY RYAN COPS MATCH

TERAN WILL TUTOR ROOKIES

Shaw, ex-Seal Slabster, Signed by Hollywood

Strader, Backstop, is Bought from Cleveland

BY BOB RAY

Manager Henry McCredie, the one who is going to coach the Hollywooders during their spring practice, it was announced yesterday by H. William Lane, the only gent who ever changed a hive-full of bees into stars without getting stung.

The Hollywood prexy finally got McCredie, who is at present acting as a coach for the Detroit Tigers, to agree to tutor all the youngsters that the Stars have signed up for spring training tryouts. Inasmuch as McCredie has had more than a developing youngsters into major league prospects, Lane considered quite fortunate in securing the former Portland and Missions manager to teach the Hollywood lads some of the finer points of the national pastime.

While manager of the Portland club, McCredie dug up and developed such major league stars as Dave Bancroft, Charley Gelbert, Ivy Olson, Stanley Coveleski, Van Gregg, Lou Blue, Ossie Grantham and a host of others. McCredie's specialty was developing shortstops.

MANAGED MISSIONS

When he started out the 1926 season as manager of the Mission Monks, he had to give up after about six weeks because of ill health and because of constant interference in his managing duties by President Bill Lane.

McCredie is now in Portland, but will journey down to Los Angeles in time to be on hand when the Stars start spring training February 14 at Vernon Park, Hollywood.

Yesterday's quake also shook up the Wrigley Field tower to such an extent that it jarred loose from John Shaw, who handles the publicity for the club, the fact that Hollywood had purchased Catcher Norman Strader from the Cleveland Indians and signed Pat Shea, former Seal star, for a tryout with the Movie Makers.

Strader is a youngster, but is said to be a brilliant back-stopping prospect. President R. S. Bernard, owner of the Cleveland club, told Lane that Strader had the makings of a great catcher and that the only reason that the Tribe were disposing of him was because he was still three years away from being a major-leaguer. Strader will be given plenty of chance to develop by Lane. In case the youngster does not win a regular berth, he will be farmed out to the Salt Lake club in the Pacific Coast League for seasoning.

SHEA TO GET CHANCE

Shea, who was a mighty good right-hander when he was with the San Francisco club a couple of years ago,

Hollywood Athletic Club Track Team Opens 1927 Training Season This Morning

WILL DEFEND A.A.U. LAURELS

Fine Array of Talent to Greet Howard in Practice

Ten Meets Carded for Circle H Cinder Performers

Richardson, Harlow Will Perform for Movie City

Hollywood Athletic Club, winner of the national A.A.U. track and field title last year, starts its drive for another championship today when Bob Howard gathers a crew of prospective Orange H runners on the Hollywood High School field this morning. With the first meet of the season scheduled, with Caltech Saturday afternoon, Howard intends to give his athletes a hurried once-over in preparation for the affair.

Bud Houser, Leighton Dye and Ken Grumbles, members of last year's squad, will form the nucleus around which the club team will be built again. Deprived of the services of Dean Cromwell, U.S.C. varsity coach, who now gives his exclusive services to the Trojan team, the Movie City club has selected Bob Howard to tutor the athletes.

An attractive schedule of meets has been arranged for the clubites. This is as follows:

February 12—Occidental at Patterson Field.
February 26—A.A.U. relays in Coliseum.
March 5—U.S.C. at Coliseum.
March 19—Stanford at Palo Alto.
March 19—Pomona, La Verne, Redlands and Claremont.
April 16—A.A.U. open at Coliseum.
April 21—L.A.A.C. at Coliseum.
May 14—U.S.C. and L.A.A.C. at Coliseum.
June 16—Olympic Club at San Francisco.

The national champions will defend their laurels in the A.A.U. meet at New Orleans in addition to the events listed here. Leslie Swope, track commissioner of the club, who has arranged the schedule, predicts that the Orange H squad will turn in a number of high-class victories.

Bill Richardson, the crack ex-Stanford half-miler, and Clarence Harlow, the former Card javelin tosser, are among the new additions to the squad who promise to lend considerable prestige and points to the general effect.

Paolie, shot-put and discus champion of France, will aid Bud Houser in the weights, while W. W. Meyer, who performed in distance events for the Irish-American A. C. of New York, will sport the Movie City silks next year.

The roster of athletes signed to date includes: Bud Houser, Leighton Dye, Ken Grumbles, Harry Hicks, Earl Wilson, Percy Nierbach, Les Eades, Clarence Harlow, Cliff Gautt, Bill Richardson, Andy Bansmiller, R. G. Wright, Bob Bauther, Ben Cutler, W. W. Meyer, Paolie, Paul, Pitts, Moyse, Combs and Steans.

Killefer and Sisler Sign on Dotted Line

ST. LOUIS (Mo.) Jan. 29. (AP) Signed contracts of George Sisler, former manager, and Bill Killefer, new assistant manager of the St. Louis Browns, have been received, Business Manager Bill Friel announced tonight. They reached an agreement on terms several days ago, but did not sign at that time.

In addition to a reported salary of $15,000 a year, it is understood Sisler will receive a bonus if he shows up well at bat. He will play his regular position of first base.

Killefer's salary is reported to be around $10,000. He received $7500 as coach for the Cardinals last season.

In the other league game of the evening the Engineers Seconds will tackle the International Harvesters. The title squad has given both teams their one defeat and the game is expected to be hotly contested throughout.

OBSERVATIONS

BY THE INNOCENT BYSTANDER, BILL HENRY

WHEN the information was sprung on a startled public that "Puss" Halbriter was heading the syndicate that is going to run the Culver City Speedway, it may not have meant so much to the hundreds of thousands of newcomers in this region, but to the folks who date back twenty years or so, it carries quite a kick, because Puss Halbriter is a "boy promoter" from away back in the early days. When Yours Truly blew into this fair city about a score of years ago, he happened to plant himself in a house on West Thirty-third street, between Grand and Figueroa, right next door to the Halbriter family, and smack in the middle of the athletic talent of the comunity. Across the street was the Cass family, a dozen strong, whose boys one after the other, formed the bulwark of various L. A. High athletic teams that cleaned the State and the Pacific Coast.

Down the street a little way was the Brant family, who likewise upheld L. A. honors on the gridiron. A block or so away was the Haney family, all of whom went to Poly, and the most famous member of which now plays for the Detroit American League ball club. "Fat" Silent, 230-pound center on L. A.'s championship eleven, lived down the street. Jack Vallely, who ran the mile in the 4:30's for Harvard, lived a block or so away. The whole neighborhood was alive with kids who were full of athletic pepper and not the worst of the bunch was Puss Halbriter himself. Puss played first base for L. A. High and was about the greatest prep first baseman ever seen in the community.

Soon after Puss got into business he was bitten by the promoting bug and it has had him in its power ever since. He promoted the Christmas Day football game at Bovard Field between the All-Southern Team and the Pacific Fleet, that set the example for post-season football later taken up by the Tournament of Roses. The game drew the biggest crowd Bovard Field ever held. Later on Puss decided that the wrestling game needed a lift and he staged bouts at the old Shrine Auditorium, featuring Ad Santel, Romanoff, Demetral and other stars of that day. More recently, of course, he fathered the Grange-Wilson game a year ago at the Coliseum that drew the biggest crowd that ever saw a professional game. Yep—Puss dates back considerably in local sporting history.

Then, who do we meet on Spring street yesterday but Johnny Rawlings, demon second baseman for the Pittsburgh Pirates. If Johnny gets mixed up in this baseball scandal he is going to get a lot of character witnesses here who can testify that he used to go to the First Baptist Church Sunday-school, although he did so chiefly during the season when he was playing on the church team in the Sunday-school League. He had a lot of talented assistance. Fred Patterson, great L. A. High and U. S.C. athlete who was killed in the war, was catcher and Frank Gault, who pitched for L. A. High and Stanford, was pitcher. Babe Doyle, who tries to tease people into buying automobiles, alternated with Rupert Turnbull, a local attorney, at first base, Johnny played second, Joe Chapman, another L. A. High demon who is now busy peddling bonds, played short, and a lot of other riff-raff, including Yours Truly, fumbled ground and fly balls in the outfield.

Incidentally, there were a lot of demons who played baseball and basketball in the Sunday-school League of those days—about fifteen years ago. Fred McMullin played a little baseball, as did Monk and "Mary" Pierce, great Poly High athletes. The basketball league had a lot of demons also. The First Baptist won the basketball title two years running, and Fred Olney, present L.A.A.C captain, was one of the stars. "Red" Wilson, Cliff Henderson, who captained U.S.C., and a lot of other court demons of the day, performed, and there was more class in the Sunday-school League than there was in anything else in the community. Also a lot of guys went to Sunday-school during that period who never went before and probably haven't been since.

After perusing the foregoing paragraphs, we have decided that we must be growing old, or else we wouldn't be worrying so much about what happened when Tom McCarey was promoting fights at Naud Junction and Fiesta Park at Twelfth and Grand was the "Coliseum" of its day.

SAN DIEGO LINKSMEN DEFEATED

Long Beach, Virginia Win Team Matches from Pair of Visiting Clubs

Invading team golfers from the San Diego and Coronado Country clubs were repulsed handily by the Virginia Country Club and Long Beach mashie wielders in two matches over the seaside city's courses yesterday.

Virginia trimmed San Diego, 6 and 3, while the Long Beach squad swept to an easy victory over Coronado, 7 and 1.

The only redeeming feature of the invading contingent was the brilliant play of E. K. Patton of the Coronado team. Playing without a partner, he shot a snappy 72 to defeat Stafford and Gerkin of the Long Beach squad. Patton is captain of the visiting team, a six handicap man and chairman of the tournament committee of the southern city.

The visiting teams will trade courses today, San Diego playing Long Beach and Coronado appearing at Virginia. The results:

LONG BEACH (7.) CORONADO (1.)

Pickett and Rheinwalter (Long Beach) defeated MacGregor and Hagen (San Diego) 3 and 2; Dicks and Elsey (Long Beach) defeated Hubbard and Pierce (San Diego) 1 up; Hubbard and Cole (Long Beach) defeated H. KETCHUM SHINES AS BRUINS RUIN POMONA TEAM, 48 TO 13

Jack Ketchum played his usual star role at Claremont last night and the Southern Branch teamers ruined Pomona's quintet, 48 to 13. It was the fifth consecutive victory for the Bruins and gives them a tie for first place with Whittier in the Southern Conference standings.

Ketchum was plain poison to the Sagehens last night, tossing baskets from every angle. In all he tallied 24 points, exactly half of the total rung up by his team.

Milo Young, Caddy Works's energetic center, did considerable scoring himself, rolling up 13 points. The defensive work of Capt. Jimmy Armstrong and Blum was of high order.

Harold Merritt, guard, was the only Pomona man to get more than one basket. He managed to cage two.

In the preliminary game, the fast-traveling Pomona frosh defeated Citrus Union High School, 34 to 20.

Varsity line-ups:

Bruins—Ketchum (24,) f; Williams (5,) f; Balzer, (3,) f; Young (13,) c; Woodruff (2,) c; Armstrong, g; Blum (2,) g.

Pomona—Wilkins (8,) f; Patton, f; Osborne (3,) f; Millgitt (2,) c; Manildi (2,) g; Merritt (4,) g.

Willie Hoppe Victor Over Hagenlacher

BOSTON, Jan. 29. (AP)—Willie Hoppe, world's 18.2 balkline billiards champion, tonight took the final block of a twelve-block exhibition match from Eric Hagenlacher, 300 to 253, giving him a grand total of 3257 against Hagenlacher's 2564.

The champion reached his highest form in the afternoon play today when he ran the block of 300 in three innings for an average of 100. He took eight innings to complete tonight's block for an average of 37.

Last night saw him turn in the highest run of the six-day match when he clicked off 270. Hagenlacher was able to take but three of the blocks.

Tiger Cagers Beat Redlands Five, 46 to 38

Occidental College defeated Redlands last night, 46 to 38, in a Southern California Conference basketball game on the Tiger court. Capt. Solly Mishkin, Oxy captain, tossed eleven of his team's digits.

Coach Eddie Kienholtz seems to have found his best combination, and the Bengals played their best game of basketball this season. Oxy took an early lead and was never headed. Ted Ellsworth also got into the game and sunk five baskets. The line-ups: Redlands—Bell (2;) Lund (8;) Wilson (8;) Covin (4;) Painter, Adams, Price, Bunch, Brummwell (7;) Occidental—Archey (6;) Mishkin (11;) Black (7;) Ellsworth (10;) Godett (3;) Walkert (4;) Ketcherald (4;) Haserot, Osgood, Noble.

Women Golfers of Tournament Receive Prizes

Prizes for the winners of the 54-hole tournament, held under the auspices of the Southern California Women's Golf Association, were distributed yesterday. The tourney was played over three courses, Hillcrest, Lakeside and Brentwood, and 134 women golfers took part in the tournament.

Mrs. Gregg Lifur took first prize in the Class A division, with a low gross of 262, for the 54 holes. Mrs. L. Grossman was the low net winner in this class, with 250 for the 54 holes. In Class B, Mrs. Paul Jones had 309 for low gross, and Mrs. E. E. Higgins 234 for low net.

BARRON STOPS PERRY IN SIXTH CHAPTER

Dario Barron stopped Dave Perry in the sixth round of a scheduled eight-round main event at Main-street Athletic Club last night. Lancho Delgado won from Pruitt Steelman in the semifinal. Bill Clark knocked out Hubert Charleston in the first round. Johnny Gonsale won over Santiago Cesa. Carl Bennett defeated Dud Eades.

MAPLELEAF PUCKSTERS COP

The Mapleleaf hockey team defeated the Rangers, 7 to 5, in an amateur contest at the Palais de Glace last night. The Mapleleaf septet scored five goals in the final period to win.

GRANGE AND MULLER MEET

ance almost to the letter. "Tut" was plain poison to the Grangemen, just as Jimmy had paralyzed the Generals.

Today they are to be thrown against each other for Bradshaw and Wilson have been added to Grange's team. With the two flea-weights playing safety, running back punts, calling signals, tossing passes and sneaking through the line there should be plenty of action for the bugs.

Grange's athletes would like to beat Muller without the services of Wilson and Bradshaw. The Yankees are mad enough to pulverize the Buccaneers and really hope to do so before George and Jimmy get into the game, for it is not Coach Ralph Scott's plan to start the two newcomers against Muller. He will save them and shoot them both in at the crucial moment. If Scott sees that his boys are going all right he may not use either Wilson or Bradshaw until the Yankees get a touchdown.

HELEN WILLS FLATFOOTED

Tennis Expert Says Suzanne Lenglen Was Right in Statement Concerning Berkeley Girl's Weight

BY FRED HAWTHORNE

NEW YORK, Jan. 29. (Exclusive)—When Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, greatest woman player in lawn tennis history stated, or was alleged to have stated the other day, that she believed Miss Helen Wills "was getting too heavy" and that this tendency must be curbed if the former American champion hoped to continue at the top of the game in this country, she hit the nail of truth squarely on the head.

Miss Wills is unfortunate enough, from the standpoint of the lawn-tennis player, to have this tendency to grow heavier as she grows older. A magnificent specimen physically, nevertheless the California girl for the last two or three years has been threatened with this danger of excess weight and it is logical to suppose she will continue along this direction with each succeeding year.

With an ever-increasing call for speed of foot in winnig tennis today, the player who is unable to keep his or her weight down to reasonable proportions is under a severe handicap, and this is quite as true in the case of women players as among the masculine sex. Pop Fuller of California, Miss Wills's tennis mentor, in answer to Mlle. Lenglen's statement, has declared that Miss Wills, at 148 pounds, is ideally built and not too heavy for fast tennis.

But in spite of Mr. Fuller's statement, anybody who has observed the former national champion in action on the courts must have been impressed with the difference between Miss Wills's footwork and, for example, that of Mlle. Lenglen herself or Mrs. Kathleen McKane Godfrey of England. The latter two players are conspicuous for the lightness of their footwork, the French girl especially seeming to fairly float about her court, ever on her toes.

Miss Wills, on the contrary, at times appears flatfooted as she covers court. In the past and at present the sheer excellence and power of her ground strokes and the dynamic quality of her service form such great attacking weapons as to largely offset the California girl's heaviness afoot, but it is a question whether she will be able to maintain her game at top notch in the event she adds several more pounds to her weight during the next few years.

WHITTIER TRIMS CALTECH

Sucksdorf Stars as Quakers Score Fifth Straight Win at Expense of Engineers, 39 to 17

With young Mr. Sucksdorf performing in brilliant fashion the Whittier College quintet scored a 39-to-17 victory over Caltech's tossers at Whittier last night. The win was Whittier's fifth in a row and keeps the Quakers at the top of the Southern Conference standings, tied with Southern Branch for first honors.

Sucksdorf ran hog wild last night, caging enough baskets to beat the Engineers single-handed. In all he rang the bell for 18 digits during the evening's festivities. Barmore and Weaver afforded the star forward excellent support, adding 13 points between them.

Caltech never had a chance, the Poets leading, 20 to 7, at half-time, holding their rivals to a pair of field goals in this session. Coach Leo Calland used a couple of substitutes, Jertberg and Marshall, to advantage in this session.

Tom Denney, Whittier captain, was again unable to appear. He may be out for the season. Tom has water on the elbow, the result of an old football injury.

In the preliminary game, Whittier frosh trimmed Caltech, 23 to 18. The varsity line-ups:

Whittier: Sucksdorf, (18,) F.; Barmore, (8,) F; Jertberg, (4,) F; Weaver (5,) center; Hunnicut (1,) G; Reece, (2,) G.; Marshall, (1,) G.

Caltech: Peterwad, (3,) F.; Fredenball, (6,) F.; Gordon, (4,) F.; Joujon-Roche, 2,) C.; Starke, G.; Olsen, (2,) G.

Viking, Club Soccer Teams Battle Today

When the Vikings held the L.A.A.C. soccer eleven to a one-goal tie in a first-round cup tie two weeks ago they started that which they hope to complete today, to wit, the subjugation of the club as an aspirant for the cup. Incidentally the outcome of that football classic not only caused a revision of the dope affecting the probable outcome of the cup series but also served to create anew interest in the contest, and unless all signs fail today's card will be the strongest box-office attraction that Loyola Field has offered for a long time.

Vikings' marvelous return to form as evidenced two weeks ago was a sad surprise to the league leaders. They had been figured easy pickings and it was not anticipated that they would be able to make much more than a gesture in the path of the club to the second round. The Vikings, however, played like demons, gave as much as they received and might have, with a little better luck, have disposed of the champs at that time.

Heartened by their partial victory, the Vikings are said to be anticipating their game with the club at Loyola Field this afternoon with keen anticipation and pleasure. Confident they will be able to sound taps for their opponents, the Clubmen will, according to Manager Petersen, be as raw meat to the Vikings to be devoured with relish.

The game offers two safe bets, a keenly competitive struggle flavored with a high class brand of football and a decision by a close goal score.

Both teams have been in strict training since their initial duel for the right of entry to the second round, and each will be at maximum strength when they lineup at 3 p.m. for the starting whistle.

There is a notable lack of desire on the part of the wise ones to forecast the outcome, the wiseacres preferring to hold their guesses. This fact may be taken as indicative of the relative strength of the two teams.

Both champs radiate confidence, however, although each recognized in the other a team of real merit.

The preliminary game, which starts at 1 p.m., brings together the Scots and Magyars in a league fixture Ordinarily this encounter would be billed as a headliner and is only overshadowed by the greater attraction, the cup tie replay.

Montello Wins Third Gallop at Tia Juana

TIA JUANA RACE TRACK, Jan. 29. Montello, 3-year-old gelding, hailing originally from the Nevada stock farms, but now racing in the interests of Charlie Irby, scored his third straight racing victory of the meeting here today in the Cloverdale claiming handicap at six furlongs from a field of high-class platers.

The gelding won his first out against some rather ordinary platers and has been stepping right up in class since that time, his victory today being at the expense of Postillion, a high-class mare from the barn of J. Dale; Fabian, Blue Fish, Merry Chase and others of the high-class selling division.

Montello won from Postillion by a head, with Shasta Pine, from the Brown Shasta stock farm, getting the show.

Conquistador, the full brother of the famous Morvich, from the stable of Baron Long, will hook up with some of the speed of the handican division in the Arcadian Handicap at six furlongs, which will feature the program here tomorrow.

In his last start the 3-year-old colt broke the long-standing Tia Juana track record for five furlongs and if he can carry his speed the extra distance may crack the longer mark.

Flatiron from the Green Briar stable, Sandy Man, Arno, the Seagram Sprinter, Russell Gardner, Sergeant Seth, Jack Alexander, Liberty, Bookbinder and Glenister II and Tamarind complete the field.

The secondary feature of the card tomorrow will be a condition race for 3-yr and one-half furlongs, bringing out some of the high-class 3-year-olds.

Yankees Must Strengthen Club if They Hope to Cop Flag Again, Claims Expert

TOUGH SEASON LOOMS FOR AMERICAN LEAGUE CHAMPS

Huggins May Arrange Trades to Bolster Club for Race; Few Valuable Men Added to Team

BY JACK GALLAGHER
"Times" Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO, Jan. 29. (Exclusive)—What steps did Miller Huggins take toward winning the American League pennant in 1927? Are the Yankees strong enough to repeat?

Answering the first question: When the Yankees leave on March 6 for spring training in St. Petersburg, Fla., Huggins will take along seventeen new players. The Yankees are deliberately shortening their period of training this year, and none of the regulars will be summoned to report until the first week in March. The first squad, consisting wholly of recruits, will be ordered to St. Petersburg February 27.

MILLER HUGGINS

The second question, according to the wiseacres of the game, is easily answered. The Yankees will not repeat. This negative answer is based upon the fact that as the Yankees lined up in the 1926 world's series, they did not possess the strength to repeat. In fact, it is pointed out, they never would have won the pennant if they had not had such a tremendous lead when they started the last western trip. Outside of the Red Sox and the Browns, no club in the league had as poor a record as the Yankees for the last month.

MUST REPAIR FENCES

All of which means that the diminutive leader of Col. Jake Ruppert's team must repair his fences. It is possible, but hardly probable, that he can bolster up the weak spots with men selected from the seventeen recruits. For that reason it is not unlikely that Huggins will have rigged up a deal with some other team before February 27, possibly the Browns that will add several more new names to the roster.

The Yankees need help behind the bat. Collins is not rated as a real big-league receiver, although he is valuable as a batter. Hank Severeid has been a star backstop, but cannot stand the continuous grind as he could at one time. Bengough was considered the club's best receiver toward the finish of the season and was hitting better then ever before, but it is a peculiar coincidence that with Bengough behind the bat that last month the Yanks were losing.

That Huggins intends to make a real effort to build up his catching department is evident from the fact that four of the seventeen new players going to St. Petersburg next month are backstops. They are John Grabowski who was recently acquired from the White Sox in the Aaron Ward deal; Virgil Lawrence Davis, who was purchased from the Gulfport club of the Cotton States League; Edward D. Phillips, who was bought from Albany, N. Y., and Baxter Williams, who was purchased from the Greenville (S. C.) club. Grabowski is not a star backstop, but he is a good, steady performer who will undoubtedly prove a valuable asset to the team. The others are unknown quantities.

PENNOCK SHOULD STAR

Of the pitchers used by New York in the world's series, Herb Pennock distinguished himself in particular and there is no indication he will not be just as effective in 1927. Waite Hoyt and Walter Reuther also did some good work in the big series and, while Urban Shocker was a frost against the Cardinals, he established a splendid record during the regular season.

But who has Huggins to help out the big four during this coming season? Bob Shawkey probably will be saved for relief work, in which he shines. "Tad" Sam Jones does not seem to behaving the success he formerly had. Myles Thomas, right hander, is just fair. Beall has plenty of stuff but is not given credit with the knowledge of how to use it. Braxton, who made good as a relief pitcher during the last season, has gone to Washington as part payment for Reuther. Therefore, new pitchers coming in are:

S. L. Cannon, purchased from the Waco club of the Texas League; Charley Herrell, Jr., a semipro from Long Island City; Wilcey Moore, bought from the Greenville (S. C.) club; Jimmy Wilkes, purchased from the Albany club of the Eastern League; Henry Johnson and George Pipgras, who were recalled from St. Paul of the American Association, and Roy Chesterfield, recalled from Newark, of the International League, where he had a good year. They are all right handers. Moore was a sensation in the South Atlantic League, while Pipgras and Johnson may have acquired enough stuff and experience in the Double A League to win games in the majors, but that remains to be seen.

Huggins will not have to worry about his infield. Gehrig is a very valuable batter although not the last word in fielding. "Push 'Em Up" Tony Lazzeri and Mark Koenig should be improved players this year. They did exceptionally well for first-year men last season. "Jumping Joe" Dugan, however, is starting to slip after being the real class at third for several seasons. The infield will be augmented by such talent as may be found in Ray Morehart, who made up what remained of the Grabowski-Ward trade; Julian Wera, who was bought from the St. Paul club; Hugh Farrell, for whom the Yankees paid money to the Harrisburg club of the Cotton States League, and Don Flickinger, a semi-pro from the Pacific Coast. About three of these four infielders will in all probability wind up elsewhere.

NO OUTFIELD WORRIES

In the outfield Huggins does not have to worry about either Ruth or Combs. Bob Meusel made a sorry showing in the world series, but Huggins will not think about replacing him if Bob will come back with the same brand of baseball he played prior to being injured last July. With Paschal and Carlyle in reserve, Huggins has added Elias Funk, who was purchased from the Oklahoma City club of the Western League, and George Davis, a former New York University player, who was sent to Newark last year, and who is being recalled. Funk hit somewhere around .350, but .350 in Oklahoma City and .350 in the American League circuit are horses of a different hue.

Nothing in the list of recruits indicates that Huggins is going to be able to measureably strengthen his team for the coming season. There is a chance, of course, that he may try to arrange some trades, but with only "Jumping Joe" Dugan to be used as a basis of exchange, it certainly does not look like any startling trade will be arranged.

Huggins was able to make good headway last season against the Red Sox and the Browns, particularly. With Bill Carrigan on the job at Boston, Miller will find the sailing not so easy, and the Browns under Dan Howley, we are inclined to think, will not be so easy pickings as they were last year.

Connie Mack, we think, is going to make an impressive bid for the flag. The elongated leader of the Athletics has injected some real strength into his outfit and he has balanced his team to make it a smooth machine. He will surely be a thorn in the side of the champion Yanks. No one can tell until the season is under way for a few weeks what Jack McCallister is going to do with the Indians. The Cleveland outfit without the hustling Speaker at the helm and at work in the outfield, is sure to be a different team than it was last season, unless the new manager shows some real ability as a leader. But we think they will give the Yanks a run for their lives.

ENGLISH TO HELP CUBS

Young Shortstop Purchased From Toledo for $50,000 Rounds Out Infield; Webb New Outfielder

CHICAGO, Jan. 29. (AP)—One of the outstanding purchases of the winter by a major league baseball team was the acquisition of Elwood English of the Toledo American Association Club by the Chicago Cubs to round out their infield for the 1927 pennant chase.

English, only 20 years of age, completes a roster of youngsters for the Chicago National Leaguers, only two of the thirty-two athletes on the squad being over 30 years of age. Two players and $50,000 was the price of the star shortstop.

JOE McCARTHY

Another promising youngster, expected to raise the outfied batting average, was obtained from the Louisville Association club, Earl Webb. Like Babe Ruth, Webb used to do a bit of pitching, so his throwing arm is considered one of his great assets. In addition he hits around the wrong side of the plate.

"We are just about 100 per cent better than we were last year," McCarthy said today, "and remember we finished fourth last year, so you know I feel like we will be crowding the leaders this season."

McCarthy has just arrived in Chicago from his home in Buffalo, to begin his own spring conditioning three weeks ahead of the rest of the club. A month hence the players will join him at Catalina Island.

Among the thirty-two players on the Cub roster, are six old and eight new pitchers.

The other infield positions will be filled by last season's regulars, Sparky Adams at third, Jim Cooney at second and Capt. Charley Grimm at first. Howard Freigs and Clyde Beck in reserve.

Webb, Hack Wilson and Clyde Heathcote probably will be the outfield regulars, with three others to give Webb a battle for the left-field post. Hartnett and Gonzales are the first-string receivers.

The untried pitchers have six battle-scarred veterans to contend with: Bush, Blake, Jones, Kaufman, Root and Osborne. Among the prospects is a Chicago sand-lotter, Roy Hanson, the first native son hurler to receive a tryout in a long time.

FORTUNE IN PENNY TEE

The small birch-stained pegs now used by golfers instead of the old "sand tee" cost but a penny apiece, but throughout the world about 90,000,000 are used each season and the originator has reaped a fortune from his idea.

O'Farrell in Tradition of Ball Manager

(Former Pitcher New York Giants)

"Bob" O'Farrell, voted the most valuable ball player in the National League in 1926, ran true to form when he was appointed manager of the St. Louis Cardinals to succeed Rogers Hornsby.

He again proved the old adage that if you have aspirations to be a big league manager, start out as a catcher or second baseman. These two positions lead all others in developing star managers. Among the catchers who became leaders are Chance, Carrigan, Robinson, Dobin, Killefer, Bresnahan, Moran, Connie Mack and Stallings.

Some of the great managers who graduated from the keystone bag were Huggins, Evers, Le Joie, Harris, Collins and Hornsby. Shortstop runs a close third with Jennings, Dahlen, Bancroft and Tinker among others. First base had its Hal Chase and Cap. Anson; third base its McGraw and the outfield its Speaker, Cobb, Jones, Duffy and Clark.

The pitchers furnished the least number. Mathewson, Griffith and Callahan are the only ones I remember.

SOPHS DOCTOR UP BERKELEY DIAMOND

BERKELEY, Jan. 29. (Exclusive)—So that the stage may be prettily decorated for the seasonal entry of Coach Carl Zamloch's freshman and varsity baseball players, some twenty sophomore managers are busily at work applying a twenty-five cubic yard coat of sandy loam to the California varsity diamonds on West field, and the freshman playing grounds on Hilgard field. The task of spreading the sand is now practically completed, and Manager Johnny Chapman reports that the baseballers will be welcome to play in the immediate future.

FINE BOWLING

BEAVERS TRAIN IN CLASS

Mr. Tom Turner, modest president of the Portland Beavers, wishes it to be announced to the waiting world that his players are going to have their training surrounded by class, and lots of it. The "Boy Boss of the Beavers" stated while attending the recent Coast League meeting at Hollywood, that the Portland players are going to stop at recently completed $2,000,000 Santa Clara Hotel while going through their conditional practices at San Jose.

"It's class all over," says Turner. "Why, the carpets in the hotel are thicker than the steaks Bill Lane had served at the Hollywood Athletic Club banquet, and those steaks were thick. We're going to treat the boys right this year because I think we've lined up a team that will give Portland its first pennant since 1914."

The Beaver pitchers and catchers report to Manager Ernie Johnson at San Jose, February 14, while the regulars will file into camp one week later.

PICK-UPS

BY RAY

Now that Tyrus Raymond Cobb, along with Tris Speaker has been restored to good standing in the ranks of the sport that he helped make famous, we feel privileged to give vent to our thoughts on one thing or another concerning the Georgia Peach without feeling as if we were kicking him while he was down.

If you are at all interested in baseball you will know that Cobb has been manager of the Detroit Tigers these last few years. Also, you will know that the Tigers have had wonderful material every year but have failed to come close to winning an American League pennant under Ty.

Now we're getting to what we want to say, to wit: That Cobb's resignation as manager is the best thing that could possibly have happened for the Detroit club.

We'll grant that Cobb was one of the greatest, if not the greatest player in baseball, but as a manager he was impossible.

Cobb, possessed of a fiery temper, used his own brilliant standard of play to judge others. Consequently, none of his players could ever perform well enough to suit him. The Georgia Peach was especially tough on youngsters and it is safe to say that he ruined more major-league prospects by his "riding" tactics than any other manager in baseball.

TY COBB

According to players who worked under Cobb, he was possessed of the worst possible temperament that a baseball manager could have. Even those players whom Cobb got along with had at least one or more run-ins with Ty every season. And when Cobb took a dislike to a player he made it as tough on him as possible, often making foolish trades with other clubs just to get rid of the man. To illustrate this point, we recall the deal by which Cobb traded Howard Ehmke to the Boston Red Sox for Rip Collins. Ehmke showed up Cobb by becoming the most brilliant hurler in the majors while with the lowly Hubsox, while Collins never did anything spectacular. And then take the case of Ira Flagstead, whom Cobb practically gave to the Red Sox. Flagstead is still one of the best outfielders in the majors and was right up among the leading hitters last year.

It is also said that Cobb had a run-in with Heinie Manush last season while the Tigers were on the road and kept wiring back to Owner Frank Navin to send Manush to Boston. Navin, having learned his lesson from some of Cobb's previous foolish trades, asked Harry Heilmann what he thought of the idea. Heilmann answered that he wouldn't send Manush away if he had anything to do with it so Heinie stayed with Detroit. All Manush did last year was to lead the American League in hitting. And to think that Cobb would have given him away just for spite.

Another tale that might be interesting to local fans is how Cobb almost ruined Jackie Warner, who went up to Detroit from the Vernon Tigers. Warner, a hard-trying and high-strung youth with brilliant possibilities, made an error one day and Cobb immediately started riding him. Before the season was over, say Detroit players, Jackie was almost as nervous as a man with St. Vitus dance. Now that Cobb is gone, Warner will get a chance to show his real major league worth.

George Moriarty, the ex-umpire who succeeds Cobb, is one of the smartest men in baseball and is said to be a good handler of men. So don't be at all surprised if Moriarty takes the same talent that Cobb failed with and makes strong pennant contenders out of the Tigers.

It's too bad that the Pacific Coast League didn't offer $1000 to the loop's most valuable player last year. It just seemed a loss of one grand to Arnold Statz, for Jigger was undoubtedly the most valuable player in this circuit last season. Wonder who'll get the honor and the money this year?

Inasmuch as Judge Landis has been going back into history trying to dig up scandals, we suggest that he investigate the 1915 National League race. The Phillies won the pennant that year and it will go down in the books as one of the mysteries of baseball if present Philadelphia National League clubs can be taken as a criterion.

The Pacific Coast League moguls proved that their heads are for some purpose other than to keep their ears apart when they adopted a schedule winding up the season two weeks earlier. Fans out this way turn their attention to football in October and the magnates showed good judgment in getting baseball out of the way before the gridders get going full blast. And anyway, baseball interest seems to die out all over the country as soon as the world series is over.

Another good thing about the earlier closing date is that there will now be a much better chance to arrange a "little world series" between the International-Association series winner and the Coast League champs.

BRAZILL AND READ ARE FIRST SERAPHS TO SIGN CONTRACTS

Frank Brazill, peppery third-sacker who was purchased from Seattle for $10,000 last year, and Jimmy Read, promising young catcher, were the first Angels to affix their signatures to 1927 contracts. Both Brazill and Read elevatored up to the sixth floor of the Wrigley Field tower yesterday afternoon, paid their respects to Mr. Carl August Fredrich Wilhelm Von Wollen-Weber, signed their contracts and left.

Brazill has been playing ball now and then for the White King Soaps this winter and announces that he'll be in shape long before the opening day. Frank batted over the .330 mark last season but he figures that he is due to have an even better year with the willow during the coming campaign.

Read has also been playing winter ball and he is hoping that he'll be able to get in behind the bat for the Angels more regularly this year. Read will report for spring training at Wrigley Field with the pitchers and catchers on February 14.

BASEBALL BOWLERS COMPETE IN LOCAL ALLEY TOURNAMENT

A bowling tournament, open to all members of the Association of Professional Baseball Players of America, has been arranged for the Pekomans Alleys on the night of Wednesday, February 2, by "Dad" Meek, co-proprietor of the emporium.

Sam Crawford, former Detroit star, and now coach of the U.S.C. Trojans; "Cap" Dillon, old-time Angel; Rube Ellis, ex-Tiger manager, are some of the old-timers who are scheduled to battle the maples, while a goodly contingent of the more or less younger generation will perform.

A LITTLE southpaw now and then is relished by the best of men ("men" referring to managers and coaches, in this instance.) At any rate, it does seem as though the port-sider has his good points, even though the unorthodox athlete is often looked upon with ridicule and accused of having a left-handed brain. Eccentricities may go hand in hand with those who eat, write and throw with the port mitt, but there are plenty of southpaws whose brains are not at all like the famous Rube Waddell's, and who really enjoy a decided advantage over their fellow-beings in certain branches of sports.

"Petit" Parisien, who throws passes with his left arm, southpawed Northwestern and Southern California to death last football season and won two big games for Notre Dame, where a right-hander might have failed. That a left-footed kicker is an asset to a team has been proved before, too, and Capt. George Guttormson of the University of Washington was no exception. Men who can get off those long, tricky, left-footed spirals are very nice to have around, and many a coach has longed for a man like Sam Felton, who went to Harvard when Harvard had real football teams.

Omitting for the time any discussion of southpaws in boxing and golf, where good ones are few and far between, and tennis, where there are many examples of great left-handed players, let us take a look at the so-called national pastime, where the port-sider really comes into his own. At present, the name of the greatest left-handed athlete of all is often seen on the sports pages, because of Babe Ruth's contact with the Yankees. Formerly one of the best of southpaw pitchers, then the great long-ball batter of all time, Babe Ruth has established the port-side upon a pinnacle of achievement where even such famous left-handed artists as Leonardo de Vinci and Charley Chaplin never could put it.

With men like Ruth, Cobb, Speaker, Sisler, Collins, Wheat, Rousch, Rice and others batting from the left side, and pitchers like Pennock, Sherdel, Grove, Rixey, Reuther, Yde, May and others throwing left-handed, it is no wonder that the boys of today think that a successful baseball career will come more quickly to them if they train themselves as southpaws.

Every team has at least one left-handed pitcher and several left-handed batters, but the Steins Printers' team of Fort Worth, Tex., is composed entirely of players who bat and throw left-handed. I bet they even shake hands with the wrong fin!

EIGHT NEW MANAGERS IN MAJORS

American Loop Changes Five Pilots; Trio Make National Debut

NEW YORK, Jan. 29. (Exclusive)—No less than eight new managers will make their debut when the American and National League races get under way in April. The American League holds the edge with five new skippers, while three new pilots have taken up charge of clubs in the senior circuit.

Tris Speaker

Never in the history of major league baseball have so many managers been changed and the new leaders are expected to make the coming races a lot more interesting. New faces, new managers and new tactics always interest baseball fans.

One of the most important changes occurred in National League ranks when Rogers Hornsby, who piloted the St. Louis Cardinals to a pennant and their first world's championship, was traded to the New York Giants for Frankie Frisch. Hornsby is succeeded by Bob O'Farrell, a catcher, who was voted the most valuable player in baseball last year.

St. Louis is to have another new manager aside from O'Farrell, for Dan Howley, former Toronto skipper, has been appointed to succeed George Sisler, who has had little success as a pilot.

Cleveland also had to name a new manager after Tris Speaker resigned and Jack McCallister was selected to fill "Spoke's" shoes. Speaker piloted the Indians to second place last year, his club very nearly beating out the Yankees.

Ty Cobb also resigned so the Detroit Tigers will present George Moriarty, former umpire, as their new pilot. Cobb never could get along with his players and the Tigers consequently didn't cut much figure despite their great talent. Moriarty is expected to make the Detroit team a strong flag contender.

Ray Schalk, veteran catcher, is the new manager of the Chicago White Sox. Eddie Collins was deposed because Owner Comiskey thought his playing days were numbered, but Connie Mack promptly signed up the ex-Chisox skipper.

The fifth new American League pilot is Bill Carrigan, who is to succeed Lee Fohl as boss of the Boston Red Sox. Carrigan used to manage the Red Sox in their palmy days and Boston fans are pulling for him to get the Bean Town back on the baseball map.

Donie Bush will be seen as the new manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates. Bill McKechnie was dropped after the Bucs had a run-in with him last summer.

The last of the new skippers is "Stuffy" McInnis, who will pilot the Phillies. McInnis was given his outright release by Pittsburgh and promptly caught on as manager with the Phils when Art Fletcher was signed by McGraw as assistant manager of the New York Giants.

THE ONLY ONE

Billy Burch, captain of the New York Rangers, is the only star in professional hockey today who is American-born, having first seen the light of day in Yonkers.

BOEHLER THROWS NO

One of the main reasons why the Tribune sold the Acorn stars to the Oaks was a couple of years ago Oakland's flag chances if the team's big pitcher, George Boehler, the lad was [illegible] Oaks a couple of years ago, rejoined with the Hooligans last season without distinguishing himself, but George has come back he's a pretty heavy boy now, but even though he may be a bit too fat in the season, Boehler has a rubber arm, throws an awful lot a week, and the funny part about is that he wins most of the What George gets out of [illegible] has control of his fast ball when George has control of his hard one it's generally too hot for opposition.

Another hurling prospect made by the Oaks is Ivan Howard, who was rushed to the Seattle Indians in 1925 by Uncle Sam's draft board. Howard stamps finely now as the best pitcher in the club, with good support behind him should win more than half of games.

Add Boehler and Howard to Ira Kraus, the veteran southpaw hurler, Art Delaney, Bert Purdy Gould, Pete McGarr, Ira Craghead and Pete Bogh, and ought to total up enough to see you that the Oaks will have termed by the big boss of the as soon as a few pitchers get of the regulation of pitchers clubs, the Acorns are very in this department of the

ADDITION OF HORNSBY MAKES GIANTS PENNANT CONTENDERS

NEW YORK, Jan. 29. (Exclusive)—John McGraw is out to bring the National League pennant back to New York in this, his twenty-sixth season as manager of the Giants. The Giants wound up in the second division last year, but McGraw has made changes in his line-up and he hopes and believes that his club will be right in the thick of the pennant fight this season.

Foremost among the deals negotiated by the "Napoleon of Baseball" was the one which sent Frankie Frisch and Jimmy Ring to the St. Louis Cardinals for Rogers Hornsby, six-time leading hitter of the senior circuit and manager of the world's champions last year.

With Hornsby sitting in at second base, McGraw believes that he has a player whose thinking ability will fortify the Giants with baseball brains on the as well as on the batting Frisch to [illegible] Hornsby fell down in last season, but it is that manager's [illegible] his slumping of the

WILLIAMS GETS NEW UMPS

When the Pacific Coast League season gets under way March 29 President Harry A. Williams will parade five new umpires before the fans. All five of them won't be newcomers, for two previously umpired in this loop, but there are only three arbiters held over from last year's staff.

"Chocy" Becker, who does a lot of things besides umpiring well, Ed Goes and "Slats" Davis are the holdovers, Prexy Williams has also resurrected Mal Eason, a former Coast League arbiter, who did a comeback in the Eastern League last year. Perle Casey, who acted in the role of coach and scout for Bill Lane's Hollywood Stars last season, is also back in the umpiring role. Both Eason and Casey are real good umpires and will be welcomed into the fold.

The three newcomers are Frank Brown, from the Eastern loop, Fred Westervelt, who comes from the Virginia League, and Henry Fanning, the one-armed arbiter whom Williams secured from the Texas League.

GEORGE BOEHLER

BOEHLER BRINGS JOY

One of the main reasons why the Terrible and the Acorn ...siasts are so optimistic over this season's flag chances is the return of George Boehler, the iron man of the Oaks a couple of years ago. Boehler sojourned with the Brooklyn Dodgers last season without distinguishing himself, but George has proven that he's a super-heated wow in the box when Joseph may be a cold proposition in the majors. Boehler owns a rubber arm, thrives on two games a week, and the funny part about it is that he wins most of the time. When George gets lots of work he has control of his high hard one, but when George has control of his high hard one it's generally too bad for the opposition.

Another hurling acquisition made by the Oaks is long ... Hasty, who was purchased from the Seattle Indians for 7000 of Uncle Sam's green trading stamps. Hasty may not be the best pitcher in the world, but with good support behind him he should win more than half of his games.

Add Boehler and Hasty to Ed Krause, the veteran southpaw hurler, Art Delaney, Buck Freeman, Pudgy Gould, Pete McKeary, Howard Craghead and Pete Daglia and ought to total up enough to convince you that the Oaks will have what is termed by the big boys around as a sweet pitching staff. As much as sweet pitching staffs are one of the requisites of pennant winning clubs, the Acorns are fully equipped in this department of the pastime.

The Acorns are slightly weak in the catching department, where Ike Boxl and Del Baker held forth, but that can be overlooked if you are an Oakland rooter.

The infield is all set with Joe Fenton at first, Jimmy Reese at second, Lyn Lary at short and Jimmy Caveney at third. Fenton is a near fielder and he figures to improve in his hitting this year because he's a youngster. Will Louie Guisto elected to manage the Ogden Club in the Utah-Idaho League, Fenton will have to come through unless the Oaks pick up another first sacker between now and March 25.

Lary and Reese make up the fastest keystone combination in the circuit and they ought to be even better this season with another year of experience under their belts. Reese is a brilliant fielder and he's also a dangerous man up at the plate. Brubaker is available for utility duty. So much for the infield.

BIG BUZZ IS BACK

In the outfield there will be ... Arlett, the loops best slugger, in right, Joe Gretcher in left, Ralph ... in center and Tony Governor when ... and whenever he happens to be needed. There's power at the plate and better than average fielding ability here.

The only real loss the Oaks suffered from last year's squad will be the services of Hubert "Shucks" Pruett, the southpaw slowballer who was drafted by the Phillies. Pruett won more than twenty games last year, but the Oakland bosses believe that Boehler and Hasty will more than take Pruett's place on the mound.

with baseball brains on the field as well as on the bench. Hornsby will act as field captain, relieving Frisch in this capacity. Hornsby fell down by batting last season, but it is thought that managerial worries caused his slumping at the plate.

The veteran George Kelly and Ted Terry will battle it out for the first baseman job. McGraw has the inside lead that Terry has the inside track, but Jackson will hold forth at short and flashy Freddy Lindstrom will be at third. Then there will be Andy Cohen and Eddie Farrell available for utility infield duty.

In the outfield McGraw has Ross Young, who was handicapped by injuries last year; Ty Tyson and Irish Mueller as regulars, Johnston a holdover, looks like the best of the other outfielders on the club.

Al Devormer, who has been with the Yankees and Red Sox in the majors, will do the bulk of the catching. Devormer was given the chased from Louisville, where he has been going great guns for the Colonels. Paul Florence will no doubt be the second-string ... deliver.

Simon-Pures Prepare for Assault on Coast Boxing Titles

Olympic Auditorium Will be a Busy Spot When Amateurs Get Busy Wednesday and Thursday nights.

BIG HOOP AFFAIR IS EXPECTED

Many Crack Quintets to Enter Championships at Kansas City

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 29. (AP)—baseball may be the national game, but Kansas City, preparing for its seventh national Amateur Athletic Union basketball tournament, remains true to the indoor sport.

Claiming more basketball teams than any other city of its size, Kansas City is not stinting itself on preparations.

More than 27,000 persons trailed into Convention Hall during the six days of the 1926 tournament and paid $18,428.25 to watch the matches.

This year, beginning March 14, next, the Hillyard team of St. Joseph, Mo., national champions, will defend the title against more than forty crack quintets.

Dr. Joseph A. Reilly, athletic director of the Kansas City Athletic Club and nationally known sport official, largely was instrumental in bringing the first tournament here in 1921 and in making Kansas City the basketball center for subsequent A.A.U. tournaments. His teams have held the championship at various times and it was a K.C.A.C. five that pushed into the final bracket with the Hillyards last year. Reilly has managed all the Kansas City tournaments.

As a preliminary to the national event, the Southern A.A.U. open will be in Dallas, Tex., March 4 and 5, next.

GREECE CHALLENGES FOR DAVIS NET CUP

Greece is the most recent challenger of the Davis Cup. It is the thirty-first country to seek the valuable trophy since the first contest was played between the United States and Great Britain twenty-eight years ago. Since that time thirty nations, representing Europe, North and South America, Australia and New Zealand, have participated in the annual tennis competition.

CHAMPIONS HAVE BAD SPELL IN PAST YEAR

One hundred and seventy-six world champions lost their crowns during last year. Seventy-one titles were successfully defended in thirty branches of amateur and professional sports.

THEVENOW BEST SHORTSTOP

"Silent Tommy" Best Fielder in Game Says Hornsby Praising Card Star; Ball Dependable

When Rogers Hornsby came East in February of 1926 to attend the National League's golden jubilee dinner he declared that Tommy Thevenow would be the star shortstop of the coming season. The New York newspaper boys smiled tolerantly at Hornsby's enthusiasm. The declaration followed a query regarding his team's pennant chances. Hornsby modestly predicted the Cards would win their first pennant that year. Then he was asked upon what grounds he predicted his prophecy. And it was gathered from his prompt and emphatic reply that Thevenow was one of his main and principal grounds.

"Tommy is the best fielding shortstop in the game," averred the Cardinal manager.

TOMMY THEVENOW

"But he cannot hit," objected one of the newspaper boys.

"He can hit when hits are needed most," was the cryptic retort.

Now, not a soul in that group took Hornsby's boost of Thevenow seriously. The best they could give Tommy was that he was a brilliant but uncertain fielder, a weak hitter, according to the most deceitful averages, and just a kid with only a half-season of big-league play behind him.

His record last year, closely studied and considered as a whole, is a baseball epoch. Only 22 years of age, playing his first full major-league season, this boy was a vital cog in the Cardinal pennant machine, second only to O'Farrell, and he was second to none in value as a world series player. Let us look over this rookie's record with some care. He played in 156 games, which is to say, in every game in which his team took part. It is harder to replace an ailing shortstop than any other cog in the old machinery. He accepted 1013 chances during the season, over 100 more than any fielder in his league, excepting of course, the first baseman. He batted only .255, rahking 102nd among the hitters, yet he scored sixty-four runs, that is to say, more than did Hargraves, batting champion of the year, and he batted in sixty-three runs. Thus this alleged weak hitter accounted for 127 runs. Less than half of the first twenty batsmen of the league accounted for this many runs. The batting averages do not begin to set forth one-half of this wonderful kid's value to his team on the offense.

But it was in the world series, the final and acid test of the year, that the boy showed his amazing class as a money player. He led all players in that struggle in hitting with an average of .417. He scored five runs, and Southworth alone led him by one in this most important feature. He had twenty-six assists, more than any man in the series. He hit a home run. He made the most marvelous fielding play of the classic. And last of all it was his hit that brought in two of his team's three runs that won the last and decisive game of the series.

It has come to be pretty well agreed that Alexander and Thevenow were the heroes of the last world series.

Tommy Thevenow was born in Madison, Ind., and that place is still his home town. He played on the lots there, and from a semi-pro he went right into Branch Rickey's big net. They called him "Silent Tommy," and with cause. His home tried its best last fall when he came home to make him a hero, but the modest, quiet, regular boy simply would not be one. According to Bruce Dudley, that Louisville Courier-Journal sports authority, Thevenow's name is pronounced "Teve-naw." The "h" is as silent as is Tommy himself.

They said that Lester Bell looked like Hornsby when he came to the Cardinals in the fall of 1923 from Houston of the Texas League. And he did look a good deal like the famous hitter in the matter of size and manner of his walk and position on the field. But he did not play like him. He was awkward. His fielding was ragged and his hitting most uncertain. So he was farmed out to Milwaukee and did not return until 1925. He was 24 that year and had begun to find himself. His awkwardness gave way to some pretty steady and sterling third-base play. His hitting, however, was still below the .300 mark.

LESTER BELL

Last season Bell got into his own. He batted .323 and blossomed out as a slugger with thirty-three doubles, fourteen triples and seventeen homeruns to his credit. His third-base play showed still more improvement. In fact, Bell suddenly developed to that point where he was spoken of as Pie Traynor's one and only rival to that proud title of the world's greatest third-baseman.

Emery Heads Card at New Fight Arena

Art Emery and Jimmy Schwartz are announced as the head-liners in the opening boxing bill of the newly organized and licensed Ocean Park Athletic Association, which proposes to hold boxing exhibitions each Wednesday evening, commencing February 2, at the Fun Palace, Ocean Park Pier.

Claiming a decision over Babe Joe Cana, Emery is expected to open a favorite, although promoters are keeping a watchful eye on Schwartz, who is a youngster with promise, rapidly forging to the front. He figures this match will prove the entering wedge to some juicy bouts.

In the semifinals Young Bello and Dave Mustaffa will cross gloves. These lads are popular in all arenas in Southern California and should strengthen the card. Preliminary lads will be announced later.

Claude Bridge—Tex Rickard of the Bay District—is president of the new fight club and promises a close supervision over all matches. Warren Eccles, associated with the Fun Palace, is vice-president and business manager, while Max Rothman, who needs no introduction to fight followers in this section, has been obtained as matchmaker.

FIGHT LACKING AS BAN PASSES

Magnates Without Anything to Scrap About

Johnson Fired Interest in Game With Tilts

Silent Objections to Landis Rule Are Evidenced

CHICAGO, Jan. 29.—If Ban Johnson is out of baseball to stay, then the magnates may well stop and ask themselves, "what will the harvest be?"

Johnson made the American League because he was a bulldog. That same quality made him the dominant figure in the game. He ruled so extensively that a way finally had to be devised to curb him. The way was found in the creation of the job given to Landis. Its success was possible because Johnson, in his fearless manner, had many enemies.

But the break-up of the old national commission, of which he, along with two National League men, was a member, merely robbed him of some of his power. The power of speech was not included, so Ban kept on talking when he felt the need of so doing, and he finally talked himself into retirement that he actually needed. For his own safety he should have stepped out years previous, but that old bulldog tenacity asserted itself to the last.

FIGHT OR DIE

If Johnson never returns to active harness, and his health, judging from his present condition, will not permit that, what will the magnates have to fight about? They must have something or baseball wouldn't be baseball.

For years the National League was constantly in hot water because of internal and petty politics and the lack of a determined executive. One man who stirred up much of the rumpus, and whose presence in baseball today might help the game considerably, was Charles W. Murphy, the Cub owner, who would fight anybody just so long as the papers published the fight by rounds. Murphy by his bickerings created interest in the game. He paid his team members good salaries, and fans flocked to his park, until finally he retired with a vast bank roll.

When Murphy departed, carrying the shoestring that had swelled into $1,000,000, the National League's troubles continued on a smaller scale. The troubles might have assumed greater proportions, but the owners were weary, with the Federal League war and didn't have the stamina for a good free-for-all fight among themselves.

Then the American League got into trouble over the Carl Mays sale by Boston to New York. Mays deliberately quit the Red Sox to force his sale to the Yanks. Johnson tried to discipline him by blocking the deal. The Boston and New York owners went to court about it. Charles Comiskey, the White Sox owner, who had no part in this affair, threw his support to the two eastern malcontents, but he saw a chance to assail Johnson, his sworn enemy.

LANDIS ELECTED

And from that alignment in the Mays case where Johnson was trying to do his duties as league president, came the revolt that finally resulted in the hiring of Landis at $50,000 per annum. The National League, sore at the old commission in general, but Johnson in particular, was ready to accept anything.

Five American League clubs held out against the proposition. That was late in 1920. The National League, aided by the three rebels from the American, made a bluff to create a twelve-club circuit and put the five loyal American Leaguers out of business. The five held out for a time, but Frank Navin, the Detroit owner, finally capitulated and when he gave up, the other four consented to follow suit. Landis' part in the scheme was objectionable to some from the start, and the idea that baseball is being ruled by "might" still prevails. The owners don't say so out loud, but they talk where the walls have ears.

The objection is not that Landis rules. Any other man might have been given the job, but it so happened that Landis was mentioned prominently by the newspapers and he was friendly with some of the magnates who played leading parts in the new arrangement. The objection lies in the belief that the American League is merely the tail of the dog.

That brings us down to the point of what will happen eventually. Johnson seems to be out, so will give the newspapers no more good, snappy stories. There will be an entirely new political alignment. Somebody will be left out in the cold and that somebody probably will talk. The talk will create a stir and thus baseball will continue to be a summer sport of athletes and a winter sport of those who thrive on recrimination and vituperation.

Indian Boss Expert as 'Battery Man'

BY AL DEMAREE
(Former Pitcher New York Giants)

Genial Jack McCallister, the new Cleveland pilot, steps into a tough spot in succeeding Tris Speaker, not only a great playing manager, but a good leader of men, also.

From what I can gather from ball players, who have worked with Jack however, he is another Pat Moran and Dan Howley combined, when it comes to working and jockeying pitchers.

All practical baseball men admit that pitching is over 50 per cent of a ball club's strength.

McCallister is the type of manager who will make his pitching staff doubly effective by picking spots for them. Pat Moran was a wizard in this line. He kept a chart of his pitchers' effectiveness against all clubs and then only started them against certain clubs against whom they were effective. Pat could tell you almost down to every base hit and base on balls for five years back, just how effective and lucky certain pitchers on his club were against all other clubs. A manager who is a good "batterry man" gives his pitchers a big advantage.

LOUISIANA HAS NEW TURF STAR

Justice F. Displays Class at New Orleans

English Colt May Race in Coffroth Stake

Will be Pointed as Starter in Kentucky Derby

BY FRENCH LANE

NEW ORLEANS (La.) Jan. 29.—Another sensational 3-year-old, one which may take rank with Black Gold, Quatrain, Bagdbaggage and other stars of the past, has developed here during the winter racing season.

He is an English bred colt called Justice F. and is owned by William Daniel of Chicago, who owned and developed Master Charley, a 3-year-old champion of a few seasons ago.

Justice F. has taken front rank among the 3-year-olds here by beating practically all the good ones of his age, going as far as a mile and seventy yards. He has given every indication of being a genuine route runner, one which probably can stand the grind of a Kentucky Derby test by next May. His biggest rival here is the Kentucky colt Scotland.

EYES KENTUCKY DERBY

Daniel has instructed H. C. Riddle, his trainer, to point the young English thoroughbred for the Derby, keeping in mind also, the Louisiana Derby here in March and possibly a trip to Tia Juana for the Coffroth Handicap.

That is a difficult task to ask of a 3-year-old, but Justice F. looks so powerful, so rugged and takes to his training so kindly, he has impressed veteran turfmen as the kind of race horse that thrives on work.

Sen Irish, one of the most famous racing men in England, bred Justice F. The colt is by Abbotts Trace-Icemond, which gives him some of the best English thoroughbred blood lines. He was brought to America as a yearling and went under the hammer in the Saratoga sales ring where Mr. Daniel paid a fat price for him.

He was given an easy campaign as a 2-year-old, not being asked to do much either in training or racing until the season opened at the Fair Grounds on New Year's Day.

WINS EARLY RACES

He won his first race less than a fortnight ago, it being a sprint affair at six furlongs in which he showed his heels to some good horses. Then only last week he was asked to try his stamina at a mile and seventy yards and won in such handy fashion, after almost getting left at the post, that he already is heralded as a coming star.

Daniel picked Master Charley up at the yearling sales at Saratoga for $1000, then won $100,000 in stakes with him as a 3-year-old. Master Charley went wrong while a Derby favorite early in his 3-year-old year and was soon retired from active racing.

The Chicagoan soon after that misstep announced he was going to get out of racing and, until Justice F. began showing such good form here this winter, took little interest in his horses. He is enthusiastic about this colt, however, and believes, like a number of other turfmen, that Justice F. will develop into a much better horse than Master Charley.

CHARLEY HARVEY MOST PERFECT OF FIGHT MANAGERS, IS CLAIM

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—It is rather unconventional to prattle about a manager of prize fighters as a paragon of probity and a model for the young but old Charlie Harvey has been poking that wire-haired mustache and that squinty smile of his through the ropes for three or four decades now and I have never heard him cuss or swear, or tell a story that wouldn't be fit for household use, nor did I ever hear a word against the man. From this you might picture old Charlie as a typical Honest John or some one recently deceased, of which he is neither. There is usually something mysterious about an Honest John, whereas old Charlie is as plain as print. He was in the ring only a few nights ago fretting around Elzie Clark, the Scottish flyweight champion during Clark's bout with Fidel La Barba and at that time I thought it would be a worthy idea to swing out into space and spread a good man's reputation while he is still alive to enjoy it.

IS BROAD-MINDED

This old fellow is in no way preachy or sanctimonious, with virtue painted on him, you understand, and he does not roll his eyes or fold his hands when some one speaks rawboned language in his hearing. He keeps his principles inside and wears no nimbus.

As a rule these stories of the survival of the old standard virtues in the prize fight business are told about the combatants, not the managers, and most of them are a little too sweet for one who likes his sport characters somewhat tart. The new champion used to be a newsboy, he goes to church, supports his parents, has never hit a lady and is personally acquainted with Douglas Fairbanks. Such accounts always remind me of a sentimental double scotch folk song some times heard in London, called "Don't Sock Your Grandmaw, It's Mean."

"Don't sock your grandmother, just cause she's old.

Don't mop the floor with her fice
Remember her love is a treasure of gold.
Shining through shime and disgrice.
Don't put the rocking chair next to her eye
Don't bounce the lamp off her bean.
Angels are watching you up in the sky.
So don't sock your grandmaw—it's mean."

Old Charlie has specialized in the importation of British fist-fighters and he has had some very good ones along with the human horizon lines who have eaten his chowder and ridden on his mileage, for he once handled Owen Moran and Jem Driscoll simultaneously. This was something like being attorney for both sides of a divorce suit because Moran and Driscoll would have clawed one another to strings if Charles had let them come together which he prudently did not, keeping one up in Westchester county, north of New York, and the other fifty miles away on the Jersey side. They were the last good ones Charlie received from the other side although he has brought over about fifty since then.

BOUT SUSPICIOUS

When Clark took his licking from La Barba the bout had some peculiar aspects because La Barba bounced Clark all over the floor in the first three rounds and then seemed to coast. It wasn't a very good fight and at the finish one of the witnesses said that if old Charlie hadn't been in Clark's corner he would have had his suspicions.

A man must have quite a reputation to quiet the misgivings of an expert with cynical leanings by his mere presence in a corner. So old Charlie Harvey obviously is something of a prophet on his own front stoop.

Harvey stamps around on a stiff leg now, his face isn't what it used to be; his wire-haired mustache is the color of dead grass and his squinty eyes are imbedded more deeply in the wrinkles.

The prize fight people are a gossipy lot and if a man should steal a paper of pins you would presently hear that he had walked into a place with a gun and rolled away a keg of railroad spikes.

If old Charles ever had done anything plum wrong you would have heard of it by now but his reputation improves with age and it seems in order to tell these things on him while he can still hear the applause.

STARTED EARLY

Newell W. Banks, checker champion of the United States, started to defeat nationally known experts when he was only 10 years old and at 14 toured the country, defeating from twenty to forty players in simultaneous exhibitions.

CAULIFLOWER ALLEY NOTES

Master-matchmaker Joe Levy may not know how to negotiate a Chinese treaty, or to write as humorously as does Will Rogers, but he is a yard wide when it comes to digging up good fistic pairings. Knowing full well that his clientele at the Olympic Auditorium dotes on slugging exchanges with a rapid-fire accompaniment, he has cooked up a clash between Ace Hudkins (Nebraska Wildcat) and Billy Alger, another member of the feline race. Now Joe is where further ado shall the rack to advantage next Tuesday night, for the fluffy stuff should fly in generous quantities even after the gong clangs. Since his last appearance Ace has lowered the colony of six easterners and is at the highest pitch of his prowess. Input the astronomical chart on Ruby Goldstein—yes—stay a moment—so did Billy Alger. This makes public form an even-steven affair. The art of boxing will be loosed into the discard and a substitute in the way of a felonious assault will be dished up in all its riotous pleasure to clear the agenda—toot the sounding bishamy, and woe to the luckless spectator of the Simon-pures' thumbs-down spoiler.

Harry Wolmrun is having a devil of a time of it to get matches for his 158-pound dream, Mickey Ezzo. Mickey has a number of high-flying scraps dangling to his belt and is fit, willing and anxious to rub gloves with the best the market affords. Matchmaker, wake up.

During a sensational knockout at Butte recently, a stray spectator rushed from the crowd toward the ring shouting, "Let me in there; I'll bring him to." "Come on, me man," greeted the second of the prostrate pugilist, "and I'll drink one with you."

Chick Egan, a 130-pounder from Salt Lake, is here starting defiance at the best in his class. Chick has put seventeen of his opponents into the main chest in his last twenty-nine scraps and claims he can keep the good work up if given a chance at any of the best clubs. He boxed two rounds with ex-Champion Jack Dempsey last Tuesday at the Mayfair, and showed up in fine style. He is under the management of the hustling Paul Mullin, the man who tipped the brother chosen off to Dick Ferris.

On his squattle laurels William Wrigley, Jr., rested long. A Scotch boxing promoter in Chicago went the gum grandee a few thousand better by offering (open to the entire world) any man, woman or child $41,000 to swim the Pacific Ocean. A few moments after this cynical-ed announcement, the same Scotchman was found dividing his sun and daylight among a bunch of patent swappers.

Billy Vincent has been punch jarred on quite recently in his Manhat. workouts that he has come into the belief that a sidestriver is a surgical instrument.

Mike Fuoss, Cauliflower Alley philosopher, declares the pen most code to the sword. Mike is his reason, homespun style, wails as follows: "They gave Young Jeanty-five grand and a chance to make it 150 grand for paddling the Pacific and handed Wertz a tin medal for proving himself to be the greatest kid cruiser of all times."

Phil Salvadore as a fighter is a deadly lightning switchhitter. When Young Corbett hit him in the mouth in the third round and dislodged a dentist's delight, the cost Phil twenty bucks. The old scrapper suddenly lifted the fallen arches of his dome. "Dee," reasoned he, "the house is small and if I lose two more teeth I won't break even on my chore." Then and there he regained his addled up in the resin dust while the band played that famous dentist song, "The yanks are coming."

An empty was bounding all over the Main-street floor last Monday in a whirl at shadow boxing. Many were marveling at his active bounding when along came Jimmy Burns and threw cold water on the performance. "That isn't bouncing; he's simply shell shocked from eating hard-boiled eggs."

VON ELM AND HUNTER AT LAKESIDE NEXT SUNDAY

Amateur Champs Tackle Guest and Diegel in 36-Hole Match Before Local Fans

BY BILL WISE

George Von Elm, national amateur champ, and Dr. Paul Hunter, southern State titlist and former Walker Cup internationalist, rated the greatest simon-pure team in the West, will meet Charlie Guest and Leo Diegel in a special thirty-six-hole exhibition match at the Lakeside Golf Club, one week from today.

Guest, runner-up in the $10,000 Los Angeles open championship, is playing the sweetest golf of his tee and greens career—and, playing over his home course, should be more than capable of matching shots with California's greatest amateur, in the coming match.

Paul Hunter, one of the greatest match players the West has ever known, ably held up his end of the slashing offensive staged by himself and Von Elm to defeat the peerless Walter Hagen and Willie Hunter, in two local matches recently. Hunter will draw the stiffest assignment of his honorable career when he attempts to outstroke, or at least hold, Leo Diegel.

Diegel will always be rated by the writer as the longest wood shot player in the world—and Leo confided the exclusive information last week that he was back on his tee shots for the first time in months. When right, Diegel carries past the longest drivers in recent history—and gets his greatest accuracy with his longest tries.

Diegel is one of the most colorful players in the country and during an important championship, last year, scored four birdies, two eagles—and still another birdie, on consecutive holes, leaving himself putts within twelve inches of each cup. His longest approach was 240 yards, and his shortest—a tee shot on a 155-yard hole, a record that should carry "Dieg" for years to come.

Von Elm needs just about as much introduction as the Lakeside Golf Club. Russ Fawcett, greens chairman, has the greatest golf test in the West—really one of the finest in the world, in marvelous shape. Herb Wilson, custodian of the eighteen most perfect greens any golfer has ever known, will be busy—both with greens and his newly formed vocational association—but the layout will be in championship shape, stretched to the limit, and the distinguished quartet will be offered every inducement to play the best golf of the year.

Douglas Fairbanks, a personal friend of all four contestants, will referee the thirty-six-hole affair, which will get under way at 10 o'clock one week from next Sunday morning. The afternoon round will start at 1:30 o'clock. The event will be open to all golfers and friends.

TUCSON GOLFERS TO BACK MUNICIPAL CLUB

TUCSON (Ariz.) Jan. 29. (Exclusive)—With intention of sending contesting members to the State and southwestern tournaments, there has been organization of the Tucson Municipal Golf Course Club. P. C. Davidson of the Southern Pacific's traffic department has been elected president and Harry Kline, the course professional, is secretary.

GRID STAR IN BASEBALL

Emile "Red" Barnes, captain and star halfback of Alabama's "Crimson Tide," has been signed to play with the Birmingham ball club of the Southern League.

Midwick Set for Golfers Next Friday

All golfers whose handicaps are eight or less and who are regular or special members of the clubs in either Southern or Northern California Golf Associations are invited to play in the third Scotch foursome tournament at Midwick Country Club starting next Friday.

The match will be between teams of two men entered from the same club. Each team plays one ball only. Each member of the team shall make his shots in turn except that neither shall drive from two tees in succession.

A qualifying round of eighteen holes will be played Friday. The sixteen teams with the lowest gross scores will continue at match play. There will be two rounds at eighteen holes each on Saturday, and two rounds of eighteen holes each on Sunday.

The winning team will be awarded a trophy presented by John S. Cravens, which will be held by the golf club which they represent until the following year. Two wins will give permanent possession of the cup. Trophies will be given to the individual members of the winning team and the individual members of the team winning the qualifying round.

Match play will be at handicap, each team being allowed one-half of the combined handicap. There will be no entrance fees and entrants may play on the Midwick course Thursday.

Winners 1925: Messrs. McDonald and Stats of San Gabriel Country Club.
Winners 1926: Messrs. W. W. Campbell and W. C. O. Smith, Los Angeles Country Club.

GROVER LAND SIGNS TO HELP BOSS REDS

NEW PUBLIC LINKS FOR GOLFERS

Sunset Fields Courses to be Welcome Boon for Local Exponents

The two Sunset Fields Public Golf Club all-grass eighteen-hole golf courses, work on the first of which is already well under way, will be closer to a greater majority of the people of metropolitan Los Angeles than any other public courses now in this section.

According to a survey made by officials of the club, 75 per cent of the population of Los Angeles, with its new hotel and apartment-house district will be within a five-mile radius of Sunset Fields, which is located on Angeles Mesa Drive, between Santa Barbara and Vernon avenues.

The courses at Sunset Fields are being constructed after a survey made by the officials of the club as well as by the Junior Chamber of Commerce showed that the present golfing facilities were entirely inadequate for this great and growing city.

It was pointed out that Chicago had 5 per cent of all the links in the country and 10 per cent of all the players, because of the large number of courses open to the public at popular prices. With thousands from the eastern States coming to Southern California each year, many of whom are ardent public course golfers, it has become apparent that more pay-as-you-play grass courses would be needed to care for them.

The two to be constructed immediately at Sunset Fields by William P. Bell, the architect who designed El Caballero, Bel-Air, Ojai, San Pedro, Girard and others, will rank with the best in the State. When Bell saw the land on which the courses were to be built, he declared he had never seen anything so close-in, and although he had been around this section of Southern California for many years, he never imagined such land existed. The first course, he declared, would be opened in July, and construction work on the second would start after the first had been seeded.

Phoenix Rodeo Huge Success; Made Fixture

PHOENIX, Jan. 29. (Exclusive)—Despite its name, the first "Sunclad Climate Midwinter Rodeo" at the State Fair Grounds went through its four days with only a dash of rain. Sponsored by the Phoenix Junior Chamber of Commerce, it is to be made an annual affair. A hundred or more real cowpunchers gathered for the sports, under direction of the veteran "Doc" Pardee, and the great grandstand daily was well filled. Some of the most notorious outlaw horses of the Southwest had been collected, tossing many riders on the first day, but gentling toward the end of the show. A trio of the worst of the buckers had been dubbed "Bolshevik," "Dry Farmer" and "Aimee McPherson."

The heaviest winnings were those of Lawrence Conley of Buckeye, Ariz., and Bob Crosby of Kenna, N. M., who took first and second in the steer breakaways and who are credited with prize moneys aggregating $2000. Mike Stewart of Casa Grande was first in the bronco riding, Kay Dunn of Odessa, Tex., and J. H. Strickland of Hollywood tying for second money. Ike Rude of Mangum, Okla., won the calf-roping finals, with Lee Robinson of Fort Worth, Tex., second. Leadership in the bulldogging events went to the Apache reservation section of the Gila Valley, from which come the winners, Ed Bowman of San Carlos and Everett Bowman of Geronimo.

HAGEN GREAT SHOT MAKER

Peerless Pro Challenges Orthodox Exponents by Using Putter in Sand Traps and Upsets Tradition With Other Shots

BY BUNKER

Leo Diegel and Gene Sarazen were playing a round at Gene's Club, the Fresh Meadow, Flushing, L. I., and Leo stuck an iron shot into a trap built into the edge of one of the greens.

Walter Hagen

He climbed into the trap, saw that he had a sloping bank in front of him, played out with a putter, holed his ball and beat Sarazen's certain 4 with a birdie 3. "Murder!" said Gene.

A week or so later, they were out again. Again Leo played into the trap and in the identical position his ball had found before. But when he prepared to get out he suddenly paused.

"Hey!" he demanded of Sarazen. "What have you been doing to this bunker?"

"Nothing," rejoined Gene, "except that I've had that bank out so that nobody is going to play out of it with a putter hereafter."

This time Sarazen won the hole.

HAGEN IS KINGPIN

Unorthodox use of the putter is a department of play the golfing tyro is slow to adopt. Yet the professionals find many uses for the putter other than upon the green, and often important matches depend upon such plays.

It is unanimously agreed that Walter Hagen has no peer at using the putter in playing out of traps with shallow, sloping sides, in running the ball up to the cup from behind banks at the edge of the green, or in making approach putts from the fairway near the green.

A notable instance of Hagen's use of a putter out of a trap was that which occurred some years ago during a trip to England. He and Macdonald Smith played a four-ball match against George Duncan and Jim Barnes at Walton Heath. It was a hot struggle right to the finish.

On one of the closing holes all four were in bad on their second shots. Smith and Barnes were unable to recover on their third shots, putting the hole up to Hagen and Duncan, both of whom were trapped off the side of the green.

Duncan took out his niblick and tried an explosion shot, but didn't take enough sand and failed. Hagen, studying the bunkers, noticed that the bank was sloping and that there was no grass at the top.

"I think I'll use my putter," he said, and, while the gallery looked on amazed, he ran his ball a foot from the cup. He and Mac Smith won the hole, and, a bit later, the match.

"Was Hagen's use of the putter golf?" the British experts queried in next day's papers.

"The game is to hole the ball," was Hagen's statement of his view. "I'll use a putter out of a trap whenever the opportunity offers."

In another match abroad, Hagen and Barnes played Abe Mitchell and George Duncan.

Mitchell and Duncan got a lead of three holes and when Hagen found himself trapped at the green's edge on the next hole, he felt things were becoming desperate.

"Well," he told Barnes, "we've spotted these boys all the holes we can afford to."

With that he took out his putter, ran his ball up the bunker bank and almost sank it, stopping ten inches beyond the cup.

The match tightened up, but in the end the Britishers won.

Hagen's argument is that in the matter of direction you can always control the ball better with a straight-faced club and that you should use one if it is at all possible to get out of the trap.

Hagen is deadly at running up long approach putts off the edge of the green.

In the last P.G.A. championship finals at Salisbury, against Leo Diegel, Walter was seventy-five feet short of the cup on his second shot on one hole, while Leo was about twenty feet beyond. The match at this stage was close and he couldn't afford to lose the hole. But he would have to make a humdinger of an approach or he would take a 5, while Leo was practically certain of his 4.

Hagen studied the situation carefully. It would do him no good to play past the cup and lay Leo a stymie, because he couldn't prevent him from making his 4. His whole strategy must be based on not losing the hole by making a 5 himself.

If he played past the cup, Leo might then stymie him. Also, if he was too short, Leo might stymie him. There was only one way for him to avert disaster. That was to approach to a spot less than a foot from the hole. The chances against his holing a 3 were 1000 to 1.

Walter's seventy-five-foot putt, from fairway grass, ended just six inches from the cup. The hole was halved and Diegel was stopped from them on.

Putting over banks at the edge of greens is one of the things that Walter loves to do. You know the shot. There is a grassy bank in front of you. The green begins at the top of the bank and slopes down to the cup, which is set near the bank. You can't chip over, because your ball is bound to run far past the cup.

Walter plays these shots firmly, but with just enough to carry the ball past the place where the bank meets the green. The downward slope of the green does the rest. His ball trickles close to the cup. Sometimes it goes on.

Facing such a bank, with its side clothed in long grass, Walter has been known to take his putter and drive his ball through with a swing varying from one-half to three-quarters. On one occasion he holed a three-quarter bank shot on the eighteenth green and won an important match.

FAMOUS ARCHITECTS TO CONFER ON NEW CAVE LANDING COURSE

A real battery of golf architects will work together to make the links of the new Cave Landing Country Club, located near Pismo Beach, midway between Los Angeles and San Francisco, one of the very best in the country, it was announced yesterday.

This crew, whose work on other courses in this section of the State need little comment as they speak for themselves, will be headed by John Duncan Dunn. Collaborating with him will be George C. Thomas, Jr., and Peter Cooper Bryce, past-president of the La Cumbre Country Club, all three of whom are members of the Cave Landing's advisory board, of which Ed R. Hurst, president of the California Country Club is head.

In addition to these three, Dunn stated, he would ask Dr. A. MacKenzie, the world famous architect of Great Britain, to collaborate with him when the latter comes to this country some time this year. Dr. MacKenzie laid out the links at Muirfield, Scotland, over which the British amateur golf championship was held last year.

The 150 acres of land owned by the Cave Landing Club is located along the ocean front and is surrounded on all sides by natural picturesque beauty. The topography of the land is similar in many respects to that found on the Scottish coast, where some of the greatest courses in the world have been constructed, according to Dunn. This particular section is frostless and has soil unexcelled for golf purposes. The club has an unlimited supply of water to care for a course of nearly any size.

COOPER IS READY TO PLAY KING

Local Pro Anxious to Meet Hagen in Texas Exhibition

Harry Cooper, former Los Angeles open golf champion and professional at El Sereno Country Club, has hurled a defi at Walter Hagen, international champion, for a seventy-two-hole match to take place at Dallas, Tex., Saturday and Sunday. Cooper is so confident he can whip the great Hagen, winner of numerous national titles during the past ten years, that he stands willing to play Hagen without any fee. On the other hand, Hagen demands a guarantee of $1500 as his share.

A Dallas sportsman has offered to put up 1000 to have the two-day battle staged in the town where Cooper learned his golf, but some difficulty is being experienced in raising the remaining $500.

Cooper's telegram addressed to W. O. Browne, El Sereno official, reads as follows:

"Have chance to get Walter Hagen into seventy-two-hole match in Dallas and am anxious to play. It is impossible for Hagen to return to California, but he is willing to play here. I am playing very well now and would like opportunity. I beat Hagen here in four-ball match. Hagen wants $1500 to play and I have party in Dallas willing to put up $1000. Would El Sereno consider putting up remaining $500? I am willing to play for chance to get win over Hagen. Dates for match will be February 5 and 6. If agreeable, wire me immediately.

"HARRY COOPER."

St. Andrews Newest Golf Organization

The new St. Andrews pay-as-you-play public course was officially thrown open by Norman MacBeth, president and designer, yesterday, and scores of local public-course golfers are expected to use the brand new layout today.

For years MacBeth has been one of the star amateur golfers of the State. He designed the beautiful Wilshire Country Club course and in the completion of the St. Andrews links has an achievement to be proud of.

The greens and tees are equal to the best private club course in the country and better than many courses in the country. MacBeth is to be roundly congratulated on the St. Andrews layout.

Bob Morrison has been named manager and golf instructor of the St. Andrews course and announces that the course is to be kept in the best possible condition at all times and that every foot is mown.

The St. Andrews course is located on Ventura Boulevard, about fifteen minutes' drive beyond the Hollywood Country Club and a four-minute drive beyond the El Caballero club.

The club is for the public—those golfers who have no place to play. Reservations for the course can be made either at the B. H. Dyas Company or at the course.

WOMEN PLAY AT VIRGINIA

The annual one-day club invitational for members of the local Women's Auxiliary, sponsored by feminine golfers of both the Virginia and Long Beach clubs, will be held at the former organization, Thursday. A joint committee from the two clubs will arrange an attractive program for visiting players.

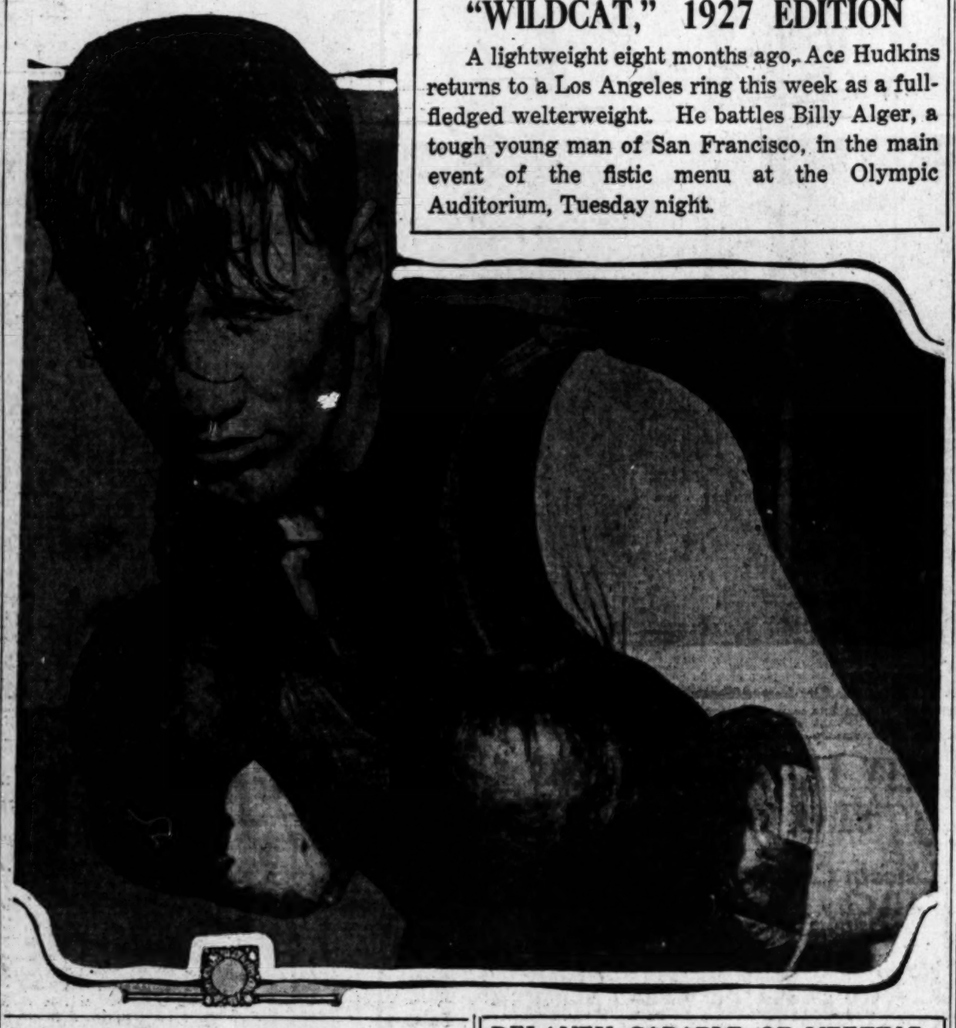
"WILDCAT," 1927 EDITION

A lightweight eight months ago, Ace Hudkins returns to a Los Angeles ring this week as a full-fledged welterweight. He battles Billy Alger, a tough young man of San Francisco, in the main event of the fistic menu at the Olympic Auditorium, Tuesday night.



RABBIT PUNCHES

By PAUL LOWRY

ACE HUDKINS is definitely out of the lightweight division. The "Wildcat's" activities hereafter will be confined to battles where he can come to the post weighing 142 to 145 pounds, or thereabouts. The straw-thatched terror, who got his real start toward fame in local rings, has outgrown the 135-pound class since his invasion of eastern battlegrounds a little over six months ago.

The slashing, rip-roaring Nebraskan has developed from a 135-pound stripling who knocked out Ruby Goldstein in four rounds, drew with Stanislaus Loayza and twice beat Phil McGraw, into a welterweight. He arrived in Los Angeles last week weighing in the neighborhood of 155 pounds and for his fight with Billy Alger has been training daily in a costume that amounts to three suits of heavy underwear.

Of course, it isn't impossible for Ace to train down to 135 pounds, but it would weaken him to do it. There is only one fighter for whom Ace would undergo such drastic training, and that man is Sammy Mandell, the lightweight king. Ace believes he could beat Mandell at 135 pounds, and any time Sammy wants to put his title up at stake he can get a fight with the "Wildcat."

The six months Ace spent in the East netted him in round numbers $50,000 for four fights, according to his brother-manager, Clyde Hudkins. The knockout of Ruby Goldstein at Coney Island brought $6000 to the Hudkins exchequer; the first McGraw fight $12,000, the draw with Loayza, $14,000, and the second victory over McGraw, $18,000. And this is the same Hudkins who breezed into Hollywood slightly over two years ago with nothing between him and the next meal but ambition and determination.

The last McGraw bout, however, was somewhat costly, in that it resulted in a broken right hand and two and a half months' layoff for the "Wildcat." It was only recently that Ace renewed his ring campaign, meeting a gink named Corbett in Nebraska on his way to the Coast and beating him easily.

He had another bout in Kansas City lined up, but it is claimed the same boxing commissioner who tried to cause him trouble a year and a half ago brought charges of a "fixed fight" and it was called off. So the Alger bout at the Olympic Tuesday night will be the "Wildcat's" second start since the waning days of last October. In his workouts here he seems to be even faster on his feet than he was when he went away and he certainly hits harder. The extra meat in his legs has added to his walloping power.

Our old friend Jim Dougherty, who will arrive today from his home in Philadelphia, has a potential ace in his new fighter, Joe Anderson, who licked both Eddie Roberts and Leo Lomski in Portland and fights Bert Colima at Vernon ten days hence. The Baron seems to have temporarily shelved George Godfrey, who has every championship attribute for a heavyweight except a passion for training and the killer instinct. George, like others of his race, is just plumb lazy.

Not so with Dougherty's new fighter. Anderson is full of the old pep and ginger and has a fighting heart of the highest caliber. The story of how he hooked up with Dougherty shows the stuff of which the young man is made. Two and a half years ago he was fighting Bobby Barrett, another protege of Dougherty's, who has long been rated as one of the hardest hitters who ever threw on a glove. Anderson took one of Barrett's hardest wallops without going down, and the "Baron of Leiperville" decided that here was a young man with some promise. He hitched him to the Dougherty band wagon after Anderson bought his own release from a former manager. The boy was permitted to peg away on his own for a while until finally the "Baron" decided the time was ripe to start putting the boy over. He was sent against Bryan Downey, the former middleweight champ, and licked him. Then Dougherty hustled the young man to the Coast. Portland wanted to see Eddie Roberts, who was going great guns, against Anderson. The latter won from Roberts in a decision bout and became tremendously popular in the northern city when he refused to accept the verdict on a foul when Roberts nailed him with a low blow in the second round.

Leo Lomski, the "Aberdeen Assassin," was next called into action to stop the invader, and he was repulsed in a holiday bill on New Year's Day. Bert Colima, who has been doing an amazing comeback after his fadeout at the hands of Jack Willis last summer, is next on the list. There is nobody in the world who can outbox Colima, but whether that will be enough with the game Kentuckian as a foe is another question.

BEAR TRACKSTERS WINK AT SHOWERS

BERKELEY, Jan. 29. (Exclusive)—Since farmers like the rain, why shouldn't California's track men? Without attempting to answer that teaser, the campus press reports that showery weather is unable to prevent Walter Christie's California oval stars from conducting their daily practice.

Christie and his university proteges are determined that nothing less than a Stanford massacre this spring will do. Because of that determination, a sort of grim thing, as the author says, the tracksters have been tracking through rain and shine.

MIKE COLLINS ON THE MAP

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 29. (Exclusive)—Minneapolis, a mighty good boxing town several years ago when Mike Collins was at the helm, seems to be getting back on the map again, and with the aid of the same Mike. For several years the big city of the twins was badly on the decline, but with careful nursing the past four months, has gradually been improving and is now making a real comeback. Collins and his partners have been holding weekly shows at the Minneapolis Armory, seating 6000 people and one of the finest arenas in the Middle West, with attendance averaging around 2800 to 3500 at $1 and $2 per, and receipts running from $2300 to $6000.

DELANEY CAPABLE OF MEETING TUNNEY DESPITE LIGHT WEIGHT

CHICAGO, Jan. 29. (Exclusive)—An old song has been revived to delight America's fistic population. Its strains have resounded through halls of famous heavyweights and now, with Gene Tunney under contract to fight in defense of his coveted title next summer, the old number — "Can a Good Little Man Beat a Good Big Man?"—has been taken from the archives. In this instance, the champion, of course, is the big man; Jack Delaney, the good little man.

GENE TUNNEY

Pete Reilly, as debonair as Jack Kearns, laughs at the idea that his man, Delaney, isn't heavy enough for the giants. "Fitzsimmons was big enough," offers Peter, "and Delaney is heavier than Fitz and built better. He is well knit and he can hit just as hard. Look at the weight Dempsey gave Willard. That Delaney would be handicapped by giving away eight or nine pounds to Tunney is a joke."

GOOD COMBINATION

Delaney, say those who are best acquainted with him, is a beautiful combination of grace and power. He is a picturesque figure of French-Canadian manhood; Tunney, a fine example of the American-Celtic type. The two are certain to be introduced as champion and challenger in a great outdoor classic some time in July or September this year.

To convince himself beyond all doubt that his champion was a first flight contender for Tunney's title, Reilly recently took Delaney to a prominent New York physician for an examination. The figures of the tape measure substantiate the manager's claim that his "little man" is not too small to seek Gentleman Gene's halo. The following table shows Delaney's physical measurements before his last meeting with Paul Berlenbach in 1925 and at the present time:

December, 1925		January, 1927
153½ pounds	Weight	175 pounds
16 inches	Neck	17½ inches
16 inches	Neck	16½ inches
34½ inches	Chest	41½ inches
31 inches	Waist	31 inches
37½ inches	Chest (normal)	41 inches
41 inches	Chest (expanded)	43½ inches
19½ inches	Thigh	23 inches
14½ inches	Calf	14½ inches
10 inches	Ankle	10 inches
11 inches	Forearm	12½ inches
11 inches	Wrist	11 inches

Dr. W. G. Froelich, New York, who treated Delaney for septic poisoning during the summer of 1925, predicts that the 175-pound champion is certain to develop into a bigger and stronger man before he enters the ring with the champion.

NOT TOO OPPOSITE

It is surprising how slight the actual difference in physical development will be between Tunney and Delaney. A careful comparison of the two finds the advantage with Delaney in several respects. Jack's greatest concession would be in weight. In his last bout with Bud Gorman, Wisconsin heavyweight of 200 pounds, the Connecticut resident weighed in at 175 pounds. His sturdy fists, however, brought down the big Badger youth in two rounds. And Gorman is a right smart boxer, too.

On September 23, 1926, when Tunney wrested the title from Dempsey, the present champion weighed 185¼ pounds when he appeared before the Pennsylvania Boxing Commission for physical examination. The respective measurements were as follows:

Dempsey		Tunney
31	Age	29
193	Weight (reported)	185½
6 ft. 1 in.	Height	6 ft. 1¼ in.
77 inches	Reach	76½ inches
9 inches	Wrist	8 inches
18 inches	Forearm	15½ inches
17½ inches	Biceps	14 inches
44½ inches	Chest (normal)	44 inches
38 inches	Waist	36 inches
16½ inches	Neck	17 inches
25 inches	Thigh	24 inches
13½ inches	Calf	14 inches
9 inches	Ankle	9 inches

Tunney today, say those who have seen him recently, appears to be only slightly heavier and more rugged. If he is called upon to face the "keeper of the lilies," he'll probably be around the same weight as he was against Dempsey.

Delaney, in recent interviews with New York writers, claims that he can no longer make the light-heavyweight limit without weakening himself; also, that if he is the lucky one to meet Tunney this year he will weigh in around 177 pounds. This would mean that Gene would carry a ten-pound advantage at the most.

HITS BOTH WAYS

The general impression throughout the land is that Delaney is strictly a one-punch fighter, who relies almost entirely upon his right-hand uppercut. The truth of the matter is that Jack possesses a left hook, short and effective, which starts his opponents on the downward path, and that, in turn, he applies his uppercut for the finishing touches.

When he met Gorman, Delaney was unable to use the latter blow because Bud protected his jaw against such a punch by burying his whiskers in his shoulder. It was then that the champion landed an overhand right, and Gorman went sprawling for the count.

Delaney will either be accepted as a more serious contender or permanently sidetracked so far as a meeting with Tunney is concerned, on the night of February 18. This is the date selected by Tex Rickard for Jack's important trial in the heavyweight division. Jimmy Maloney of South Boston will offer the opposition. Like Gorman, the Hub Irishman is a 200-pounder; fast on his feet and a capable boxer. Despite his recent victories over inferior men, Maloney still has to prove to the skeptics that he is of sound championship caliber.

Rickard's plans are to have the winner of the February 18 squabble double with Jack Sharkey, another Bostonian candidate for the title, Tex, no doubt, figuring that the Lithuanian will eliminate the winner of the Paolino-Knute Hansen mix-up set for February 8. All in all, the heavyweight division is creating sufficient interest to keep the prognosticators awake nights.

H.A.C. HAS BIG LIST OF RING ENTRANTS

With twenty-eight entries in the Pacific Coast A.A.U. boxing championships Bob Howard, boxing instructor, expects his large entry list to win a few laurels for the Film City club. Among the list Howard his five big heavyweights and four good lightweights that are expected to make quite a showing. The boys are all working out daily at the H'llywood club and will be in tip-top shape for the event of their lives.

George L. Eastman, James Irsfeld, Frank Galloway, and other officials of the Hollywood Athletic Club will lead a delegation of members over to the Olympic to back up their representatives.

HOLLYWOOD QUINTET IN TWO HARD GAMES

The league-leading Hollywood Athletic Club basketball quintet has two tough games on schedule this week in the dash for local A.A.U. hoop laurels. Tuesday, the Movie City Club entertains the Alhambra Athletic Club, and Friday, the strong Pacific Coast Club of Long Beach plays at Hollywood. Chuck Kearney's squad has suffered but one defeat this year—that being to the Pasadena Athletic and Country Club team.

SPANISH HEAVY'S BATTLE WITH BOARS PROVES FLOP

TAMPA (Fla.) Jan. 29. (AP)—A "true" story of Paolina Uscudun's wild boar expedition has come to light here. The Spanish heavyweight told New York reporters recently he killed three wild boars in Cuba in a fierce battle just before coming to this country. A Havana newspaper then declared there were no wild boars in Cuba.

The story was true except for two points. The boars were not wild, they were common Florida "razor back" hogs, and the "battle" was fought on the outskirts of Tampa instead of in Cuba.

Paolino was a member of a hunting party during his visit here. He came upon the hogs in the woods and instructed his companions to flee for their lives. He shot one pig, clubbed another and killed the third with a blow from his fist.

His companions paid the irate farmer for the three hogs and a barbecue was served to Paolino's friends in the Spanish colony here.

AMONG THE FANS

J. T. Bradford won the Brooklyn Master Tournament by defeating Gonotsky in the finals 1 to 0 and 5 draws. There were four of the International team in the tournament, Ginsberg and Hanson also participating. Below is the score in detail:

Round 1—Gonotsky 2, Lawson 0, draw 3; Ginsberg 1, Nelson 0, drawn 5; Hanson 1, Mantell 0, Drawn 3; Bradford 1, Ellis 0, drawn 3.

Round 2—Gonotsky 0, Hanson 0, drawn 5; Bradford 0, Ginsberg 0, drawn 5.

It had been previously agreed that if contestants were tied at the end of 8 games that the ballot would be used, so the result was Gonotsky and Bradford won on the ballot.

Round 3—Bradford 1, Gonotsky 0 drawn 5.

KING TUT FACES SNELL

Tom Gallery Arranges Most Attractive Card of Season for Hollywood Show Friday Night

The Hollywood American Legion Stadium should be packed to the rafters Friday night with fight fans who will want to "take in" one of the best offerings ever presented by Hollywood Post 43 of the American Legion. King Tut and Doc Snell head the card.

What makes this fight card good is the fact the main event is a natural to Tut's knockout over Danny Kramer and Doc Snell's win over Jimmy McLarnin. The winner of this fight can easily lay claim to the junior lightweight championship of the Pacific Coast.

King Tut is going after a knockout and as Snell has never been stopped this feat seems impossible as the little fellow from Washington is as tough as Battling Nelson was in his palmy days.

The card as a whole is a great array of talent from top to bottom. Eddie Haddon, one of the best-looking bantamweights in California, makes his debut against Billy Hart. Haddon is a San Franciscan, who has had two tough fights with Georgie Rivers. He looked so good that Charley McDonald grabbed him. McDonald predicts Haddon will stop Billy Hart.

Joe Cordova fights Jimmy Levinthal in the special. Two fine, big, healthy sluggers who have knockout wallops are these gents.

The four-rounders feature Sammy Guidero fighting Dave Mustafa, while Herb Turehi opens the show with Goldy Hess.

CANADIAN WOMEN TO HAVE OLYMPIC TEAM

Canada is planning to send a strong delegation to compete in the women's events in the next Olympic games. Miss Rosa Grosse of Toronto is credited with being one of the best girl sprinters in the world. Another member of the Canadian team will be Miss Catherwood of Saskatchewan, who is a marvel in the high jump.

TIGER PROSPECTS BRIGHT

From all advance indications, Coach Wilkie Clarke, Occidental baseball mentor, will coach his third straight Tiger championship ball team this year. When Clarke opens the 1927 baseball season with the first call, February 7, he will be greeted with plenty of varsity material, and some eight letter men from the 1926 conference championship team. The returning Tiger athletes from last year's aggregation include Capt.-elect Les Haserot, Vic Conde, Solly Mishkin, Bud Teachout, "Rats" Brobst, Bob Beaver, Morris and Mike Godet. "Bullet" Hazeltine, third sacker, and Art Cherry, fielder, are the only two men lost through graduation last year.

M'TIGUE WANTS SHARKEY BOUT

Mike Eager to Mix it With Boston Challenger

Jack's Manager Refuses to Sign for Fight

Victory Over Berlenbach is Ring Sensation

NEW YORK, Jan. 29. (AP)—Mike McTigue today moved to capitalize his sensational four-round triumph over Paul Berlenbach by offering to fight Jack Sharkey of Boston in Tex Rickard's heavyweight elimination tournament.

Rickard's efforts to clinch the match for February 25, the date on which the Boston heavyweight had contracted to meet Berlenbach, struck a snag, however, when Johnny Buckley, Sharkey's manager, demurred. Rickard said he considered McTigue had established himself as a strong heavyweight contender in spite of the fact that he scaled only 180 pounds last night.

Boxing men today ranked the comeback of McTigue with those of the late Stanley Ketchel and Johnny Dundee as one of the most sensational of boxing history. They pointed out that during the two-year period of his light-heavyweight reign, McTigue did not win a single outstanding battle, losing newspaper decisions to Young Stribling and Mickey Walker, who at that time held the welterweight title.

Friends claimed that an operation on Mike's right hand had done much to restore the punishing power he had displayed in his early ring days. Improved hitting by the former champion was evident in a victory over Tiger Flowers, after which he decisively outpointed Johnny Risko, the Cleveland heavyweight.

Three straight knockouts over Billy Vidabeck, Soldier King and Berlenbach since then have made McTigue one of the major ring attractions of the current indoor season.

POMONA UNCOVERS STARS

Intramural Track Meet Brings Forth Former Prep Satellites; Seniors Also Show Pepper

POMONA COLLEGE (Claremont) Jan. 29. (Exclusive)—As usual, this year's intramural track meet at Pomona brought out four or five performers who will, without doubt, be in the limelight from now on, competing on both varsity and freshman teams, and should be point-getters on either squad. Each season, Coach Bob Strehle finds a flock of potential trackmen in the novice affair and builds them into big-league athletes. The meet which has just been completed was no exception.

A dismal outlook for the 1927 freshman team has been cleared up somewhat by the discovery of some good weightmen, jumpers and short-distance runners. So far, the track material in this rosh class was well under cover and the chances for retaining the peaceful championship won last year looked pretty slim. However, the performances of a clique of athletes has heightened Coach Strehle's hopes.

GERWIN NEHER

Cliff Bright, John Judy and Hank Morgan, three huskies who room together, almost swept the field clear in the weights, defeating older and more experienced men. Bright copped the shot and javelin, while Morgan won the discus, almost breaking a record. Judy failed to win any of his events, but placed near his bedfellows in every case. Bright and Morgan are registered from Pomona High School. Judy is from Polytechnic.

A pair of Henry's, Cobb and Gray, also freshmen, had almost as successful a time in the sprints and shorter runs as the other trio did in the weights. Cobb won the 75-yard dash, placed second to Gray in the 300 and came back to win the 175-yard race. In each of the three races, Gray was close behind. Both men should be valuable as sprinters and middle-distance men on the Sagechick team this year.

"Duke" Neher's record-breaking heave of the hammer may bring him out for track this year, and if he can improve just a little bit will be good for points in any man's meet. Neher is a senior, so he will have just this one season for competition.

Unable, because of his high-school competition, to compete in the pole vault, Hamilton, the class Hollywood athlete, entered the javelin and managed to get a place. He also placed in the high and broad-jumping. Hamilton should be one of the big stars this year.

Getting away to a good start in his last year of competition, Cliff Winn, senior, won the 660-yard run and placed in the 300-yard event. Winn runs the half-mile on the varsity track squad, but has never managed to make his letter, so he was eligible for the intramural competition and he easily took his event. Another varsity athlete who competed in the intramural meet, Ivy Vredenburg, showed that he is in good shape already, high jumping 5ft. 6in., without straining himself.

Sport Garb at Berkeley Hit by 'Reformers'

BERKELEY, Jan. 29. (Exclusive)—As an aftermath to the recent edict that men students of the University of California may no longer dive from the high platform of the outdoor swimming pool (formerly used by women,) because they might be observed in their seminudness by co-eds in private homes dotting the hillside a short distance off, a miniature wave of "athletic garb reform" is sweeping the campus.

When completely attired for swimming or diving practice, the swimmers are equipped only with abbreviated trunks, which necessarily leave a great deal of the anatomy uncovered. In response to this objection of the "form beautiful," campus wits have conceived original costumes for those of athletic inclinations.

For instance, according to the latest costume designs, all track men would cover their heretofore brazenly exposed limbs, both nether and upper with red flannels; women students would be denied admission to basketball games unless the basketeers consented to robe themselves like deep-sea divers; and swimmers would surround themselves with enough cloth to make the well-swrapped belle of 1895 appear conscienceless. Although the committee on "athletic purity" has not taken definite action so far, a decision is expected daily.

Francis Brown, known as the human dynamo of Honolulu, has announced his intention of participating in the leading golf tourneys to be held in this country next summer.

HOLLYWOODERS WIN OVER ODDS

Redshirts Start Season With Green Quintet

Lincoln Game Proved Climax of Title Quest

Crimson to Have Two Veteran Players Back

Supposedly out of the running when Manual Arts won the opening game of the season, 30 to 14, Hollywood's comeback against the powerful Lincoln quintet on the following week and the winning of a third consecutive City League basketball championship furnished one of the most interesting pages in local prep casaba history.

The four leading teams were remarkably well balanced with Lincoln, L. A. High, Hollywood and Manual Arts all proving dangerous contenders. Poly, Franklin and Jefferson were not in the same class with the first four.

Coach Bill Paige developed a strong Redshirt five built around Capt. Dick Linthicum, his only returning letter man from the championship team of 1926. Other than Linthicum none of the boys who turned out for practice had ever played basketball before and the development of the team was all the more interesting because of its inexperience.

While Manual Arts was considered a tough team, Coach Motts Blair was blessed with only one returning veteran, Capt. Perry Sieler, and Hollywood's past record made the Redshirts a favorite. Bill Rice and Doc Woods were going strong that afternoon when the Toilers met Hollywood, while the Redshirts played very ordinary basketball.

The following game witnessed an entirely new basketball team for Hollywood, and marked the debut of Junior McInturff. Lincoln was rated as the strongest team in the league, but Hollywood played superbasketball. Dick Linthicum's brilliant shots and Clem Sultenfuss's steady playing featured the offense. McInturff proved deadly under the basket and sank ten points. Ed Tinley and Howie Roberts, who had been a bit shakey the week before, put up a sterling battle.

By beating L. A. High, 18 to 16, Hollywood practically cinched the title as Franklin, Jefferson, and Poly all proved set-ups. Poly put up the best games, the Redshirts winning, 19 to 12, and Hollywood's green material had vindicated itself.

Hollywood will have another fair outlook for next season with Clem Sultenfuss and Junior McInturff back. Coach Merrill Bailey will send up a good man in Dan Johnson, who played a fair game at forward on this year's lightweight team and shows signs of improvement.

Dick Linthicum was graduated Thursday evening. Archie Seiler and Ed Tinley will graduate with the summer class. Tinley still has competition ahead of him on Coach Vic Kelly's baseball team on which he plays first base.

BY EDWARD LAWRENCE

Picking an all-star team in any sport is usually a difficult and unpleasant task, because as a rule there are two or more athletes qualified for every position, but when the City League basketball season closed Friday afternoon, it was a comparatively simple job to choose the outstanding man for each place on the All-City first and second string quintets.

Coach "Hap" Van Pelt's Lincoln five, which tied with Hollywood for first place in percentage, but lost the title by losing to the Redshirts, placed two men on the first team and a pair on the second team. Coach Bill Paige's Hollywood quintet came in with three players winning places, one on the short team and two on the second team. L. A. High, mentored by Coach Hemsath, and Coach Motts Blair's Manual Arts' fives placed a man each on the first team.

"HAPPY" VAN PELT

LINTHICUM SHONE

Dick Linthicum of Hollywood won a place on the first team and made captain. Linthicum is a brilliant shot and second only to Capt. Eddie Christensen of Lincoln in that respect, but surpassed the Tiger leader as an all-round man. He was a safety valve for the Crimson five and handled his inexperienced team with skill. His ability to size up a situation and take advantage of his opponent's weaknesses made him an excellent captain. He was equally efficient on the offense and defense, a good dribbler, accurate passer, and an uncanny shot.

Like Linthicum, Christensen also is without a competitor. His long shots from all angles featured every game he played in. Besides he was a dangerous passer and dribbler, a triple-threat basketball player, if such a term can be used.

RICE GETS CALL

The City League was not overburdened with good centers this season, but Bob Ray, who was equally responsible for picking the first team, won his point when he chose Bill Rice of Manual Arts. Although not physically big, Rice was a big asset to the Toilers and featured in defeating Hollywood with his good work under the basket. He shot 12 of Manual Arts' 20 points in that game. He understood the value of teamwork, however, and would work well with any combination.

For running guard, Morgan Trammel of Lincoln has the call. Trammel has everything that goes into a good guard. He was fast and the best dribbler in the City League. His passing was excellent all season, although sometimes a trifle hot for his teammates to handle comfortably. He could also flip the casaba and was mainly responsible for the defeat of Manual Arts!

RAH! FOR WALBOT

Capt. "Moose" Walbot of L. A. High, was shoulders above any other standing guard in the loop. He never lost his head and was one of the big reasons why the Romans remained in the running. His passing was a feature.

Now for the second team. Clem Sultenfuss of Hollywood, although playing his first year of basketball, was one of the best forwards in the league, and an all-around player. Jimmy Samarin of Lincoln inherits the other forward berth. He was a whirlwind on the court and a good shot.

"Stringbean" Lubin, an elongated youth, wins the pivot position. Junior McInturff of Hollywood and Perry Seiler of Manual Arts were picked for guards. Lubin is not much of a center on the offense, so we would shift McInturff, who is a good man to have under the basket, to center, let Seiler play running guard, and bring Lubin back as standing guard.

SEILER CAPTAIN

Seiler, who is a two-year letter man at Manual Arts, would captain the second team because of his experience.

A number of players, who were not stars in any sense of the word, but put up a consistent game of basketball, deserve mention.

Of the forwards, Branstool of L. A. High, Boelter of Poly, and "Doc" Woods of Manual Arts were on the job during every game. Branstool in particular turned in good performances.

Barchterer of L. A. High was a great improvement over last year when he played center on the Roman lightweight team. Sieler of Hollywood, also put up a fair game, considering he was playing for the first time.

A number of good guards were developed. Clyde Feck of Manual Arts, Moffat of L. A. High, Finley of Hollywood, Winfield of Lincoln and Roberts of Hollywood came through the season with flying colors.

SANTA ANA CAGE TEAM COPS GAME

Saints Win Double-Header from South Pasadena Fives; Varsity Wins 22-13

SANTA ANA, Jan. 29. (Exclusive)—The Santa Ana varsity basketball team defeated South Pasadena here this afternoon, 22 to 13. The game was the Saints' first win of the season. Santa Ana's class-C quintet also won by a 24-to-6 score, thereby retaining an untarnished record so far.

Chet Seigel, varsity center, playing his last game in a prep uniform, was the spark plug in the Santa Ana offense that spurted beautifully throughout the pastime, particularly in the last two periods. The Polyites left the floor at the intermission with a 10-to-9 lead and dominated the situation so fully in the second half that the Tigers were able to make but four points and two of those were the result of free throws. Siegel shot three field baskets in the second half rally and his passing was uniformly good.

Hogue, Poly's star running guard, also shone brightly, especially in the first half, when he dropped three successive field tosses through the hoop. Coach Foote used two full teams before the issue was decided. Only Charley Ehrhorn, the lanky guard, going the complete route.

Holman and Sullivan, two substitutes, did most of the scoring for the Poly 110-pounders. Inserted into the tussle when the local crew had only a small lead, these forwards soon pushed their team far ahead. Santa Ana led at the half, 9 to 4, but completely outclassed the Tiger midgets in the second part of the fracas.

ARMY ATHLETES WIN

WEST POINT (N. Y.) Jan. 29. (AP) Army won three out of five sporting events here today. Scores were: Swimming: Army, 33; New York University, 29. Wrestling: Franklin and Marshall, 16; Army, 11. Polo: Army, 16; Squadron "A," 7. Fencing: Army, 13; Princeton, 4. Hockey: Clarkson, 3; Army, 4. (ten minutes overtime.)

LONG BEACH POLY LOOKS FOR WELL-BALANCED TRACK TEAM

Writing in from Long Beach, Leroy Fall Chief, track manager of the Long Beach Poly High School, is optimistic over the coming Coast League track season and says the Jackrabbits hope to have a championship contender.

Eight letter men will be back as a nucleus. Capt. Carol Loder, Roy Golecker, Donald Maltby, Clyde Cloniger, Al Hansler Carl Childreth, Harold Hayden and Lewis Ballon are the veterans returning along with some good-looking material.

Loder, Golecker and Bob Williams are showing up well in the broad jump. Long Beach will have a well-rounded field squad and a strong track combination. Maltby and Cloniger are coming along nicely in the pole vault. Maltby set a new Coast record of 12ft. 2¼in. last year. Cloniger is a consistent performer at 11ft. 6in. and is expected to do 12ft. before the season is over.

In the 440, Al Hansler, Leo Reed and Howard Laytham are all displaying plenty of pep. Hansler finished third in the Coast League last year and should prove a tough contender for Shove of Pasadena during the coming season. In the half-mile event, Carl Childreth is going good, but he has run his best races in the 220 and may be shifted to that race. Hayden, who ran the mile last season, will run the 880 as a snappy miler has been uncovered in Donahue Hall. [illegible] in the A.A.U. PREP NINES LOSE STARS

Satellites of 1926 City League Diamond Teams to be Replaced by Promising Material

Although many of last year's high-school baseball satellites will be among the missing when the coaches make their call for baseball aspirants next month, some of the most promising material for many seasons is distributed among the schools in the City League and a high-class game of ball all around should be the result.

L. A. High, which won its second championship in a row last season, has a bright outlook despite the loss of Louis Almada, one of the best left-handed pitchers ever turned out by the prep. Almada is going to get a chance with the New York Giants this spring. The Romans, however, have a budding prospect in Cherry, who hurled some nice ball for the second string last year.

Louis Almada

Coach "Pop" Mahoney has a potent nucleus around which to build Poly's team, although both hurlers, Coogan and Bush, are gone. Ralph Cook, a first baseman; Toyama, second base, and Jimmy Young, third base, give Mahoney a complete infield. All the boys handle the willow with plenty of sap. Barney Hahn, veteran centerfielder, is the other man back. Norm Elzer, Coach Voyle Brennen's snappy end during the grid season, is expected to make an outfielder. The Mechanics start practice a week from Tuesday.

Hollywood should have a good team with a number of veterans back. Dan Johnson, a junior, displayed a good hurling soup bone last season and should show up well this year. Ed Tinley will be back at first and Meb Schroeder at third. Laurie Vejar is due to return to right field.

SAGEHEN SWIMMERS OUT

POMONA COLLEGE (Claremont) Jan. 29. (Exclusive)—Losing but one man from last year's classy squad, Pomona's swimming team looks for a brilliant year when it takes to the water within the next few weeks. Roger Smith, a husky youth who sprinted and plunged for distance, leaves the only hole in the ranks, the entire squad returning otherwise. Likewise, a squad of good men from the freshman team of 1926 is ready to answer the call and, so everything looks rosy.

The Blue is depending on five men to splash along with its honors this year. "Link" Hall, who captained the squad when he was a sophomore. Bud Clark, who captained it last year, Whitney Henry, Bob Burger and Joel McCrae are the men who have had experience and should be the nucleus around which Bob Strehle builds the team.

Last year's freshmen, now eligible for varsity competition, furnish a trio who will fill in the blank spots nicely. Out of a flock of sophomores who will turn out, Harold Backstrand, Loren Mitts and Ralph Thomas will be the only good natators. Backstrand can show his heels to anyoody in college in the quarter, although he has never had varsity experience. Mitts is a good diver, hailing from Redondo where you have to be an aquatic star to maintain your good standing. Thomas a sprinter.

NEW FENCE, BLEACHERS AND TRACK BUILT AT POLYTECHNIC

The Polytechnic High School, which has been without a suitable athletic field for the past several years, is having its old plot of ground rejuvenated with a new fence, collapsible bleachers of the circus variety, and a one fifth-mile track. Of all the improvements the fence was needed most of all as Coach Voyle Brennen was forced to take his team elsewhere for practice a great part of the time because the field was cluttered up with spectators. Coach "Cop" Mahoney will probably schedule a few of his baseball games at home this season for the first time.
